Lancaster Farming

Vol. 47 No. 26 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Four Sections | Saturday, April 27, 2002 | $34.00 Per Year | 75¢ Per Copy

WERNERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — With recent warm weather, pastures are greening up nicely, including this 3-acre paddock of orchardgrass, fescue, ryegrass, clover, and alfalfa on the farm of Forrest Stricker. Stricker manages an 83-cow herd of Holstein, Jersey, and Jersey-Holstein crossbreds and farms with wife Barbara and two sons, Greg, 18, and Jeff, 15. Stricker's organic dairy herd's milk is shipped to Horizon Organic.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, for the week ending April 21, unseasonably warm temperatures coupled with precipitation resulted in considerable improvement in pasture and wheat crop conditions. The warm temperatures helped to establish 4.1 days suitable for fieldwork. Soil moisture was rated 2 percent very short, 19 percent short, 66 percent adequate, and 13 percent surplus. Principal farm activities included spring plowing, planting oats and alfalfa, fixing fences, machinery maintenance, cleaning barns, spreading lime and fertilizer, hauling and spreading manure, pruning fruit trees, and spraying herbicides and pesticides.

Spring plowing was 57 percent complete, 34 percent more than the previous year and 13 percent more than the 5-year average. The showers and extremely warm temperatures helped to improve pastures. Only nine percent of the pastureland was rated poor to very poor, down 11 percent; 77 percent fair to good; and 14 percent excellent, up 11 percent from the previous week. According to the Pennsylvania Capitol Region Crop Report, begin grazing short stature grasses (bluegrass) after five inches of growth, tall grass (orchardgrass, bromegrass, etc.) after 10 inches of growth, and warm season grasses (switchgrass) after 18 inches of growth, to manage forage supply, weed growth, and stand longevity. Photo by Andy Andrews, editor

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
April 24, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was fully steady in the Northeast, steady elsewhere. Retail demand was mostly slow to fair, instances moderate where features were present. Food service was slightly better with strongest interest going into fast food for specials. Supplies were usually in balance with heavier weights at times still more available. In the parts structure, trading was light to good with retail ads aiding interest. Breast items were in close supply to tight of an active call, leg items and wings were at least adequate and easy to locate if needed. In production areas, live supplies were moderate at mixed, but mostly desirable weights.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

APRIL 29–MAY 5, 2002

BUSTER BROWN DEBUT

One hundred years ago, on May 4, 1902, Richard Fenton Outcault's mischievous cartoon character, Buster Brown, and his dog Tige made their first appearance in the New York Herald. After the Buster Brown strip gained fame, John A. Bush purchased rights to the name and character for the Brown Shoe Company, which was started in 1878 by George Warren Brown and two partners. Before long, many of us were wearing Buster Brown shoes during our grammar-school years.

I'm Buster Brown, and I live in a shoe. That's my dog, Tige, and he lives there, too. –slogan for Buster Brown shoes

TIP OF THE WEEK

FUDGEY CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

3/4 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
4-1/2 tablespoons butter
9 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1/3 cup light-brown sugar
2 large eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

Place oven rack in lower third of oven. Preheat oven to 325°F. Grease and flour an 8x8-inch pan. Mix flour and baking powder. Melt butter in a saucepan, stir in cocoa and sugars, and cool. Add eggs and vanilla to saucepan mix, then add flour, stirring until smooth. Pour into pan and bake for 15 minutes. (Toothpick inserted will not come out clean.)

Makes 16 brownies.

Time to upgrade your agri-SYSTEM!

It's that time of year again! If you need a "system upgrade" at your farm, don't forget Mid-Atlantic. We have more than pumps, spreaders and other equipment. We have the products you need for your whole "agrisystem."

Bucket of Bugs
Desert Microbial Products
Do you want to eliminate noxious odors, reduce solids, and convert your liquid manure into a highly effective organic fertilizer? We have the solution. Bucket of Bugs is proving itself to be the best product available for manure management.

The Woodchuck
Shavings Spreader
This new product will spread your sawdust, shavings, sand, etc. in a matter of minutes. It adapts quickly and easily to most skid steer loaders and three point hitches to do your bedding as a one-man operation.

Livestock Waterers
Energy-free tip tanks
SPI Livestock Waterers are durable and rust-free and can be floor or wall mounted. They come with a built-in tip handle to ensure you never misplace it.

Micro Pivot
From Hydrus
This lightweight irrigation system works great for separated liquid, hog manure, or any other situation where a small system is needed.

Houle
Liquid pumps and spreaders
No more "one size fits all." All Houle equipment is made to order, allowing for each piece to fit your requirements exactly.

Rental & Custom Services
We have the equipment you need available for rental. Also, contact Bio-Spread, our custom spreading branch, and find out how we can help take a load off!

OPINION

Common Guidelines

The Lancaster County Planning Commission calls it "Envision" or "smart growth." The mission: come up with agreeable, working land-zoning standards.

If property is zoned R1, that could mean 550 different things — literally, the number of different zoning districts in Lancaster County alone. Like farms, no zoning district is the same. But maybe unlike farms, there have been few times when township supervisors and borough managers actually spoke with one another, let alone planning commissions, about a "vision" for what agriculture and rural communities should look like.

As a result, Lancaster's planning commission knew something had to be done.

That's why work on a concept to unify the different agencies into a coalition to manage the growth of development, road use and repair, and other elements is necessary.

For Lancaster, managing that key economic ingredient the ag manufacturing and transportation cluster — while supporting a livable community is critical.

And many other counties looking to manage growth would do well to learn from this model.

So attend the growth conference in Millersville on Monday, April 29. The insight gained about rural, and rural/urban community planning, could be invaluable.

To Be Aware Of New Pesticides For Small Fruit

Kathy Demchak in the Department of Horticulture reports that strawberry growers have an additional product to use for Botrytis grey mold control this year.

Switch, from Syngenta, is a mixture of two active ingredients, cyprodinil and fludioxinil. It has provided a very high level of grey mold control in independent studies. Tree fruit and grape growers may recognize cyprodinil as the active ingredient in Vangard, which is labeled for use against scab on apples, brown rot on peaches, and bunch rot and powdery mildew on grapes, among other uses. Fludioxinil is marketed as Maxim, which is used to treat seeds of many crops and seed potatoes.

In addition, Quadris 2.08F fungicide and Abound 2.08F (both from Syngenta) recently obtained labels for some small fruit uses. Quadris and Abound are both the same material (azoxystrobin); however, Quadris is labeled for use only on strawberries while Abound is labeled for use only on blueberry, elderberry, gooseberry, huckleberry, lingonberry, and juneberry. Abound is registered for control of mummy berry, Alternaria fruit rot, Phomopsis stem canker, and anthracnose fruit rot. These are supplemental labels, so even new containers of these materials won't have these uses on the label at this point.

Your chemical dealer should be able to supply you with the supplemental labels. Quadris is registered for control of powdery mildew and anthracnose on strawberries. This is significant, because the occurrence of anthracnose appears to be increasing in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Mike Ellis of The Ohio State University reported in the Ohio Fruit ICM News that "although Botrytis fruit rot is not on the label, research in New York has shown that Abound (azoxystrobin) provides good to fair control of Botrytis. In addition, azoxystrobin has good activity against Phytophthora fungi on several other crops. Therefore, it may provide some level of leather rot (a fruit rot caused by Phytophthora cactorum) control when applied for control of Anthracnose fruit rot on strawberry.

"Quadris is registered for use at the rate of 6.2 to 15.4 fluid ounces per acre and may be applied the day of harvest (0-day PHI). For fungicide resistance management, do not apply more than two sequential sprays of Quadris before alternating with a fungicide that has a different mode of action. Do not make more than four (4) applications per acre per crop year. Do not apply more than 1.92 quarts per acre per season. This is four applications at the maximum rate."

Apple growers and small fruit growers with neighbors who are apple growers should pay particular attention to the points below concerning phytotoxicity to some apple cultivars.

"The active ingredient in Quadris (azoxystrobin) is very phytotoxic to McIntosh apples and other varieties related to McIntosh. Therefore it is recommended that Quadris not be used in the same sprayer or equipment that will be used on apples. It is also important to prevent any drift from strawberries to apples. Apple varieties related to McIntosh are Bancroft, Bromley, Cortland, Cox, Discover, Empire, Gala, Janamac, Kent, McIntosh, Spartan and Summared."

To Prepare To Control The Asparagus Beetle

In last week's column I discussed scouting your asparagus fields for the asparagus beetle. Although the return of colder weather this week has slowed insect activity substantially, beetle activity will increase again as soon as warmer temperatures return. Therefore it is important to continue scouting and be prepared to implement control measures.

In small garden patches, hand picking can control the asparagus beetle adults. The larvae can be controlled by brushing them to the ground. The larvae usually are not able to reclimb the stalks and die on the hot soil. This will not be practical however for commercial production.

Before deciding to use insecticides, one should monitor the field for beetle activity. If 10 percent or more of the plants have beetles present, control could be warranted. However, the time of day will have a large impact on beetle activity.

Beetles are much more active during the warm afternoon and evening hours. If the scouting is done during the early morning or during cool weather, a 5 percent infestation rate would be a better threshold. If you determine that your beetle populations require control, a number of products are labeled for use. These include Lannate, Malathion, Methoxychor, Ambush, Pounce, and Sevin. Be sure to follow the label instructions, especially the preharvest interval.

The disadvantage of using an insecticide is that beneficial insect populations will be reduced as well as the pest populations. Many beneficial insects feed on the various life stages of asparagus beetles and do provide some control. Ladybird beetles, other predacious beetles, soldier bugs, wasps, flies, and dragonflies all reduce the asparagus beetle populations.

Testrastichus asparagi is a tiny wasp 1/16 of an inch long and metallic green. It attacks the eggs of the asparagus beetle. The wasp could kill as many as 70 percent of the eggs and larvae. The wasp chews a hole in the beetle egg and drinks the liquid or lays one of its own eggs in the beetle egg. The wasp egg will hatch and grow inside the beetle larva and eventually will kill it. Sometimes the wasps are so abundant that no insecticides are needed. However, the empty egg cases left by the wasp's feeding can be unsightly and make the spears unmarketable as well.

To Correct An Error In Last Week's Column

A sharp reader in Lancaster County pointed out an error in my paragraphs on the drought published last week. I reported the flow rate of the Susquehanna River at Safe Harbor on April 17 was 51,500 cfs (cubic feet per second) compared to normal flow for April of 79,300 cfs. These numbers are correct. However, I also reported on April 16 the Conestoga River at Lancaster had a flow of 283,000 cfs compared to the April normal of 765,000 cfs. These numbers have too many zeros! The correct flow rate was 283 cfs compared to a normal rate of 765 cfs. I am glad to know this column is read carefully and I do appreciate feedback!

The Governor has proposed a five percent cut in base budgets for the agricultural research and agricultural extension line items, resulting in a decrease of $840,950 and $931,248, respectively, in funds available to the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences for programming. This, coupled with Penn State's commitment to maintain competitive salaries for faculty and staff, will result in a net decrease of approximately $2.2 million in agricultural research funding and $2.5 million in extension funding.

In keeping the budget request in line with other Yellow Book requests, the Pennsylvania Council of Farm Organizations requests a total of $24,995,000 for the research line, and $28,748,000 for the cooperative extension line. This would amount to a three percent increase over the 2001-2002 budget for the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Research and Cooperative Extension lines.

To put the Governor's request in human resource terms, a five percent reduction will result in 69 fewer faculty, or 99 fewer county extension agents, or 118 fewer support staff, with the most likely outcome being some combination of reduction of faculty, extension agents, and staff. There are not sufficient position vacancies created by attrition to cover this shortfall, so people employed today, both at University Park and in the counties, will be on the

WHO APPOINTED YOU JUDGE?

Background Scripture:
Romans 14:1 through 15:13.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 14:14-23.

Much of the turmoil I have experienced in church life I would put, not in the "Of Vital Importance," but in the "Disputes Over Opinions" column. Paul tells us, "As to the man who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not for disputes over opinions" (Ro. 14:1). The problem is that many of us think that our disputes occupy a much higher level than mere opinions. Other people may have "opinions"; we have "vital issues."

Somewhere I read about a violinist who drove his wife to distraction by playing the same string over and over again. "Why do you play just one string?" she demanded. Other violinists use many different notes when they play. "Ah," replied her husband, "they are looking for the right note, but I have found it!"

Many Christians think they have "found it." I have seen them come nearly to blows over the most trivial of matters, because they failed to realize how trivial they were: the color to paint the church doors, the variety of hymns to be sung, the version of the Bible used in the service, the suitability of having church suppers, the choir members who get to sing most of the solos, and on and on, ad nauseam.

Human Opinions

Admittedly, we often have disputes over more important matters, too: What shall be in the church budget? What clergy person shall we engage? Shall we support this mission or that? Is it "Christian" to permit this or that activity in the church? etc.

Important though these may be, they are not earth-shattering unless we make them that way. These too are about opinions — human opinions — fallible opinions. There is nothing wrong in keeping our opinions, so long as we remember that that is all they are.

Many of our intramural disputes are not about vital issues, but about the all-too-human passion for judging others. Paul asks us plainly: "Who are you to pass judgment of the servant of another" (14:4). Our brothers and sisters in the faith are not our servants, but of the Lord. We will be judged, not by each other, but by the Lord.

"For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God" and each of us "shall give account of himself to God" (14:10,12). Some of our own opinions are bound to be in error!

Jesus did not ask his disciples all to have the same opinions. "One man esteems one day as better than another, while another man esteems all days alike. Let everyone be fully convinced in his own mind" (14:5). Live by your opinions, but do not presume to make your neighbor abide by them, too. That is for your neighbor and his Maker — and yours — to work out between themselves.

Honor The Lord

The key to all this is found in Paul's admonitions to do whatever it is you think you ought to do "in honor of the Lord." If you abstain from eating, do it in God's honor. If you eat, do that to God's honor. If you believe music is an important part of church worship, then have music to God's honor.

If you do not believe music should be in divine worship, then abstain to the honor of God. Keep the honoring of God in the center of your focus, not your doing or your not doing of a particular thing.

"If we live, we live to the Lord. And if we die, we die to the Lord; so then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord's" (14:8). That is what we must keep remembering: "...we are the Lord's." He alone is capable of judging our opinions, our lives, and our faith. Judging others is beyond our authority and our capabilities. I

We know all of the above, but we frequently forget it. So Paul puts in memorable form: "Why do you pass judgment on your brother? Or you, why do you despise your brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God" (14:10) where "each of us shall give account of himself to God" (14:12). The accounting is not about our brothers and sisters, but ourselves.

"Then let us no more pass judgment on one another, but rather decided never to put a stumbling block or hindrance in the way of a brother."

SELECT®
2 EC HERBICIDE

SELECT® 2EC Herbicide

Most farmers in Pennsylvania know how effectively SELECT 2EC Herbicide works against annual and perennial grasses in soybeans. Now, SELECT is labeled for alfalfa too! SELECT controls 50 annual and perennial grasses, including Italian ryegrass, volunteer small grains, and perennial and annual bluegrass. SELECT can be used on new seeding and on established stands (between cuttings) of alfalfa. And, SELECT can be tank mixed with other herbicides and insecticides. The pre-harvest interval with SELECT is 15 days. To find out how to start kicking some serious grass in your alfalfa, ask your ag chem dealer about SELECT 2EC Herbicide.

SELECT – It really kicks grass!

FreshStart™ Mega EXT 20%

Post-Fresh Transition Cows

FreshStart Mega EXT 20% is a high-performance Transition supplement for fresh, lactation cows. FreshStart EXT products incorporate Purina's Research in energy, starch, mineral and vitamin feeding technology to enhance performance of post-fresh transition cows.

FreshStart Mega EXT 20% is designed to feed 14 to 21 days after freshening at a feed rate of 3 to 4 pounds per head per day.

Super Palatability – Maximizes dry matter intake. Helps reduce weight loss Supports greater early lactation production

High ME Level – High energy level delivers more energy, reducing the weight loss associated with high production. University research shows that lessening early lactation weight loss improves breeding efficiency

Optimize Starch Intake – Deliver the correct balance of starch. Assures delivery of glucose that high producing cows need to maximize performance

Contains Hi-VAP – High Biological Value Available Protein. Purina's patented protected protein delivers a consistent protein source to the small intestines Hi-VAP supports high milk output

Pelleted Feed – Maximizes consistency.

CLAAS® harvesting equipment delivers high-quality hay for your herd demands

Variable chamber and fixed chamber round balers produce dense, weather-tight bales that resist spoiling. Choose ROLLATEX® net wrap or twine. Heavy-duty disc mowers and disc mower conditioners cut efficiently and evenly. Field-proven tedders gently spread hay up to 33' to accelerate dry down. Single and multi-rotor rakes with tandem axles and high capacity adjust to uneven ground conditions to produce uniform, fluffy windrows.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
April 19, 2002
Oops! Butter Imports Actually More Expensive

- Over-TRQ rate on butter is $0.70/pound.
- Special safeguard rate should be added.
- Milk forecast to increase 3 percent this year.

Last week I reported that world butter prices were just $0.45 per pound and that the cost of importing butter should be just $1.22 per pound. Well, like my forecasts, I was off just a bit.

A few sharp readers of this column e-mailed that I wasn't reflecting the whole story. It seems that there are two levels of tariff or duties on butter imported in excess of the TRQ level (the quota).

The "general rate of duty" is $1.541 per kilogram, or $0.699 per pound (it is not 30.9 cents/kilogram reported last week). Thus I reasoned that if the world price was $0.45 per pound and freight was $0.09 per pound, you could land butter in the U.S. for something like $1.22-$1.23 per pound. I did not, however, reflect the "special safeguard provision."

The safeguard provision is a duty or tariff that increases as the world price falls. This was designed to prevent a surge in imports if global butter prices suddenly fell, as they did this year. The schedule I received for 2002 indicates that if the world price of butter were less than $0.27 per pound, the special duty rate would be $0.411 per pound. At a world price of $0.45 per pound the special duty rate is $0.275 per pound. This rate falls all the way to zero when the global price of butter rises to more than $1.09 per pound.

So, the correct example for a world price of $0.45 per pound is 0.992 cents per kilogram and $992 per metric ton. The applicable tariffs are $0.699 per pound for the general rate, and $0.275 for the special duty rate. Adding freight will bring the landed cost of imported butter up to $1.514 per pound. This does not include other small fees for customs, docking, inland freight, etc.

The point is, domestic butter prices would have to be above $1.50 per pound before it would pay someone to import butter from overseas.

USDA announced this week that March milk production for 20 select states was up 3.2 percent from a year ago. While this sounds like a lot, it's really not, when you consider that milk production last year was depressed.

I did some computing and put together my forecast for U.S. milk production for the rest of 2002 (see Table 2 on the Website). My numbers suggest that relative to 2001, cows will decline only 0.2 percent, milk per cow will rise more than 3 percent, and total U.S. milk production will go up 3 percent.

This should be considered a conservative figure. My milk production forecast is up just 1.6 percent relative to milk production two years ago (in 2000). Some of my 2002 forecast looks like a lot of milk, but U.S. milk production normally increases 1.7 percent each year. In addition, milk consumption normally increases at least this much.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

In these current times when everything changes so quickly, when it's 50° one day and 20° the next,when the market is skyrocketing one day and plummeting the next, when the seed companies you have depended on for so long are here one day and gone the next, we'd like you to remember that Doebler's is here today and will also be here tomorrow. With its conservative, family business history of over 67 years, its goal is, has been, and will continue to be consistent growth. What this means to you is a partnership which you cannot afford to be without.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
April 24, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Grain and soybean bids continued as is today with weather and the ongoing Economic problems in Argentina leading the band. Wheat mostly 1 to 2 cents lower except Portland 5 cents higher. Soybeans mixed, 1 cent lower to 1 cent higher. Sorghum 2 cents lower. Soybeans 5 to 8 cents higher.

More rainfall forecast in the Southern Plains remained the major weakening factor in wheat bids. No export announcements overnight for wheat but Tuesday's soft white wheat sale to Egypt still limiting declines.

Corn bids continued to hover around steady with nothing major happening to start a rally. Export interest is still slow this week for corn. Planting delays in the eastern Corn Belt continue as more moisture is forecast. Dryer areas are seeing progress.

A small overnight export sale to Taiwan and the ongoing chaos in Argentina has kept strength in soybeans for the second day.

EXPORT SALES: PURCHASER COMMODITY TONNAGE DELIVERY DATE Taiwan Soybeans 54,000 July

THESE MAY NOT BE THE ONLY EXPORT SALES THAT HAVE TRANSPIRED, BUT THEY ARE THE ONLY SALES THAT COULD BE CONFIRMED BY USDA GRAIN MARKET NEWS.

Penn State Honors Muller

Dr. Lawrence Muller and wife Dee. Muller was honored for his service to the Penn State Dairy Science Club.

BECCA GREGOR
Penn State Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club honored former club adviser Dr. Lawrence Muller at the Penn State Dairy Exposition here recently.

Muller retired as club adviser after 25 years of service, but he will continue teaching at Penn State.

"Dr. Muller was known in the club for always being available for students," said Penn State junior and club officer, Lori Connelly, 21, of Pennsylvania Furnace. "He has taken the club to new levels as far as professionalism and excellence."

Muller said he has enjoyed the relationships he has built with students in the Dairy Science Club during his time as adviser. "I'll miss working closely with students and getting to know them on a personal basis," Muller said. "It has been rewarding seeing them grow, learn, develop, mature, and gain self-confidence."

Former club members returned for the expo and to show their appreciation for Muller. "It's a great reward to see them doing well in their careers, starting families, and in leading organizations," Muller said. "A lot of students become good citizens who have an impact on society and agriculture."

Connelly said she will also miss the time that she and other club members have spent with Muller and his wife, Dee. "They have been really active in taking the club on spring trips and they've gotten to know many students personally," Connelly said.

Muller was not only a friend to club members, though - he encouraged students to succeed in a way that let them know he cared, Connelly said. "He was great at pushing club members as well as being a friend," Connelly said.

To show its appreciation, the club gave Muller a plaque with an engraving honoring him as "Mentor, Advisor, and Friend." The plaque also contained snapshots from his time with the club. In addition, Muller received a poster-sized portrait of himself — students, fellow faculty, and friends signed the border of the photo with expressions of gratitude and best wishes.

An expert in dairy science, Muller grew up on a dairy farm in Illinois and earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in dairy science from the University of Illinois. He then earned his doctorate in animal science from Purdue University. Muller joined the Penn State faculty and began working as adviser for the Dairy Science Club in 1976.

Since then, Muller has sought to help students reach their full potential. The Mullers began an undergraduate scholarship fund and currently assist two recipients. A hand-carved wooden sculpture of a cow and her calf was auctioned at the expo to raise money for the Muller scholarship. Don Ace carved the sculpture, which went for $5,350.

"Onward and upward," Muller said about the future of the Penn State Dairy Science Club. "This club has been number one in the U.S. eight years in a row!" he said.

Muller said that he is confident that the club will continue to excel and grow under the leadership of co-advisers Dale Olver and Dr. Ronald Kensinger, who was chosen as an adviser after Muller's retirement.

Kensinger grew up in West Chester, Ill. and received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Illinois and his doctorate in animal science from the University of Florida. He joined the Penn State faculty in 1982 and he works with the American Dairy Science Association, the Endocrine Society, and the American Society for Nutritional Sciences. He also currently serves as the 2001-2004 director of the American Society of Animal Science.

Governor Honors Groups, Individuals For Watershed Stewardship

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Mark Schweiker honored 25 Pennsylvania organizations and individuals from 23 counties April 16 for their outstanding achievements in environmental protection during the Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship ceremony.

"The Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship program, now in its third year, recognizes Pennsylvanians who are making a positive difference in our environment by protecting the commonwealth's valuable watershed," Schweiker said. "In just two years, 50 award winners have removed 143,760 pounds of trash, installed 61,564 feet of streambank fencing, stabilized 7,452 feet of streambank, restored 44,271 feet of land along waterways, and created 2,000 acres of wetlands.

"These accomplishments are the result of partnerships, as this year's winners have forged 191 partnerships and formed 52 watershed organizations. It's because of such partnerships that Pennsylvania continues to be a leader in watershed stewardship."

The Governor's Award for Watershed Stewardship honors organizations and individuals for improving Pennsylvania's environment. The awards are presented in four categories: watershed partnership, watershed assessment and planning, watershed protection and restoration, and watershed demonstrations, education, and outreach.

New this year is the Watershed Stewardship Educator of the Year Award, which was presented to Michael Yeager, an environmental education teacher at the Milton Area High School in Northumberland County. This award recognizes educators whose accomplishments demonstrate the importance of environmental education as a key component in preparing future watershed stewards.

Yeager was selected on the basis of his work leading a student watershed-preservation project on Limestone Run. During the last two years, the project has grown to include several of Yeager's environmental-studies classes as they have analyzed the entire Limestone Run watershed, which stretches 11.6 square miles.

Land O'Lakes Reports First Quarter Loss

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc., has reported a first quarter net loss of $1.0 million, as compared to net earnings of $13.0 million for the first quarter of 2001. Sales for the quarter were $1.52 billion, up 10.8 percent from one year ago, primarily the result of the October 2001 Purina Mills acquisition. Excluding Purina Mills, sales would have declined 4.8 percent.

Officials of the national dairy and agricultural cooperative indicated that among the significant factors contributing to the results were: soft early-year demand in key Dairy Foods product areas; weather-related delays in the agronomy season; expenses related to the integration of the recently acquired Purina Mills into Land O'Lakes Farmland Feed; and the impact of high input (milk) costs on the company's Upper Midwest dairy manufacturing operations.

Partly offsetting these factors were incremental earnings and synergies from the Purina Mills acquisition; improvements in hog prices from last year; and reduced energy costs.

Land O'Lakes reported positive momentum as the quarter closed, with $10.7 million in net earnings for March.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Ellen M. Gall of Fayetteville, N.Y., has joined Dairylea Cooperative Inc. as vice president of finance.

In this role, Gall is responsible for banking and banking relations, cash management, and overall financial analysis and direction of the Cooperative's various business units, including business ventures and acquisitions.

SRBC Reviews Drought Conditions In Basin

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Members of the Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) met April 11 in State College and reviewed precipitation information and other drought indicators.

Though the month of March had actually produced a slight surplus in precipitation, the previous five consecutive months going back to October 2001 produced significant precipitation deficits. Overall, 17 of the last 21 months have been in deficit.

The effects of the winter drought are still very much in evidence throughout the basin and especially in the lower Susquehanna Subbasin, where seasonal low flow and groundwater level records have been broken. There is little evidence of lasting recovery from the March rains, owing largely to the fact that this drought has origins tracing back as far as 1998. Prospects for recovery in the coming months are bleak because of the spring and summer emergence of tree foliage and vegetation.

Continuing dry conditions have led Pennsylvania to declare a drought emergency in 24 counties, many in the lower Susquehanna Subbasin. This emergency declaration has triggered certain restrictions on non-essential water use and other conservation measures. New York has placed Otsego and Delaware counties in the drought warning category, with the remaining Susquehanna drainage counties remaining in a watch stage. In Maryland, a drought emergency was declared for the central region of the state on April 5, covering all or portions of the four counties comprising the Susquehanna River Basin Maryland.

In support of its member jurisdictions, the commission adopted a resolution declaring a drought emergency in Pennsylvania and Maryland counties in the lower Susquehanna River Basin. The commission met again by conference call on April 15 to extend the effective date of that declaration to April 24, pending further coordination with Pennsylvania and Maryland on current drought indicators and on the effects of an interstate emergency declaration both within and outside of the emergency area.

NASS Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

AG CENSUS SCREENING UNDER WAY!

About 600,000 potential farms and ranches across the country will receive a 2002 Farm Identification Survey in the mail over the next few weeks. The intent of the survey is to identify agricultural operations for the 2002 Census of Agriculture.

Many people who do not consider themselves to be farmers or ranchers actually qualify as a farm and are important to the 2002 Census of Agriculture. The term "farm" includes much more than just field crops, hay, fruit, vegetables, cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, and chickens. Agriculture includes many other products such as nursery and greenhouse products, sod, maple syrup, Christmas trees, mushrooms, aquaculture, honey, horses, other equine, llamas, fur-bearing animals, rabbits, wild game, elk, bison, deer, exotic livestock, emus, ostriches, pheasant, and quail.

Some folks say they are retired from agriculture because they produce much less crops or livestock than when they were actively farming. However, for example, someone who is retired and now only has a few head of cattle and cuts a few acres of hay is still considered an active farm for the Ag Census.

The Farm Identification Survey consists of seven short questions which will help determine agricultural status. Simple "yes" or "no" questions will ask about growing crops or raising livestock in any quantity. The short survey should take less than five minutes to complete and mail in the postage-paid envelope.

More than 11,000 surveys will be sent to potential farms in Pennsylvania. In surrounding states, the approximate counts are as follow: about 12,000 in New York, 7,500 in New Jersey, 5,000 in Maryland, 1,500 in Delaware, and about 4,000 in West Virginia.

Responses to this survey and the 2002 Census of Agriculture are mandatory under Title 7, U.S. Code, which also assures the information provided is confidential and will not be provided to any individual or organization. The 2002 Census of Agriculture forms will be sent to 2.75 million potential farms and ranches in December 2002. For additional information about the Farm Identification Survey or the 2002 Census of Agriculture, get online at www.usda.gov/nass/ or call toll-free, (888) 4AG-STAT or (888)424-7828.

Orchard And Vineyard Update

Few people realize Pennsylvania's prominent position in fruit production on the national level. In 2000, Pennsylvania ranked fifth in peach, apple, and grape production, sixth in pear and tart cherry production, and ninth in sweet cherry production.

Annually, the commonwealth's farm gate value of fruit production is approximately $91 million. The fruit industry is a dynamic and important part of the state's agricultural economy.

Since 1953, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service has conducted an Orchard and Vineyard Survey approximately every five years. The upcoming 2002 Orchard and Vineyard survey is the 11th such census of fruit producers.

As in the past, the goal of the survey is to provide information regarding fruit tree numbers, acreage by age and variety, rootstock information, and intentions for future plantings. This survey will be conducted by mail, telephone, and personal interviews over the next several months.

All operators contacted by phone or in person will receive a letter before the interview. We hope to contact growers before the 2002 harvest season is in full swing.

Pennsylvania growers benefit from the information collected during this survey. For instance, the published report:

- Gives growers an overview of Pennsylvania's fruit industry to better plan and manage their operations.
- Helps grower organizations formulate legislative and marketing policy based on grower supply projections.
- Helps extension and university staff design research and educational programs for growers.
- Aids county emergency boards in assessing crop damage in relation to potential production in the county.
- Allows input suppliers to plan/change research and development programs to meet grower needs.

Only by contacting producers who grow the crops can accurate data about the ever -changing industry be collected and published. Complete and timely reporting by growers will ensure that reliable, objective data on current commercial fruit production are available to the public and the industry.

Accurate industry statistics are crucial to obtaining research funding and government support on various issues. The survey results provide a reliable source of public information for all members of our industry as well as for industry representatives working with policymakers at the state and national levels.

As with all our surveys, individual information is confidential and protected by federal law (U.S. Code, Title 7). Results will be published only in statistical totals so that no individual data can be discovered or calculated.

PACD Announces Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm Award Winner

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Dan, Dave, Steven, and Susan Wolf, owners and operators of Wolf Farms Inc., York County, have been selected to receive the 2002 Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm Award.

The Wolfs will be recognized during the Pennsylvania Association of Conservations Districts Inc. (PACD) Annual Conservation Awards Program July 22 in Harrisburg.

In addition to a plaque, the award recipients will receive a large "Clean Water Farm Award" sign to erect on their property, advertising their commitment to protecting water quality.

The Wolf family has worked diligently to install and maintain Best Management Practices (BMPs) that control soil erosion and prevent excess fertilizers and pesticides from entering streams and groundwater supplies.

The family's farming legacy dates back to the 1920s. Through the years, the size of the farm has grown and the Wolfs have managed to incorporate no-till farming extensively into their operation. They practice no-till on all of their land except their fruit tree orchards, where there is minimal soil disturbance. By doing so, the Wolfs have greatly reduced cropland runoff that could otherwise impact both local and downstream water quality.

According to the York County Conservation District staff, who nominated Wolf Farms, Inc. for the award, the family's stewardship ethic serves as an example of how farmers "take care of business" while keeping an eye on water quality.

In Pennsylvania more than half of the state's 67 counties are located within the Susquehanna River Drainage Basin. Water ways within the drainage basin serve as a lifeline to the Chesapeake Bay by providing nearly half of its fresh water. Sound agricultural practices, such as those maintained by the Wolfs, are critical to insuring that clean water enters the Bay.

Bus Tour Looks At Conservation Practices In Westmoreland County

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess went on a tour sponsored by the Westmoreland Conservation District April 12 to review conservation practices that are protecting and improving the quality of water in western Pennsylvania.

Hess made the tour with Rep. Jess Stairs (R-Westmoreland) and representatives of Rep. Thomas Tangretti (D-Westmoreland) and Senators Allen Kukovich (D-Westmoreland) and Sean Logan (D-Westmoreland).

"This tour is proof of the hope and enthusiasm Growing Greener has sparked for the protection and restoration of Pennsylvania's watersheds," Hess said. "Being here today, sharing your success, you have taken the next step in sustaining this legacy."

Hess spoke over lunch during a break in the tour at St. Vincent College, sharing his views and vision for environmental policy that will affect the future health of our watersheds. Students from St. Vincent College interested in environmental issues were asked to join the group at lunch.

The tour began at the Center for Conservation Education at the Westmoreland Conservation District where the group viewed the infiltration parking lot installed as a local Eagle Scout Project. The tour featured stream corridor restoration and a riparian buffer demonstration area at Rep. Jess Stairs' farm.

One of the features on the tour were agricultural management sites on several farms throughout the Whitehorn Creek and Kiski-Conemaugh watershed areas that were funded through a $209,500 Growing Greener grant. The grant, awarded to the Westmoreland Conservation District, will reduce nutrient and sediment loading to the watersheds.

Senate Ag Committee Passes Legislation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Sen. Mike Waugh, chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, announced the passage of two bills from the Committee this week.

HB 2398, sponsored by Rep. Raymond Bunt, Jr. (R-Montgomery), is the companion bill to Sen. Waugh's SB 1045, passed by the Senate on April 10. Both pieces of legislation would amend the Job Enhancement Act to include "agricultural producers" in the category of small business enterprises, which would make farmers eligible for Small Business First low interest loans through the Department of Community and Economic Development. Additional amendments to the Act would provide producers with the opportunity to take advantage of low interest rate loans during a natural disaster, such as a drought.

"We realize that agricultural producers are in business just as every other small business enterprise is. For that reason, it only makes sense to include them as such an enterprise and to allow them to take part in this program," Waugh said.

SB 1413, sponsored by Sen. Roger Madigan (R-Lycoming), adds language to the Right to Farm Law to more clearly state that no municipal ordinance or policy may be contrary to the Right to Farm Law or any other Commonwealth law. Additionally, local regulations must be consistent with current law and an aggrieved party may institute an action in court. Fees and costs may be awarded to the prevailing party.

Both bills now go to the full Senate for consideration.

Farm Bureau Presents Concerns

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A statewide farm leader recently outlined farmers' concerns over three issues currently before the General Assembly — water resource planning, anti-farming local ordinances and proposed budget cuts for agricultural programs.

Guy Donaldson, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, addressed the issues at a banquet attended by state legislators and nearly 400 farmers. Earlier the farmers had visited personally with their legislators to discuss farm issues as part of Farm Bureau's annual Harrisburg Legislative Conference.

Addressing the need to update water planning legislation, Donaldson said, "The existing mechanism for managing water is old, dating back to the late 1920s. We desperately need a coordinated plan for water use."

With seven bills introduced in the House and Senate and several hearings already held on water resource legislation, Donaldson repeated Farm Bureau's priorities. "Of prime importance is the need to update the state water plan," he said. "Before we regulate, we must know all we can about the resource — where it is plentiful and where it is in short supply.

"Secondly, the agriculture community is extremely concerned that local government could be given the power to regulate water use."

Some municipalities could abuse this power by limiting agriculture's use of water in an attempt to limit animal agriculture in their township, Donaldson said. "In this way, the local municipality could run farmers out of business."

Farm Bureau wants policy makers to know, "that agriculture must be given priority for water in emergency situations," he said.

"Finally, water resource policy must be made on the basis of human needs," Donaldson said. "If food production is important, it makes no sense to develop regulations based upon the needs of plants or other animal species. Farmers must not be told to give up needed water use to enable the nearby stream to increase flow to accommodate the supply of fish and other aquatic animals."

Turning to the issue of anti-agriculture ordinances being adopted by some local townships, Donaldson said. "The business of farming has come under siege in recent years, while at the same time survey after survey shows the public holds the family farmer in high regard," he said.

"The siege is coming from groups that want to limit the size and growth of farming, if not eliminate animal farming altogether. These groups operate under the disguise of 'saving the family farm' when in reality, if they are successful, they would destroy the family farm," he said.

"These local ordinances assure our 'small' family farmers the ability to continue farming as long as they remain small. Now that is a sure formula for killing the family farm. Profits are slim enough in the farming business. If you limit our ability to grow, you also destroy our ability to stay in business."

Farm Bureau supports Senate Bill 826 which would require townships that enact discriminatory ordinances against agriculture to reimburse legal costs to farmers who successfully challenge these ordinances in court.

Donaldson also pointed out that Governor Schweiker's budget proposal for fiscal year 2002-2003 contains several funding cuts in key agricultural programs which Farm Bureau would like to see restored.

Penn State Cooperative Extension Capitol Region Dairy Team

PARASITE CONTROL IN HEIFERS
Dr. Arlen Mills
Extension Veterinarian
Capitol Region

Research has shown that Holstein heifers should calve between 22.5-23.5 months of age to maximize lifetime performance. But it has also been shown that weight at calving has a greater impact on first lactation performance than did calving age.

This suggests that heifers be bred by weight and not just by age. This dictates that Holstein heifers weigh 750 to 850 pounds when bred to produce a fresh heifer that weighs in at 1,250 pounds.

One hindrance to raising heifers that meet these standards can be intestinal and stomach worms. We occasionally see the heifer that has been devastated by parasites, but much more common is the chronic parasitism that results in reduced growth.

Roundworms are the most devastating internal parasite of cattle. These include the brown stomach worm, Ostertagia. All of these worms share a common life cycle. In an infected animal, adult worms produce eggs that are expelled from the host in the feces, contaminating the pasture. A pasture can remain contaminated for up to a year.

Once the eggs are passed unto the pasture, they hatch and become immature worms called larvae. Infection of a new host occurs when these larvae are consumed with blades of grass. These swallowed larvae mature in the new host, starting the life cycle all over again.

The level of parasite infestation in livestock and pastures varies with season and management practices. Parasite activity peaks in the spring, varies during the summer depending on conditions, and declines during a normal winter. Therefore, steps to control worm problems should focus on the times of higher worm activity.

Age of livestock should also influence decisions concerning parasites. Younger cattle are more susceptible to worm infections. A mature cow under a good nutrition program will develop some acquired immunity to parasites, so is less bothered by their presence than young cattle. Thus parasite control should focus on the young livestock.

Therefore, focus parasite control on young stock during the time of high worm activity and combine management with proper use of deworming medications.

Deworming medications should be used in a timely manner so as to reduce infection before symptoms of disease occur. Treatment should be aimed at interrupting the life cycle of the parasite in an effort to minimize pasture contamination.

Dr. Arlen Mills

There are a number of dewormers on the market. Most of these products are either avermectins/milbemycins (ivermectin, doramectin, eprinomectin, and moxidectin) or benzimidazoles (oxfendazole, albendazole, and fendbendazole). Avermectins/milbemycins have the advantages of providing control of some external parasites and persistent protection for days to weeks after treatment.

Putting this all together, we need to concentrate our efforts on controlling parasites in the young, growing stock by timely use of dewormers to limit contamination of pastures or lots. This will limit parasite burdens in the most susceptible stock. To do this, all young stock should be treated with an appropriate dewormer prior to being tuned out onto a lot or pasture. This should be done each spring in March or April to counter the spring rise in worm activity. If possible, place less susceptible, mature cattle on contaminated pastures and attempt to prevent overgrazing. Animals on overgrazed pastures graze closer to the ground and pick up more worm larvae.

Animals on pasture may need to be dewormed again in midsummer as worm egg counts tend to rise in lots or pastures where livestock are maintained. A final treatment needs to be done in the fall to remove any remaining worms. At this time, be sure to use a product that removes external parasites as well before animals are grouped for winter housing.

Having your veterinarian do fecal egg counts can monitor levels of parasite infection and treatment success. Realistically, a herd should be sampled on multiple occasions to determine worm prevalence.

Most losses because of worm infestations go unnoticed because of the chronic nature of the problem. But this does not diminish the magnitude of the end result. Parasite control in young stock will provide a significant return on your investment.

100 Inducted Into 4-H Hall Of Fame

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

CHEVY CHASE, Md. — One hundred people who have made a significant impact on 4-H at the local, state, or national level were inducted into the National 4-H Hall of Fame on April 11 during the National 4-H Conference.

Existing exclusively in cyberspace, the National 4-H Hall of Fame is unique with the honorees featured on their own Webpages which can be accessed at www.nae4ha.org/hof.

The National Association of Extension 4-H Agents (NAE4-HA) created the National 4-H Hall of Fame as part of the 4-H Centennial celebration. Each person's Webpage features his or her photograph, a brief biography, and a quote. Some also have pictures of 4-H'ers and activities that go back to the early 20th century.

Many of those being honored in cyberspace died years ago, but they have not been forgotten for their service and contributions to 4-H.

This first class of 100 represents hundreds of thousands of dedicated volunteers and county, state, and national professional staff who have helped millions of young people learn valuable life skills through 4-H during the last 100 years.

The Centennial Class of 2002 includes 13 4-H pioneers, 29 state extension directors, state program leaders or state staff, six major donors, nine county 4-H agents, 10 of the founders of NAE4-HA, 11 long-term volunteers (many with 50 or more years of service), three state or national government officials, six national program leaders, a songwriter, an astronaut, and several very successful business persons.

Every state and Washington, D.C. had at least one nominee inducted, as well as individuals from the National 4-H Council, 4-H/USDA, and the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents.

From the Northeast/Mid-Atlantic states, the 4-H Hall of Fame includes Connecticut: Bernie Assard; Delaware: Sam Gwinn; Massachusetts: Sonny Almeida; Maine: Gladys Concant, Fred Hutchinson; Maryland: Phyllis Cox, Norman Lawton; New Hampshire: Ruth Kimball; New Jersey: Ted Blum, Catherine Rupner; New York: Albert Hoefer, Don Stiles, and Harold Wilman; North Carolina: Leary R. Hamil; Pennsylvania: Ursula Bell Linn, Charles McBride; Rhode Island: J. Whitney Bancroft; Vermont: Mary Cadson; Virginia: William Skelton; Washington, D.C.: Ann Harding; and West Virginia: William Kendrick, Mildred Fizer.

Honored for their work on behalf of the National 4-H Council were the late Norman C. Mindrum, Minnesota, a co-creator of the Council, who retired in 1982 as CEO; Grant A. Shrum, a major player in the creation of the council, who retired as president and CEO in 1986; Richard. J. "Dick" Sauer, who was president and CEO from 1989 to 2000; and Kathleen Flom, Rockville, Md., 4-H member in Minnesota. Flom was the 1933 Minnesota State Leadership winner, and subsequently active as a 4-H youth development educator both in Minnesota and at the national level. That involvement included 20 years in administrative positions at National 4-H Center, USDA, and the Government of Uganda until retirement in 1979.

Jim Davis, president of Paws, Inc. and the creator of the Garfield comic strip, was honored for his support of 4-H. Garfield is the 4-H's Centennial mascot, thanks to Davis, who was a 4-H member in Indiana.

From the agribusiness community, those inducted into the National 4-H Hall of Fame were Roger C. Beach, Houston, Texas, vice president of Unocal Corporation; Robert B. Gill, Mount Vernon, N.J., retired vice chairman of the board of the J.C. Penny Company, Inc.; Ralph W. Ketner, Salisbury, N.C., cofounder and chairman emeritus of the board of Food Lion, Inc.; Lynn D.W. Luckow, president and CEO of the Northern California Grantmakers; and Gene Swackhamer, Ph.D., Sparks. Md., employed in the agrifinance field, a former 4-H'er and winner of a college scholarship at the National 4-H Congress and creator the 4-H Council's Salute to Excellence volunteer recognition program.

Organic Standards Board To Meet May 6-8 In Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The USDA's National Organic Standards Board (NOSB) will meet May 6-8 at the Clarion Inn and Suites Conference Center, 2200 IH-35 South, Austin, Texas.

Meeting sessions will run from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. May 6, from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. May 7, and from 8 a.m.-11:30 a.m. May 8. All sessions are open to the public.

At this meeting, the NOSB will receive committee reports, an update from USDA's National Organic Program (NOP), and reports from the Board Policy Task Force and Composting Task Force. The NOSB will also review materials to determine if they should be recommended for inclusion on the National List of Allowed and Prohibited Substances.

Time has been scheduled for public comment on May 6, 8:45 a.m.-10:45 a.m., and May 8, 10 a.m.-11 a.m.

Those wishing to provide comments to the NOSB on any organic issue should mail requests to Katherine Benham, USDA-AMS-TMP-NOP, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW., Room 4008-S, AG Stop 0268, Washington, DC 20250-0200 or send requests by fax to (202) 205-7808 or by e-mail to katherine.benham@usda.gov.

For more information, call (202) 205-7806 or visit the National Organic Program website at www.ams.usda.gov/nop.

Milk Premium Hearing Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board will conduct a hearing May 1 for Milk Marketing Areas 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony and exhibits concerning whether an adjustment should be made to the current state-mandated over-order premiums of $1.65 per hundred pounds of Class I milk due to expire June 30.

The hearing will commence at 9 a.m. in Room 202 of the Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg.

Dairy Stakeholders Seek Pacesetter Nominations

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Do you know a producer in the Pennsylvania dairy industry who is successful at adopting new, more efficient ways of producing milk? Are you a member of an organization that has developed a unique program beneficial to the industry? Is there a company that you feel provides the visionary and innovative products or services that are essential to the survival of the Pennsylvania dairy industry? Any or all of the above would be good nominees for the 2002 Pacesetter Award, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

The Pacesetter Award recognizes those in the Pennsylvania dairy industry who bring positive recognition or advancement to the industry, create positive attitudes about the industry among producers and their families, or create a growing recognition by consumers that a healthy growing dairy industry is positive for everyone who lives and works in Pennsylvania. The award also recognizes dairy food processing and distribution businesses that maintain and invest in a long-term commitment to the Pennsylvania dairy food industry

"We created the award to recognize individuals or organizations who have contributed significantly to a positive image for Pennsylvania's dairy industry," said Ralph Heffner, Pacesetter committee chair.

Up to three recipients are presented with the Pacesetter Award each year. The Pacesetter Award may be presented at any function that provides winners with proper recognition. Past recipients include Land O'Lakes, Inc., Carlisle, Brubaker Farms, Mt. Joy, Tom Craig of Murmac Farms, Bellefonte, and John Hess of JoBo Holsteins, Gettysburg.

Nominations and self-nominations are accepted from anyone. Nominations should be submitted to the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Board of Directors. For an application, contact N. Alan Bair at (717) 948-6328 or nab4 @ psu.edu.

Financial Aid Expected To Relieve Farmer Drought Woes

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A lack of moisture, over an extended period of time, has caused producers in Lancaster County to suffer from the effects of severe drought conditions. Farms experiencing severe drought conditions may be eligible for cost-share assistance under the Emergency Conservation Program (ECP).

This disaster program is administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Farm Service Agency, which provides cost-share assistance if the damage is so severe that water available for livestock or orchards and vineyards has been reduced below normal to the extent that neither can survive without additional water.

A producer qualifying for ECP assistance may receive cost share not to exceed 64 percent of the cost of installing eligible temporary measures. Cost sharing for permanent measures is based on 50 percent of the total eligible cost. Cost-share assistance is limited to $200,000 per person natural disaster. Approved practices and measures may include:

- Installing pipelines or other facilities for livestock water or existing irrigation systems for orchards and vineyards.
- Constructing and deepening wells for livestock water.
- Developing springs or seeps for livestock water.

Producers who have experienced severe drought conditions requiring outside assistance to provide supplemental emergency livestock water may contact the Lancaster County FSA Office. Request for assistance will be accepted at the Lancaster County FSA from April 15 through June 13.

Normally, to be eligible for cost share, practices shall not be started until a request has first been filed at the FSA office and an onsite inspection of the problem area has been made by the County Committee or its representative. A special extension will be considered for those who already implemented these practices, but an approval is not guaranteed. Post implementation requests must be made by April 30.

At this time, funding has yet been received from Washington, D.C.; therefore, approvals are contingent upon the availability of this funding request.

For more information, contact the Lancaster County Farm Service Agency located at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, or phone (717) 397-6235.

Forest Landowners Workshop June 28

W. PITTSTON (Luzerne Co.) — Forest landowners are invited to attend a daylong workshop entitled "Planning For Your Forest's Future: Understanding Forest Ecology," June 28.

This hands-on workshop will focus on forest ecology, developing a forest stewardship plan for your land, understanding how harvesting effects the forest, and how to find the right resource professional to help you manage your forest and plan for the future.

Dr. Jim Finley of the Penn State School of Forest Resources will be leading the workshop.

The workshop is scheduled for 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Friday, June 28, at Grey Towers, home of Gifford Pinchot in Milford. Space is limited to 50 participants and advance registration is required. Call the Penn State Extension office at (570) 825-1701 for more information and registration.

DEP Responds To Manure Spill Near Fulton County Stream

CRYSTAL SPRING (Fulton Co.) — DEP responded to a manure spill at Fowler Farms located here, according to DEP South-central Regional Director Michael R. Steiner.

The liquid manure flowed across the property and into springs, ending up in an unnamed tributary to Brush Creek, a stream that's designated a High Quality stream by DEP.

"We know that the 4-year-old farm had a current nutrient management plan," Steiner said. "However, poor management practices resulted in the discharge of this manure."

The farm, located on Hanks Road, raises approximately 2,000 swine. The full impact of the manure release is still being evaluated, but the cleanup contractor was brought in by DEP under provisions of state law that apply to an emergency environmental cleanup to dig trenches to intercept manure flow.

"DEP continues to work with the State Fish and Boat Commission, the Fulton County Emergency Management Agency, and the Brush Creek Township Sewage Enforcement Officer to assess the environmental damage and assure a proper cleanup," Steiner said.

According to Steiner, the under-the-floor storage pit is designed to hold 770,000 gallons of manure; however, the manure exceeded this capacity and flowed into the unnamed tributary.

State regulations require owners and operators of manure storage pits to keep the manure level low enough that there is not danger of overflow. The requirements are one foot for concrete structures and two feet for earthen structures. Fowler's facility is a concrete structure.

DEP inspectors issued a report to the Fowlers outlining necessary actions to take to prevent further pollution. DEP and the Fulton County Conservation District will continue to conduct follow-up inspections of the facility until the situation is rectified. Enforcement options are being evaluated.

For more information, contact Community Relations Coordinator Karen Sitler at (717) 705-4904 or e-mail ksitler@state.pa.us.

AMS Issues Final Rule On Lamb Checkoff Program

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) has issued the final rule establishing a national, industry-funded lamb promotion, research, and information program.

The program will provide for an industry board to carry out promotion, research, and information programs designed to increase the demand for lamb and lamb products.

Under the program, lamb producers, seedstock producers, feeders, and exporters will pay an assessment of one-half cent ($.005) per pound when live lambs are sold. The first handler, primarily packers, will pay an additional 30 cents per head of lambs purchased by the first handler for slaughter.

Howard County Farmers' Markets To Open

Ginger S. Myers
Agriculture Economic Development Specialist
Howard County Economic Development Authority

Location, location, location. The Howard County Farmers' Market, LLC, will operate in two new locations during the 2002 market season.

The market operates May-November, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 2:30-6:30 p.m., and is a producer-only market. This means that market vendors can sell only what they have grown or processed. No reselling is permitted.

The Tuesday market is being hosted by the Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church, 5901 Cedar Fern Ct., Columbia. It will operate from 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., beginning Tuesday, May 7, and will run through Tuesday, Oct. 29.

The Thursday market will be at the East Columbia Library, 660 Cradlerock Way, Columbia. It will operate from 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., beginning May 9 and will run through Thursday, Nov. 21.

The markets will hold several special and seasonal events that will include both good, locally-grown food, and family oriented entertainment. These include a Grand Opening Day, Thursday, May 9; a Garlic Festival during the last week in June and the first week in July; a Corn Festival the last week in July; a Peach Festival in mid-August; and a Fall Festival the last week in September.

Farmers' markets have quickly become a major sales outlet for agricultural producers nationwide because they provide fresh farm products to consumers, give growers an outlet for their goods, and help strengthen the link between rural and urban communities. The number of farmers' markets in the U.S. has grown dramatically, increasing 63 percent in the last six years.

The Howard County Farmers' Markets are producer-only markets. This means that market vendors can sell only what they have grown or processed. No reselling is permitted.

For more information about buying or selling at the markets, contact Dave Shaw, Howard County Market Master, at (410) 531-9577.

New Trust Director Brings Vision To Farmland Preservation

the Trust as director of land preservation, visiting Lancaster County farm families and farms to encourage and assist in preserving them.

"I really loved that job," Schellenger said. "You get to meet so many people."

With the full-time staff trimmed from five people to four, however, serving as new executive director won't leave Schellenger officebound. She will continue to do what she enjoys doing most, including farm visits.

Originally from a small farm in Maine, Schellenger went on to earn a degree in civil engineering. She and her husband spent several years overseas working on natural resource conservation projects before moving to Pennsylvania.

Schellenger first came to the Lancaster Farmland Trust in 1998 as a land preservation specialist, combining skills such as geographic information system (GIS) mapping with her vision of saving farmland and natural resources.

She then became director of land preservation under Stouffer for two years before taking over as interim executive director this past January. She was officially hired in March.

Part of the Trust's work includes sending letters to farmowners in targeted areas of the county, encouraging them to preserve their land. But Schellenger said the number of farmers calling the office on their own initiative is increasing.

"I'm starting to have a real sense of urgency," she said.

Between the private, nonprofit Lancaster Farmland Trust and the publicly administered Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board, more than 45,000 acres on 750 farms have been preserved so far. Since it was established in 1988, the Trust has helped preserve more than 9,100 of the acres.

With a total of 390,000 acres of farmland in the county and 1,000 to 2,500 acres lost to development each year — depending on the information source — Schellenger said a lot of work remains.

She cultivates a positive relationship with the Ag Preserve Board, sharing the common goal of preserving farmland and farmers.

"I don't care who they preserve their farms with, I just want to see them preserved," Schellenger said. "It's all about maintaining the critical mass of farmland in the area."

She praises the Lancaster County Planning Commission's urban growth boundary program, started in the early 1990s. Planners work with local communities to designate urban growth areas that limit sprawl and protect farms.

Schellenger's responsibilities include reviewing farms for preservation, writing easements, managing office staff, and working with other land trusts across Pennsylvania.

Fundraising is an ongoing part of the job. One large source of funds — a three-year, $750,000 grant from the William Penn Foundation — is expiring this year, Schellenger said.

Dues and donations from more than 2,000 members make up a substantial part of Trust monies.

The Lancaster Farmland Trust preserves and protects farms through the purchase of conservation easements, encouragement of effective agricultural zoning, a conservation buyer program that matches prospective buyers with farms to be preserved, and good relationships with farm community members.

While the Trust generally pays farmowners less for conservation easements than the Ag Preserve Board pays, Schellenger said there are a number of advantages to farmers preserving through the Trust. These include working with a nongovernment organization, much shorter waiting periods, and tax benefits.

Most easements are either donated by farmowners or purchased by the Trust at "bargain-sale" prices. Average price paid to farmowners is about $490 per acre.

Schellenger said one of the goals of the Trust will be to make some of the financial benefits of land preservation available to future generations on the farm. Some legislators are looking into the possibility of better tax breaks for preserved farms, she noted.

"The great thing about this (job) is there are so many things I can do," she said. "It's exhilarating."

Poultry Exhibits Banned At All Pa. Events

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes notified the livestock expositions in the state Wednesday that there may not be any poultry exhibits effective immediately.

Hayes said, "There is a current outbreak of Avian Influenza in the Commonwealth of Virginia — of a very serious magnitude. And, there have been recent incidents elsewhere in eastern U.S., including Pennsylvania.

"Avian Influenza is prevalent and represents a serious threat to our poultry industry. Therefore, there is not to be any poultry exhibits at any Pennsylvania exposition, effective immediately. No feathers. This ban will remain in effect until further notice.

"This is not a preferred situation; but, we must protect our poultry industry. People's livelihoods are at risk. Avian health is at risk. Our ability to produce food for our citizens is at risk."

Also this week, Hayes sent a letter dated April 22 to the Hon. J. Carlton Courter III, commissioner of agriculture and consumer services in Virginia, that noted, "I will be most happy to make our H7N2 vaccine available for use in Virginia," wrote Hayes. "We have 3,600,000 doses."

In the letter, Hayes noted there are questions as to whether there is to be a vaccination program. "Therefore," he wrote, "I would release the vaccine to USDA for their interstate management of the Pennsylvania vaccine."

Conservation District Creates Self-Guided Stormwater BMP Tour

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Conservation District developed a "Stormwater Best Management Practices (BMP) Self-Guided Tour."

This self-guided tour features over 20 sites from around Chester County that demonstrate the use of stormwater BMPs.

The tour features BMPs that combine standard, innovative, and alternative practices and methods for managing and controlling stormwater runoff to protect water quality.

Its objective is to raise awareness among developers, designers, engineers, officials, watershed associations and conservation organizations about available alternatives to standard stormwater management methods.

"With encouragement from the District, municipalities, and watershed groups, we are seeing more developers consider BMPs that control stormwater runoff pollution, recharge groundwater supplies, and protect ecologically important lands along our creeks and their tributaries" says Dan Greig, conservation district manager.

The Conservation District conceived the tour as a way to broadcast and promote the use of stormwater BMPs in Chester County.

BMPs on the tour include: structural practices that slow the flow of fast-moving stormwater runoff and enhance stormwater infiltration; non-structural vegetated practices such as vegetated channels and wetlands that trap and filter pollutants from stormwater runoff; and institutional practices such as deed restrictions and conservation easements that limit mowing along stream banks.

The tour includes the following sites and townships: Branford Village, East Fallowfield; Triple Fresh Market, East Fallowfield; Applebrook Golf Course Community, East Goshen; and others.

The Kick-Off Tour will take place May 9 in honor of "May — Watershed Awareness Month." And will begin at the Chester County Government Services Center, 601 Westtown Road, in West Chester at 9 a.m. Following the tour, participants will be served refreshments, talk with exhibitors and see demonstrations on urban stormwater BMP products in the farmhouse area and parking lot of the Government Services Center. For more information, please contact the Chester County Conservation District, (610) 696-5126 or www.chesco.org/conservation.

Committee Endorses Bill To Protect Farmers' Rights

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A measure that would protect farmers against discriminatory local ordinances has been approved by the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, according to state Sen. Noah Wenger (R-36), who co-sponsored the bill.

"Unfortunately, some people who move into rural developments aren't willing to live with the sounds and odors from nearby farms," Wenger said. "As a result, they try to get ordinances passed to restrict legitimate farming operations. In a rapidly developing agricultural area like Lancaster County, that can be a serious problem."

Senate Bill 1413 would prohibit municipalities from passing ordinances that are inconsistent with existing state statutes that protect farmers, such as the state's Right to Farm law. The bill also clarifies that when farmers and municipalities dispute an ordinance in court, the winner will be awarded legal fees and court costs.

"Essentially, this bill clarifies existing law that has not been followed closely enough," Wenger said. "The measure is fair for farmers without placing new restrictions on local governments."

He noted that Senate Bill 1413 would not allow farmers to circumvent current environmental laws nor change existing ordinances and zoning laws.

"We need to ensure that farmers can do their jobs and encourage those who move to rural developments to understand that farming — our number one industry — involves animals, equipment, noise and odors," Wenger said. "Unfair ordinances that hamper agriculture are detrimental to our economy and threaten farmers' livelihoods and jeopardize our available food supply."

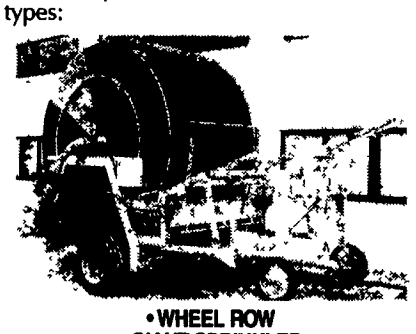
"TICO/FERBO HOSE REELS"

Now, a new generation of automatic hard hose reels that feature variable travel speed selection with automatic constant compensation to provide uniform irrigation over entire length of pass, and operate at low input pressure to easily, efficiently, economically irrigate or spread liquid manure.

TICO, a leader in irrigation systems for over 30 years, also offers these other types:



• WHEEL ROW
• GIANT SPRINKLER
• HAND MOVE • TRICKLE
• LIQUID MANURE AND WASTE WATER DISPOSAL

Also virtually all makes of couplers, fittings and gaskets, plus pumps, pipe, diesel, gas, and electric motors.

CHOOSE AMERICA'S PREMIER TRAVELER FROM TICO/FERBO

• 52 Different Models
• 5 Drive Systems • 15 Hose Lengths

From 30-630 gallons per minute output and with hose lengths from 395 ft. up to 1650 ft. Standard features include Automatic Speed Compensation, galvanized cart and stabilizer legs, turntable, pto wind-up and optional hydraulic legs and cart lifting.

Economic Irrigation: With low input pressure requirements and constant speed irrigation, FERBO Travelers remain the leaders in low cost automatic irrigation. There isn't another traveler available that is simpler to operate or less expensive to maintain.

Waste Water Disposal: Our engine driven travelers are the simplest and most accurate on the market. Our computer controlled speed regulation ensures 99% accuracy to meet Federal/State design criteria while our simple yet efficient engine/gearbox drive ensures low maintenance.

ROVATTI SLURRY PTO DRIVE PUMPS

Rovatti TL slurry pumps are high-pressure slurry pumps with a unique "bolt on" chopper system

The standard pump features a high efficiency open-vane impeller with an interchangeable wear-ring and fixed cutting blade to handle all but the very toughest of straw, hay or other difficult residuals. For these conditions, the chopper unit can be simply bolted to the pump where it is driven by the existing pump shaft, enabling it to handle virtually any waste products requiring chopping.

A number of additional features make these the most versatile and reliable units on the market:

- Special permanently lubricated mechanical seal for longer life
- Over-sized bearings
- Lubricated chopper shaft bearings
- Chopper shaft shear-pin to reduce risk of damage to the shaft and impeller
- A range of four tractor pto pumps and four bare-shaft pumps with flows from 105-1000 gpm
- Replaceable wear ring
- 540 rpm or 1000 rpm speeds
- Finest grade cast iron for high efficiency
- Unique water-cooled gearbox for extended gear life.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening. Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitis problems. Great for reproduction too! and cows will cycle better after freshening. We help rumen function over freshing. Less foot problems and less stress

This reduction would be the largest decrease in funding for agricultural research and extension in the modern history of the College of Agricultural Sciences, taking us back to staffing levels and program support that were available in the early nineties. Tuition increases have no bearing on these programs, since they are distinct line items in the budget. This, of course, is a recurring problem that is exacerbated this year by the proposed cut. Only the legislature can offset these shortfalls. Consequently, the College has initiated a hiring freeze on most positions and initiated a plan for program reduction until the funding situation clarifies.

For the people of the commonwealth, it is perhaps more important to put these proposed reductions in research and extension into a context of impact on programs. There is a very wide range of research and extension programs in the College of Agricultural Sciences, all of which are developed and in place to meet stakeholder needs and demands as determined by county-by-county needs assessment and statewide stakeholder meetings to define issues, create programs, and set priorities. A few of the larger and more visible programs of very high priority to the economic health of the commonwealth are illustrated below.

• The dairy foods industry is a major force in the U.S. economy, ranking approximately sixth at $20 billion, slightly below telecommunications and slightly ahead of the aerospace industry. It is Pennsylvania's leading agricultural enterprise and growing in presence and impact. It is also one of the largest in the U.S., ranking behind California and Wisconsin and just moving ahead of New York. The research, teaching and extension programs in the College of Agricultural Sciences represent a "joint venture" with this industry to insure a stable workforce, promote further economic development, and provide cutting edge research and technology transfer. The Dairy Alliance extension program, in place for approximately two years, is a direct outgrowth of this cooperation. The industry is requesting (demanding really) more assistance. The proposed budget will result in significantly reduced assistance to this key multibillion-dollar commonwealth industry.

• Pennsylvania is challenged with maintaining the security of its food and fiber sector, both as a matter of national security and economic vitality for the commonwealth. College research, teaching, and extension programs are hard at work in partnerships with stakeholders on such key problems as plum pox virus, West Nile virus, foot and mouth disease, and, most recently, an outbreak of avian influenza affecting a poultry industry that contributes hundreds of millions of dollars to the economy of commonwealth. In each case, we are asked to do more to fill the research gaps so that we can be more effective at detection, eradication, and ultimately prevention of these challenges to the security of our food and fiber system in Pennsylvania. The drought watch in most of Pennsylvania's counties further magnifies the gravity of these challenges to Pennsylvania's food and fiber sector. This proposed budget will dramatically reduce our ability to respond.

• Pennsylvania's hardwood forests are the most valuable in the U.S. and most of the world. Research, teaching, and extension programs conducted in partnership with this very large Pennsylvania industry are designed to insure that the forests are sustained for generations to come through new research, education, and extension activities. Current challenges such as drought, pest management issues including deer overbrowsing, watershed management, and economic challenges are pressing the industry to ask us to do more, yet this budget will reduce our ability to support this important industry and communities facing these challenges.

• We are so proud of our 4-H program in the U.S. as it celebrates its centennial anniversary this year. Pennsylvania's 4-H programs reach more than 123,000 youth, roughly half from farm, rural and small communities and half from urban areas and larger cities. It is one of the largest in the U.S., yet our communities know so well that this program should be growing to reach more youth not shrinking to reach fewer youth. The current budget will result in a smaller program in its centennial year at a time the youth of Pennsylvania require greater guidance and support.

The prominent examples above, though not an exhaustive listing, are illustrative of the range of high priority areas, determined by the people of the commonwealth, that are important to the economic vitality of the food and fiber sector of the state. Of the nearly 150 four-year institutions of higher education in Pennsylvania, no other institution provides teaching, research, and extension in any of these areas let alone all of them.

Therefore, if we are to address these priorities as the residents of the commonwealth have asked us to do, only the legislature through its support of the Agricultural Research and Agricultural Extension line items can provide the relatively small amount of citizens' resources to meet these needs.

Prospective Plantings Set For Major Pennsylvania Crops

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania farmers intend to plant more acres of wheat, soybeans, tobacco, and harvest more hay in 2002. Intentions to plant barley, oats, and corn are down for the 2002 season.

Wheat planting projections total 190,000 acres — up 12 percent from last year but five percent below the 2000 planted acres. Expected barley acreage is 65,000, down seven percent from 2001 and 15,000 acres less than were planted in 2000. Expected oats acreage is 145,000, down three percent from 2001 and 30,000 acres less than two years ago. Expected oats acreage for harvest is 115,000, unchanged from last year, 21 percent below two years ago.

For row crops, intended plantings of corn for all purposes are 1.45 million acres, down 10,000 acres or three percent from last year and 100,000 acres below two years ago. Soybean acreage is intended to be 415,000, one percent more than the 410,000 planted last year and 25,000 more acres than two years ago.

Farmers also intend to plant 15,000 acres of sorghum in 2002, up 36 percent or 4,000 acres from last year.

Intentions are to harvest 1,400 acres of Southern Maryland-type tobacco, 27 percent more acreage than a year ago. Pennsylvania seedleaf type tobacco harvested acreage is expected to be 2,000 acres, unchanged from last year.

Harvest intentions for all hay in 2002 is 1.7 million acres, up three percent from last year's harvest, but 100,000 acres below the all hay acreage of 2000.

Farmers in the U.S. intend to plant 79 million acres of corn for all purposes in 2002, up four percent from 2001 and down one percent from 2000. Expected acreage is up in many areas of the U.S. and virtually all areas of the Corn Belt.Soybean producers intend to plant 73 million acres in 2002, down two percent from last year. Reduced soybean acreage was offset by an expected increase in corn plantings in most areas.

In the March Agricultural Survey, randomly selected farmers across the U.S. were asked if they intended to plant varieties of corn that, through biotechnology, was resistant to herbicides, insects, or both, and/or soybean varieties that were herbicide resistant. Survey results indicated that on a national level, farmers intend to plant 22 percent of their corn acres to insect resistant varieties, compared to 18 percent a year ago; eight percent of their corn acres to herbicide resistant varieties, compared to seven percent a year ago; and two percent of their corn acres to stacked gene varieties, compared to one percent a year ago. Survey results also showed that on a national level farmers intend to plant 74 percent of their soybean acres to a herbicide resistant variety, compared to 68 percent last year.

Data users are reminded that actual acreages planted may vary from intentions because of the effects of weather, availability of production inputs, and changes in market conditions prior to planting.

Agway Strengthens Commitment To Feed Customers

SHIPPENSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Agway recently announced that it plans to focus on and commit resources to its animal feed, energy, fresh produce, and agricultural technologies businesses. Agway Feed and Nutrition's market share in the Northeast and its potential for growth are important reasons why the company is committed to this business, according to David E. Durr, president, Agway Feed and Nutrition.

"Feed is at the core of who we are as a cooperative and Agway is totally committed to growing its feed business," Durr said.

Beef Management Class Includes Field Trip

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELVERSON and GLENMOORE (Chester Co.) — Lectures, panel discussions, an on-foot, on-rail evaluation, and hands-on learning experiences are all part of a beef management short course offered by the Berks County cooperative extension.

Besides beef producers and industry representatives, speakers included Penn State extension agents, veterinarians, and scientists. Organizers conducted the class Thursday evenings in March and April.

Lecture topics included beef breeds, records, evaluation, herd health and diseases, buildings and facilities, reproduction, AI, sire selection, nutrition, forage selection, tax considerations, and marketing.

The seminar moved outdoors on Thursday evening, as participants traveled to Glen Oak Farm, Glenmoore, and Cedar Meadows Farm, Elverson.

Participants included not only those interested in learning the beef trade but also experienced beef producers looking for new ideas.

Tour participants were able to hear about the operation of lifetime farmer Nelson Beam, who farms 600 total acres, besides his cattle feeding operation. Three quarters of the acreage is in corn, with the balance barley rotated back into soybeans, in addition to a small amount of hay.

"Corn uses up a lot of phosphorus," said Beam. "The biggest source of manure is the hogs, so we try to balance the crop with the nutrients we have available," he said. Beam finishes 4,500 hogs per year.

Every farming operation requires adjustments and change, and a recent change that Beam considers especially beneficial is the removal of siding of the barn. The replacement was curtains that can be lifted for greater ventilation or cooler temperatures. The screen has proven to be an asset, he said.

"My philosophy is that whenever I get extra money I buy something I'm going to get a return on," he said. "In my business, that's the necessary way to go."

A new TMR mixer, for example, was an investment that he believes will pay for itself in a year.

"We can push the cattle up to a high-grain ration sooner," he said. "It enables the rumen to digest feedstuffs a lot better." Besides high-moisture corn, corn silage, and barley with molasses, Beam also adds cookie meal, or bakery waste, to the ration. He feeds the 200 head of cattle twice a day.

"It makes it a lot easier to feed," he said. "Before, it was always a guessing game. Also the cattle used to fight to get to the bunk to get the first pickings because they were separated." Now, he said, the cattle seem to know the ration is consistent and the animals are not as competitive at the bunk.

Each animal is double vaccinated. "We don't buy anything that isn't vaccinated," he said. "We just found that it doesn't pay."

The group also discussed heifers, which Fairbairn said lend themselves to the freezer trade, since the smaller carcass weight is ideal for consumers. Beam beds his cattle mostly with corn fodder baled on the farm. However this varies according to availability and price of alternative bedding.

"I always feel that you have to look at the long-term goals," said Beam. "You have to determine where you want to be 10 or 15 years from now."

Since 1988, when Jay Heim, Glenmoore, purchased his first Angus cattle, the beef business has been a continual learning experience.

Heim's acreage is divided by a road with 70 acres on one side and 200 on the other. "I've been developing this grazing system for 10 years and now I'm getting a lot of things down, so I'm expanding," he said.

The 35 acres used as pasture are divided into 10 paddocks. The system is not intensive, so the cattle are moved every three days to one week.

Heim has adapted the schedule to his lifestyle and job schedule. "I'm not always here at 3 o'clock when the cows are hungry and I'd rather waste grass by moving them ahead before the pasture is finished than have them hungry.

"It's a little different to manage with the spring flush," he said. "I let them graze a little off the time and move them on quickly to start grazing it down. If I wait until the grass is really strong, by the time they get to the last paddock the grass is old." Heim plants pasture with grasses of differing maturation rates for that purpose.

Using an ATV to reseed the paddocks works best when the cattle are in the pasture and can "hoof it in," he said.

Water dictates pasture area and location, and Heim's water sources include springs, a pond, and piped water. A lane runs along the back of the paddocks to funnel cattle from one pasture to another.

Heim is moving from a crop/cattle/hay operation to more of a grass-based operation. To accomplish this he is using multi-purpose seed mixes of hay and pasture grasses. For example instead of harvesting hay during a dry period, he may turn the cattle out on the field.

Across the street, participants visited a former intensive feedlot that is now used to winter heifers and one of the herd bulls. Also at the location is a cow/calf herd in the surrounding paddocks. A chute and cattle handling facility, a two-man operation, is also present for loading/unloading and processing needs.

Part of developing and perfecting an operation involves change and improvement. "Every time we use this system I think of something I want to change," he said. "There's always something to improve upon. We learn as we go."

Heim is experimenting with sorghum sudan grass and millet.

The farm's acreage allows him to renew the pastures. "Right now I have more pasture than cows," he said. "That gives me a chance to renovate without having to worry about not having enough grass."

Calves that grow quickly and put flesh on, especially on a grass-based operation, are part of Heim's goal. "If I can produce a nice set of calves that do that and all look all the same, I feel good about that."

The calves are acclimated to a small amount of grain so they are familiar with the bunks "and ready to go" when they move into the feedlot.

"The grain isn't poured on," said Fairbairn. "Just so they know what feed is and they know what's going on. When they hit the feedlot they are really ready to put the pounds on."

In the barn is a compact handling system that includes a squeeze chute and electronic scales. Here Heim castrates, vaccinates, and measures weaning and yearling weights which help him to make culling decisions.

"It's very hard to work without weighing cattle," he said. "You can look at them but you don't really know how they're doing."

Additionally, the catch gate faces the door of the barn, so the animals are walking into sunlight. "Once they have been through here once, they just walk right through," he said. "Nobody gets upset — including the calves."

Producers Learn To Evaluate Animals, Meats For Quality

Extension agent says meat butchers in major chain stores may soon be a thing of the past.

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Beef and pork producers should know what consumers look for in the meat they buy.

To teach producers how to identify those qualities in both live and dressed animals, Clyde Myers of Berks County extension recently offered a three-session "on-foot on-rail" evaluation course.

"You need to have a mental picture of what ideal animals look like," Myers told the group of about 25 who attended the first session Monday evening.

It is becoming more important that producers meet the call for consistent meat quality, according to Myers.

"The market is demanding the traits they want from these animals," he said. "(Producers) will be asked to produce a more uniform product."

With pork, consumers have clearly shown they want leaner cuts than they did in the past. Beef, however, can be a greater challenge. While consumers say they want lean beef, they might not be willing to sacrifice consistent flavor to get it, according to Myers.

It is a challenge to produce lean cuts of beef that are consistently flavorful and tender. The USDA grading system demonstrates this, still designating as "prime" those cuts that show a high degree of marbling — fat — within the meat. It's that marbling that makes the juiciest and what many consider the most flavorful steaks.

The other factor used in USDA grading of beef is the age of the animal at slaughter, but that is difficult to assess from the cuts, Myers pointed out.

"Maturity is probably more important than marbling for determining tenderness, but it's difficult to tell maturity before 30 months of age," he said. This leaves marbling as the chief factor for determining the USDA grade.

The challenge of producing lean, tender beef can be even greater for those who finish beef on grass and direct-market it, according to Myers. One way for these graziers to assure tenderness and good flavor is to have the animals slaughtered relatively young, such as at 15 months of age, he said.

Myers urged direct-marketers to become knowledgeable about evaluating meat quality, both on-foot and on-rail.

"You need to know your product if you're going to direct-market," he said.

The demand for product consistency in the broader market is partly because supermarkets are rapidly losing their own meat processors, Myers noted.

"Probably in less than 10 years we'll see no butchers at the major chain stores," he said.

Those in attendance learned how to estimate carcass weights, quality grades, and yield grades using live animals.

Using standard cuts of meat for grading, the group also learned to estimate loin eye area, 10th rib backfat thickness, and percent lean for swine. For beef, they estimated rib eye backfat thickness; rib eye area; and kidney, pelvic, and heart fat to estimate yield grade.

For more information on evaluating meat animals and meat quality, contact your local extension office.

Lamb information is also available.

PFB Announces Rural Road Safety Week

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB), the state's largest general farming organization, reminds rural drivers that Rural Road Safety Week began Monday and runs through Sunday.

PFB is conducting media events throughout the state to create awareness that farmers are on the roads with their large equipment at this time of the year.

"With spring planting season under way, it is the ideal time to make drivers aware of the special precautions they should take when driving on rural roads," said PFB President Guy F. Donaldson.

Pennsylvania's House of Representatives passed a resolution designating the week of April 22, 2002 Rural Road Safety Week.

Machinery such as tractors travel at speeds less than 25 miles per hour and are often wider than other vehicles. In addition, machinery operators often cannot hear approaching traffic because of engine noise — therefore they are forced to rely totally on their vision and the skills of other drivers, Donaldson noted.

Motor vehicle safety including the use of tractors and other machinery begins with courtesy. Machinery operators should drive on the shoulder of paved highways and other drivers should be patient and pass with care.

Here are some other tips to keep in mind when driving in rural areas:

- Anticipate that between April and November you will probably encounter farm equipment at some point along your route.
- Watch for the slow-moving vehicle emblem. When you see this emblem, slow down.
- Pass with caution.
- Don't assume the farmer knows you are there. Before you attempt to pass, blow your car's horn to signal to the farmer that you are there.

CEO Says Checkoff Increases Demand For Dairy Products

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — The dairy checkoff has been credited with helping to increase demand in 2001 for dairy products. Total sales of dairy products reportedly increased again last year, despite a downturn in U.S. and world economies.

"Producer-funded promotion programs have worked hard during the past year to become more focused in helping to increase dairy demand," said Tom Gallagher, CEO of Dairy Management Inc.

Key dairy checkoff successes in 2001 include:

- Retail promotions. The joint producer- and processor-funded "Chocolate: The Wilder Side of Milk II" retail promotion increased chocolate milk sales more than 10 percent during the promotion period, compared to 2000 sales data. Jointly planned cheese promotions with Kroger, Wal-Mart Super Centers, Food Lion, Publix, and other major grocery retailers resulted in increased cheese sales.
- Whey marketing. The dairy checkoff helped increase whey use in food manufacturing through the "Do it with dairy" ingredient marketing campaign. Whey usage saw an average compounded annual growth of 5 percent between 1991 and 2001, according to the American Dairy Products Institute.
- Exports. The U.S. Dairy Export Council (USDEC) played a key role in the growth of export sales, which represent nearly 5 percent of all sales of U.S.-produced milk. In the Mexico City area, USDEC work with food retailers Sam's and Wal-Mart led to a threefold increase in the number of U.S. cheese items in Mexican grocery stores.

Franklin County FFA Chapter Wins International Dairy Judging Contest

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Conococheague FFA of James Buchanan High School here won this year's Hoard's Dairyman Cow Judging Contest.

Nine students from the chapter tallied an average score that topped 412 participating FFA chapters from across the U.S.

Members of the winning team pictured on the front row of the photo on page one are, from left, Aaron Horst, John Fisher, Sheena Wingert, Greta Moyer, Micah Myers, Alecia Martin, Meagan Myers, and Shaina Martin. Eric Myers, sixth from right in the back row, was also a contestant. Lisa Shaw, Conococheague FFA adviser and dairy judging coach, is pictured in the back row, far left.

According to Shaw, the entire FFA chapter deserves credit for supporting the dairy judging team. One way other members help is by filling in with ag department responsibilities while the team is away at judging events, she said.

Although the Conococheague chapter previously won honorable mention in the 72-year old contest, this marks a first in taking the top placing, Shaw said.

The winning team will be featured in the May 10 issue of Hoard's Dairyman, according to contest coordinator Karen Kutz.

In addition to the FFA division of the judging contest, Kutz said that 591 4-H clubs participated this year, as well as students and families from 12 countries including Australia, Belize, Denmark, Germany, Honduras, Japan, Malta, Mexico, Netherlands, South Africa, and South Korea.

The 86-member Conococheague FFA is a three-star chapter with a strong career development emphasis in addition to the top dairy judging team. This year the chapter was selected as one of the top ten models of innovation finalists in the U.S.

Rural Medicine Symposium Set For May 2

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — John J. May, M.D., has researched agricultural health and safety issues for two decades, and he believes it's time to focus on proven prevention efforts.

"We have spent lots of time on education and it's not clear that education is helping very much," said May, who will speak May 2 in Marshfield as part of Stueland Symposium 2002, "Timely Topics in Rural Medicine."

May said it is easier to impart education than to change equipment or attitudes, which is why those methods haven't been as fully pursued. "But it is those strategies that are more likely to show positive results," he said.

For his contributions to agricultural health and safety, May has been named the 2002 Stueland Scholar. The Stueland Scholar presentation, including May's keynote talk, is scheduled for 5:15-6:30 p.m. Thursday, May 2, at Froehlke Conference Center, located on the campus of Marshfield Clinic, Marshfield, Wis. The Stueland Scholar event is open to the community.

May is a specialist in pulmonary medicine and internal medicine at Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital in Cooperstown, N.Y. He also is a professor of clinical medicine at Columbia University.

Since 1993 he has directed the New York Center for Agricultural Medicine and Health in Cooperstown, and the Northeast Center for Agricultural and Occupational Health, funded by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). He also serves on the Steering Committee of the National Children's Center for Rural and Agricultural Health and Safety, Marshfield.

May grew up in the suburbs of south Connecticut. He became interested in agricultural issues in the early 1980s after moving to upstate New York and seeing a number of farmers with dust-related illnesses.

"As we learned more about the agricultural community, we discovered there were issues in safety, hearing loss, chemical use, and other areas of concern," May said.

May's published work features more than 40 peer-reviewed articles. Topics include respiratory health problems caused by working with silage, farm tractors and the use of seatbelts and rollover protective structures, hearing loss in farmers, a safety survey of auctioned farm equipment, and injuries among dairy workers.

Current studies focus on the occupational safety environment of farm workers in the northeastern U.S. He is looking at new methods of injury surveillance, and examining more specifically the ergonomics issues that workers face in orchard and vegetable farm settings.

Chester County To Publish Produce Guide

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Agricultural Development Council is planning to distribute a Produce Guide which lists farm markets and stands, farmers' markets, and Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) operations that retail to the public in Chester County.

The Council is requesting that growers in Chester County who wish to be included in the listing call the office (610) 344-6285 to request a produce guide questionnaire. The form has questions such as location, type of produce, and hours of operation for the market.

Land O'Lakes Names OSU V.P. To Board

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. recently announced the appointment of Bobby D. Moser, Ph.D., as an advisory member to the national food and agricultural cooperative's board of directors. Moser is the vice president for agricultural administration and university outreach, as well as the executive dean for the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences at Ohio State University.

As head of Ohio State University Extension, the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, and the Agricultural Technical Institute in Wooster, Moser oversees 2,200 faculty and staff with an operating budget of $130 million.

Moser earned a Ph.D. in animal nutrition from the University of Nebraska and received his masters and bachelor's degrees in animal nutrition and animal science, respectively, from Oklahoma State University. He lives with his wife, Pat, in Dublin, Ohio.

Land O'Lakes is a national, farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative that does business in all 50 states and more than 50 countries.

Messenger® is a unique new compound that increases crop yields while improving overall plant health and vigor. Messenger is made from a naturally occurring protein (harpin) that triggers processes inside the plant that activate the plant's own defense and growth systems. Plants activated by Messenger exhibit a higher rate of photosynthesis, which in turn enhances nutrient uptake. As a result, Messenger treated plants grow faster and stronger. Messenger also activates the plant's natural defenses so they are better able to fend off a broad spectrum of bacterial, viral, and fungal diseases. Bottom line: healthier plants, higher yields.

Give your plants the strongest start possible—apply Messenger before they leave the greenhouse, or if they are direct seeded, soon after emergence when plants have at least two true leaves. Make repeat applications to maintain a higher level of growth and protection.

To find out how Messenger can add to your bottom line, contact EDEN, your local ag supplier, or one of these certified Messenger retailers:

Industry Leaders Set Course To Cultivate Dairy's Future

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Twenty-five of dairy's key visionaries, including producers, processors, cooperative leaders, service providers, and university staff, met recently in Harrisburg to define the future for Pennsylvania's dairy industry.

"The dairy industry is at a crossroads in Pennsylvania," said David Hileman, owner of Hilecrest Farms in Tyrone and president of the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania. "This state needs to produce more milk to keep our infrastructure in place. Pennsylvania's milk production fell for the first time in 2001 by 23 percent, and our average milk production per cow has dropped below the national average. History shows once that happens, states lose market share."

With agriculture being the Pennsylvania's largest industry and dairy making up nearly 40 percent of the agriculture receipts, the group's charge for the day was to define the steps needed to shape the vision for a strong Pennsylvania dairy industry. "We cannot rest on our laurels," said Ralph Briggs from Purina Mills, Inc. "We need to preserve and enhance what we have to take advantage of our opportunities."

"If not us and now, then who and when?" Hileman said.

The group outlined a vision to drive the process. By 2005, the group envisions Pennsylvania leading the growth of the Northeast dairy industry through a collaborative effort fueled by programs and resources that provide the competitive edge. "We want to see young people — potential producers — clamoring to dairy farm in Pennsylvania and processors investing in their facilities to keep up with the expanding production base," said Chuck Cruickshank, Land O'Lakes director of member services and president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders.

They also identified goals for reaching that vision:

- To increase the average milk production per cow in Pennsylvania to 20,000-22,000 pounds or by five to 10 pounds per day.
- To increase the number of cows in the state to 600,000-630,000 head.
- To enhance management training opportunities and to increase the number of participants in those programs.
- To integrate economic development support systems for the dairy industry in Pennsylvania.
- To have Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders and PDMP act as catalysts for stimulating growth in the region's dairy industry.

Pro Ag Urges Accelerated Dairy Payments

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — The Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag) is urging several milk handlers to increase payments made to dairy farmers on April 25.

According to Pro Ag Manager Arden Tewksbury, Federal Order 1 — the milk marketing area covering the majority of the Northeastern United States — requires the partial payment (called the advance check) made to dairy farmers on the 25th of each month be based on the lowest class value of milk for the preceding month.

"The value of manufactured milk has declined dramatically, which has caused the Class III price (value of milk used for cheese) to plummet to $10.65 per hundredweight," Tewksbury said.

Milk handlers have until May 18 to make final settlement to dairy farmers for the full value of all milk produced during April, a practice that is similar for each month.

Tewksbury said that dairy farmers should not have to wait this long to be paid for milk produced in the preceding month.

Dennis Boyanowski, president of Pro Ag said, "Presently we can't do anything about changing the payment procedures within the federal orders. However, it's very clear there isn't anything that prohibits milk handlers from increasing the amount of payments on the 25th."

Tewksbury said various members of Pro Ag are contacting their milk handlers urging the increased payments on the 25th.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes reports that the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission has announced the first schedule components of agriculture events that will be part of the 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Hayes said, "This is a work in progress and will continue to evolve during the ensuing months as we look ahead to next January. This is not just the work of a few people, but rather it is the work of many who are agriculture stakeholders and who exhibit at the Pennsylvania Farm Show."

The agriculture community is looking forward to a much larger Farm Show Complex and is working with the Farm Show staff to develop a schedule for the 2003 exposition. There will be additional schedule announcements in the upcoming months.

The framework and principles that are guiding the staff and exhibitor stakeholders in their schedule development are as follows:

1. Not to require livestock specie groups to stay longer than in the past.

2. Create an environment for dairy and livestock to exhibit additional animals.

3. Make certain that all species of dairy and livestock are present throughout the Farm Show for visitors to observe.

4. Provide opportunities for new breeds of livestock to be exhibited.

5. Create the involvement of light horses.

6. Provided opportunities for new arena events.

7. Increase educational exhibits that are visitor friendly.

8. Enhance youth involvement.

9. Increase Ag-based commercial exhibits.

Hayes said, "One of my goals when I became secretary of agriculture was to upgrade the present Farm Show Complex and construct a large, new addition to the current facility. That goal needed support and financial resources. Our state lawmakers and governors responded to my request for $76 million for which I am very appreciative. This expansive initiative on behalf of our agriculture community will provided enhanced opportunities for our exhibitors. We will have a world-class Farm Show Complex for our world-class agriculture industry."

The 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show schedule as it is currently formatted in cooperation with representatives of the agriculture industry and Farm Show staff is included here.

Drought, Water-Resources Legislation Topics In Washington County

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP Secretary David E. Hess discussed current drought conditions and stressed the need for new legislation to protect Pennsylvania's water resources at the Washington County Farm Bureau spring dinner April 16 along with County Commissioner Bracken Burns and a representative of Sen. Tim Murphy.

"Current drought conditions across the state reflect the need for water resources planning to protect and preserve our water resources for the future," said Hess. "DEP is grateful to the county Farm Bureaus for realizing the need for new water resources legislation and taking an active role in preserving this valuable resource."

With more than 1,700 farms, Washington County is ranked fifth highest in the state for number of farms and number one for sheep and lamb population. Members of the Washington County Farm Bureau were eager to discuss the drought with Hess and talk about other water issues as they impact agricultural production.

"Citizens are learning that they cannot separate water quality and water quantity concerns, because they are all bound together in one watershed system," said Hess.

14 Pa. Farms In 8 Counties Approved For Preservation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced that 14 Pennsylvania farms totaling 1,507 acres in eight counties were approved for preservation by the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Board at its April meeting.

Since 1989, Pennsylvania has preserved 1,875 farms totaling nearly 226,000 acres — including 90 new farms so far this year totaling 10,668 acres. The goal is to reach the 2002 farms mark in 2002.

"Our farmland preservation achievements are remarkable examples of teamwork on the part of each county and the state's Bureau of Farmland Preservation," Hayes said. "Through this partnership, Pennsylvania is setting the standard in farmland preservation across the country."

Fifty-three counties participate in the state farmland preservation program. The Commonwealth purchases the development rights, referred to as easements, to preserve Pennsylvania's prime farmland and open space.

In February, Hayes announced that Pennsylvania is investing an additional $64 million over the next two years to ensure the commonwealth remains the nation's leader in farmland preservation. Of the $64 million, the state is investing another $40 million while Pennsylvania's counties are committing $24 million — the largest county commitment ever.

Berks County

• David and Leah Knauer, North Heidelberg Township.

• E. Daniel and Nancy Leatherman, Perry Township.

Chester County

• Donald and Kelly Cairns, Sadsbury Township.

Juniata County

• Elsie Hackenberger, Walker Township.

Lancaster County

• Jeffrey and Rose Aungst, West Donegal Township.

• J. Kenneth and Lisa Wiker, Providence Township.

Mercer County

• Sara, David and John McCullough, Coolspring Township.

Schuylkill County

• Donald and Laura Ziegler, Wayne Township.

Wayne County

• Herman Neugebauer, Damascus and Berlin townships.

• Elmer and Barbra Shaffer, Lake and Salem townships.

Spring Brings Annual A-Day Celebration To Del Val

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Perhaps it's the sight of livestock on campus. Perhaps it's the numerous food stands and fair-like atmosphere. Perhaps it's the educational exhibits, games, and demonstrations.

Whatever the reason, Delaware Valley College's "A-Day" event, scheduled today and tomorrow at the college, is expected to bring more than 26,000 people to the campus for its 54th annual celebration, according to Jennifer Jillson, senior large animal science major and advertising chair of the two-day event.

"It gives students the opportunity to really show the community what Del Val is about," said Jillson.

Although the "A" stands for agriculture and that industry is the emphasis of the event, students from a wide range of campus groups put the stands together for A-Day. "Just because it (agriculture) is not your major, doesn't mean you can't participate," said Jillson. The college has more than 35 academic programs that range from agriculture, biological, and physical sciences to business administration, computer systems, and secondary education.

Participation in the dairy and livestock shows, for example, are open to the entire campus. Students who are interested sign up and receive an animal by lottery. They then have a month to learn how to fit and show the animal and break it to halter. Shows — where winners receive trophies and ribbons — include dairy, swine, sheep, beef, and a Standardbred horse show. Although animal conformation is part of the judging, the focus is fitting and showmanship.

The livestock shows seem to be the biggest attraction, said Jillson. Although most of the visitors are from the surrounding community, "a lot of people come out of Philadelphia," she said. "Even if they have seen an animal before, they might not have had the chance to see the animals shown."

Student accomplishments are showcased, and many of the campus organizations offer demonstrations and displays. The biology club, for example, is putting together a bluebird house display that offers information on building and putting up the houses "so people will have something practical to take home," said Alicia Clementi, a senior biology major.

The landscape and nursery cub is sponsoring a plant sale and the chemistry department is putting on a chemistry magic show. The computer organizations plan to have a live Web camera to exhibit the horse show from the equestrian center to the main campus activity area.

Students not only prepare and sell food but also coordinate the entire event with the help of an advisory panel of faculty, staff, or administration members.

Thirty-two students representing different clubs and organizations begin the planning process in September, meeting every Monday evening and every other Tuesday morning. Although the time commitment is a large one, the organization and management experience is valuable, according to sophomore Mike Calkins, a turf management major with aspirations of managing a golf course. The proceeds are earmarked for the cost of next year's event and scholarship funds. Each participating club then splits the remaining money.

Pony rides, a farm educational center, a craft show featuring community artisans, hay rides, an apiary display, flower show, a straw maze, carriage rides, equestrian drill team performance, llama exhibition, agriculture and antique equipment display, contests, games, and tree-climbing, milking, and canine demonstrations also bring visitors to the event. The DelVal band and chorale will also provide music. New this year is a horseshoe pitching contest.

Conducted rain or shine, A-Day will take place April 27-28 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Jennifer Jillson, a senior in the large animal science major, not only participated in organizing the event but will also exhibit "fluffy" during A-Day.

Robert Martin, a freshman large animal science major, drew "Jezebel" in a lottery and will show the heifer in competition during the event.

IMPROVE YOUR PASTURES
AND HAVE TONS OF SUMMER FEED AS WELL

STEP 1 Plow or Roundup about mid to late May. This way you can still utilize your spring growth

STEP 2 Fertilize and drill in one (or a blend of several) of the fine forages described at right or plant our high sugar silage corn. Corn does very well where pasture is plowed down. This may also help break up disease or insect cycles in old pastures.

STEP 3 Graze or cut sorghum sudan at 24 in. (Approx. 40 days after seeding and every 30 days thereafter). Warning: never feed sorghum sudan when it's less than 18" tall.

STEP 4 About early Sept. plow or disk in manure and plant a high quality Barenbrug Grass Legume Mix. Always take a soil test before new seeding.

Graze lightly when 6 to 8 in. tall

WHEN FERTILIZED AND GRAZED PROPERLY, BARENBRUG FORAGES HAVE MORE THAN DOUBLED MILK YIELD PER ACRE COMPARED TO TRADITIONAL PASTURE.

CENTURY BROWN MID RIB (BMR) Hybrid Sorghum Sudan from Walter Moss Seed Co. This premium forage has outstanding regrowth and tillering characteristics. The BMR trait increases the digestibility of the stems and reduces lignin by 40 to 60%. Because of this farmers will see increased milk production, or weight gains. The softer leaves and stems make for a more palatable feed.

MEGA GREEN Delayed Maturing Hybrid Sorghum Sudangrass from Walter Moss Seed Co., is a very high yielding multi-leaf variety designed for hay or grazing. It has the potential to out yield silage corn. When left to grow it can reach heights of 12 ft. or more with out making a seedhead. Here in Lancaster Co. we have not seen it go to head at all. Extra leafy leaves can reach 3 in. wide and 4 ft. long.

SOLD OUT

BARKANT FORAGE TURNIP from Barenbrug is a very leafy turnip that has won yield trials including one in Berks Co. PA where it was seeded May 18, 1999 and harvested June 30th and rivaled the yield of Sorghum Sudangrass. It has a RFV of 216. It can also be mixed with Sorghum Sudan.

MEGA MILLET is a new delayed maturing forage type millet similar to Sorghum Sudan but has NO PRUSSIC ACID. Yields aren't as high as MegaGreen but quality is even higher. Mega Millet should be grazed at 12 to 24 inches. Our cows pick up in milk when grazing Mega Millet.

Mega Millet Seed won't be available until about May 1

REPLACEMENT UNLOADERS FROM THE EXPERTS!

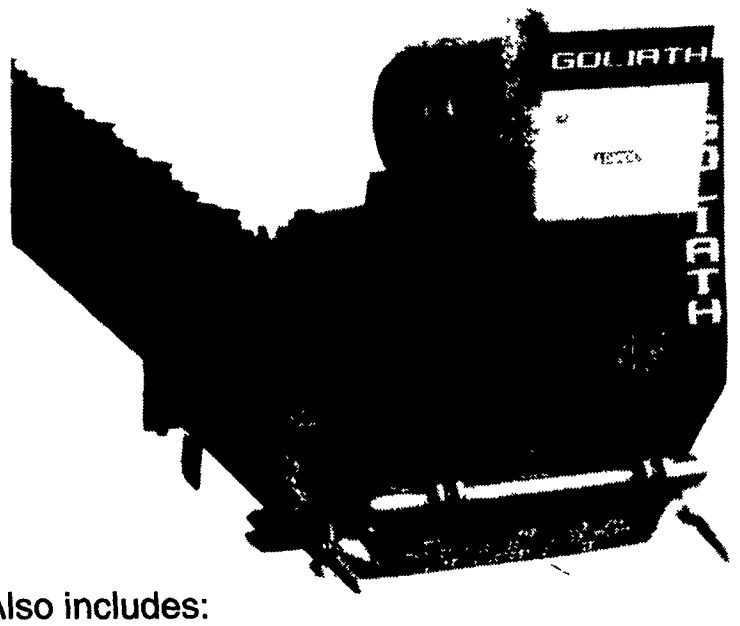
All unloader work done by Penn Jersey's own technicians



Also includes:
- Unloader Remanufacturing Kit
- Main Drive Remanufacturing Kit
- Chain Tightener Remanufacturing Kit
- Rebuilt Gearbox

Series 92 Goliath®

- ✔ New chisel cutter hooks and cutter chain with hardened stainless steel bushings
- ✔ New stronger conveyor chain
- ✔ New paddles with tall paddle every fourth position
- ✔ New hanger bearing bevel gear and pinion shaft
- ✔ Remanufactured transmission assembly
- ✔ New ratchet wheel gear and pawls
- ✔ New discharge door
- ✔ New heavier bottom discharge housing
- ✔ New backbone with floor plate supports
- ✔ Remanufactured center post assembly
- ✔ New cutter arm with new insert and hub arm
- ✔ Remanufactured heavy-duty chain tightener
- ✔ Completely new fork assembly with new piston
- ✔ All new sprockets
- ✔ New torsion bar
- ✔ Every bushing, seal, O-ring, brass washer and gasket replaced with new

Rebuilt Model 70 Goliath®

Rebuilt with a minimum of the following new parts:
- ✔ New alloy cutter chain
- ✔ New standard hook kit
- ✔ New conveyor chain
- ✔ All new sprockets
- ✔ New blue housing
- ✔ New backbone
- ✔ New cutter arm
- ✔ New rebuilt insert

Real People Don't Litter: The Litterbug

Happy birthday, Litterbug! First introduced in 1952 by the Pennsylvania Resources Council, the Litterbug celebrates his 50th birthday with the turn of the new year. The slogan, "Don't be a litterbug!" has echoed through the years as a battle cry in the struggle to keep Pennsylvania beautiful.

With his blatant disregard for the health of the environment, tossing litter everywhere, the Litterbug is a constant reminder of our responsibility to put trash in its proper place and maintain the integrity of our landscape and natural resources.

After all these years of littering, is it possible to show the Litterbug the error of his ways? Will he look at the consequences of littering and realize that littering is a threat to our quality of life?

Secretary Hess had the opportunity to sit down with the Litterbug and discuss why littering is unhealthy for the environment. Read More: Check out page 2 to see if Secretary Hess can convince the Litterbug to change his littering ways!

Real People Recycle: Danielle Mort

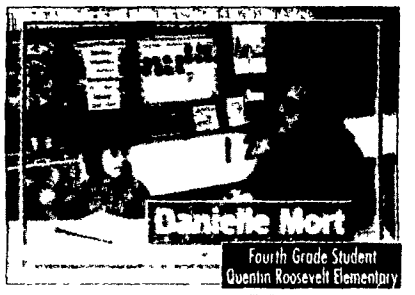
Interviewing the Secretary of DEP is all in a day's work for Danielle Mort, a fourth-grade student at Quentin Roosevelt Elementary School in Pittsburgh. This girl really knows how to get a story, challenging the Secretary to answer, in eight words or less, "Why do we only recycle cans and newspapers and not food?"



Danielle conducted the interview for her school newspaper as part of an America Recycles Day celebration. With a "recycling" magician singing "reduce, reuse and recycle" and a chance for students to help build edible landfills, this was arguably the best assembly ever held at Quentin Roosevelt, according to one fifth-grader.

DEP's Recycling Team also was on hand at the celebration to remind Pennsylvanians of all ages to recycle at home, school and work. Each of the seven cartoon character mascots represents a commonly recyclable material, including milk jugs, newspapers, tires, bottles and cans.

Danielle had a lot of writing to do to include all this recycling fun in her article, but she was up to the task. There is no doubt that we are in good hands with Danielle as a "recycler of tomorrow." Read More about the Recycling Team on page 3 and check #3 on your Eco-Stuff Card (page 7) for a Recycle Team coloring book.

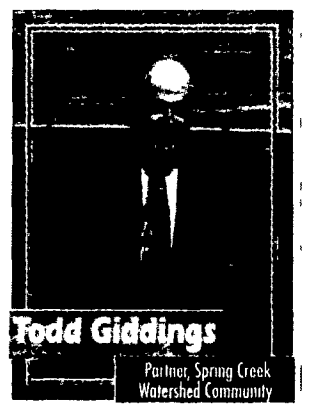
Real People Protect Groundwater: Todd Giddings

You've heard of people donating their time for the health of the environment, but how many people can say they donated a well? Todd Giddings, a partner in the Spring Creek Watershed Community, can!

Todd donated a groundwater well that will become part of Pennsylvania's water resource monitoring network. "I am happy that this well is going to become part of the state's drought monitoring network," Todd said. "I have dedicated a large part of my career to studying this watershed, and I am thrilled that this well will help make a difference in how we use water in this community."

The well will provide important, real-time data about the Spring Creek watershed as well as insight into how much groundwater flows through the watershed.

Armed with a $31,325 [illegible] grant, the Clearwater Conservancy and the Spring Creek Watershed Community have partnered with the U.S. Geological Survey to add seven additional groundwater monitoring wells in the watershed. Eventually, these wells will become part of the state's groundwater monitoring network.



Pennsylvania is in need of better, more accurate water resource information. Thanks to Todd's generous donation, the Commonwealth is much closer to achieving that goal. Learn More about [illegible]

FROM THE GOVERNOR

In Pennsylvania, great things come in the thousands, as we cleaned up our 1,000th brownfield site through our Land Recycling Program and will be awarding more than 1,000 Growing Greener grants this summer to committed watershed organizations. These milestones are a reflection of the invaluable partnerships that have and continue to form for the health of our environment.

Let's build on this success! Look inside your GreenWorks Gazette to learn how.

DOES LITTER BUG YOU?

An Interview with the Litterbug

DEP Secretary David E. Hess recently had the opportunity to sit down with the Litterbug to discuss the insects nasty habit of dropping trash everywhere he visits.

Secretary. Let's get right to it. Litterbug, why do you litter?

S: Why not? Many Reasons!

L: Name One! It's fun, convenient and it doesn't hurt anything.

S Really? Did you know that littering is a fire hazard and that every 12 minutes a fire starts in litter?

L: Big deal, I don't cause those fires. I don't even smoke!

S That may be, but you contribute to the mess that feeds that fire.

L: Okay, I'll give you that one, so I'll only toss stuff that biodegrades, like fruit. What will that hurt?

S Did you know that it takes two years for fruit to biodegrade?

L: Really? Well, by littering I am creating jobs for people!

S Actually, you are costing Pennsylvania money. Without volunteers, we would spend more than $50 million a year for litter cleanup. Cleaning up litter costs about nine times more than it costs to collect trash from public and private trash receptacles.

L: Okay, okay, but one small wrapper here and there isn't going to matter. It's so small, who will notice?

S: All it takes is one piece, and then another and another...The next thing you know, birds are choking on paper, accidents are happening from people throwing trash from their car windows, people are catching diseases from the rats that thrive in litter and...

L: Alright, I get it. You shouldn't litter ANYTHING!

S Exactly!

S Call the litter hotline! If you see any kind of littering — uncovered trucks, political signs or advertisements on utility poles or trees, abandoned vehicles, tire piles or just plain tossing of trash — call 1-888-LITTERBUG. We'll catch those litter bugs and stop them in their tracks.

L: Cool. I guess littering isn't as much fun as I thought.

S No. But now that you understand why littering is unhealthy for the environment, you can make a difference in keeping Pennsylvania beautiful.

Caught in the Act

Ever watch helplessly as someone in the car ahead of you tosses trash out the window? Well you're not helpless anymore! Call the Highway Litter Reporting Hotline. Simply take down the vehicle's license plate number, a brief description of the vehicle, where and when it happened and call 1-888-LITTERBUG. The owner of the car will receive a letter indicating that he or she was caught in the act of littering, accompanied by information on why littering is bad for the environment and a litter bag for the car to discourage future littering.

Cigarette Butts: The Little Known Litter

What happens to that cigarette butt after it's casually flicked out the car window, onto the street or into the woods? Wind and rainwater typically break down the cigarette, releasing the toxic chemicals the cigarette filter is designed to trap and allowing those chemicals to leak out into aquatic ecosystems, threatening water quality and aquatic life. Cigarette butts may seem small, but with an estimated 4.5 trillion butts littered every year, the toxic chemicals add up! Learn More: www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWorks! Litter Prevention) or www.litterbug.org

Stopping Litter is Just a Call Away

Is there an unsightly litter problem in your area? The Litter CLEARinghouse can help. Now available through the Litterbug Hotline (1-888-LITTERBUG), the Litter CLEARinghouse (Community Litter Education and Action Resources) has the tools you need to fight litter in your neighborhood or community. From customized litter-removal advice and assistance in organizing community cleanups to notifying municipalities and agencies when necessary, the Pennsylvania Resources Council and the Litter CLEARinghouse empower Pennsylvanians to put a stop to litter. Just call 1-888-LITTERBUG to report pesky litter problems. Learn More: www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWorks! Litter Prevention) or www.litterbug.org

No Tire Tossing!

Abandoned tire piles are not only ugly, but they are a breeding ground for mosquitoes. Also a fire hazard, tire piles can burn for weeks, causing rubber to decompose into oil, which may pollute ground and surface water. So, next time you buy a set of new wheels, don't dump your old tires; leave them with your retailer where they can be recycled.

Pennsylvania companies turn used tires into all sorts of useful products, including buckets, shoes, mousepads, dustpans and lots of other great products.

When you change your tires, make a change for the better. Help protect the environment and beautify your community by leaving used tires with the retailer where they can be recycled.

Join the Solution to Waterway Pollution

To combat illegal dumping and littering, PA CleanWays has organized volunteers across 18 counties. Through dumpsite cleanups, "adoption" programs and specialty recycling events, PA CleanWays is clearing out the messes that already exist and helping to prevent new ones from starting.

"People – A Solution to Waterway Pollution" is one video among many educational materials that PA CleanWays offers. The video explains how litter and trash are polluting our waters and demonstrates how people can help reduce these problems. Learn More: Watch the video online at www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWorks! ## How Long Does It Take to Biodegrade?

GreenWorks! TIPS FOR LITTER PREVENTION

What Can You Do to Fight Litter?

- Put your trash in a proper container. If you can't find one, hold on to your trash until you do!
- Carry a litterbag in your car – grocery bags work great!
- Carry a mug or refillable container for drinks. Reduce and reuse as much as you can before you recycle.
- Participate in community litter cleanups.
- Put your trash out for collection in closed containers as close to pickup time as possible.
- Set a good example. Inform others about the costs and dangers of littering.
- Call 1-888-LITTERBUG to report community and highway litter problems.

SPRING CLEANUP!

Be a Water Detective

Did you know that a pinhole leak in a water pipe can waste up to 170 gallons of water per day? If you are a homeowner or home renter, an easy way to find out if you have a leaky pipe is to check your water meter. When you know you will be gone for a few hours, simply look at the number on the water meter before you go. Write it down so you don't forget. When you come back, compare the number you wrote down with the number on the meter. If the number has changed, you probably have a leak! Just knowing you have the leak is half the battle. Learn More Check #5 on your Free Stuff Card [illegible] Use Water Wisely brochure

Backyard Water Conservation

Wise use of water for garden and lawn watering not only helps protect the environment, but also saves money and provides for optimum growing conditions. Simple ways of reducing the amount of water used for irrigation include.

- Growing plants that are adapted to drier conditions;
- Mulching;
- Adding peat moss to soil;
- Installing windbreaks and fences to slow winds and reduce evaporation,
- Watering in the early morning, before the sun is intense, to help reduce water loss from evaporation;
- Installing rain gutters; and
- Collecting water from downspouts for use on your lawn or garden.

Green Paint Tips

Paints, stains and varnish can add color to your home, perk up a drab room or transform a piece of furniture. But did you know these products may be harmful to the environment upon disposal? Paints and related products contribute to air pollution, and, if poured down the drain or dumped in a landfill, can pollute our groundwater. To reduce paint-related waste, buy wisely. Measure the area to be painted so you don't buy too much paint, purchase latex or recycled paint and most importantly: use it all! Learn More: Check #6 on your Free Stuff Card [illegible] for more about recycling and managing paint-related waste

A Green Thumb in More Ways Than One!

Now that you've stowed your snow shovel and pulled out the gardening tools, it's time for yard work again. Here are some tips to help you think green while exercising your green thumb

- Use an electric lawn mower instead of gas;
- Use a handheld hose to water plants – sprinklers tend to over-water;
- Avoid pesticides and never water heavily after spreading fertilizer; it can carry the chemicals to nearby streams;
- Avoid hosing off the driveway – sweep it instead;
- Plant trees around your house to provide shade; and
- Plant a variety of grasses, shrubs and trees in your yard to prevent plant diseases and insect infestations.

Follow these tips and you'll be the envy of your neighbors for sure!

Saving Energy Makes Cents

Before you dust off your trusty air conditioner, think about this: the less you use it, the more energy dollars you'll save. Cool your home naturally.

- Use blinds or shades to block the sun's heat;
- Open attic vents or upstairs windows to expel hot air;
- Open windows at night to pull in fresh, cooler air; and
- Use electric fans to blow out warm air and pull in cool air.

A Gardener's Guide To Reducing Household Hazardous Waste

With the summer season upon us, many of us will be heading outdoors to work on our lawns and gardens. And, to make lawns more beautiful and gardens more productive, people often turn to pesticides, insecticides and fertilizers. Much of the unused portion of these products becomes what it is known as household hazardous waste (HHW). Wastes of a hazardous nature, when generated within a household, are not regulated as hazardous wastes under federal or state laws. When not properly managed, these wastes can create environmental and public health hazards. Here are some safer alternatives:

- Instead of fertilizer, use household compost, wood ash or peat moss.
- Instead of chemicals, use natural mulches to prevent weeds

Star Light, Star Bright?

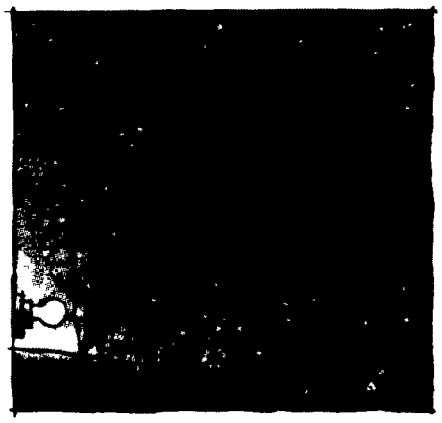
Are the stars out in your sky? Perhaps they are, but you just can't see them Light pollution is caused by over-use of outdoor lighting. The urban glow is blocking out the natural glow of the night sky Here are some ways you can help bring the stars back into your sky:

- Use night lighting only when necessary;
- Turn off lights when not needed;
- Use light timers when you're away from home;
- Use motion detection lights; and
- Keep light directed toward the ground or exactly where needed.



Light fixtures that control light placement and brightness, minimize glare and save energy are the best kind to use. Learn More [illegible]

The Power of Going Green

No one said it was easy being green. But we're saying it now! Greening the energy use in your home is as easy as 1-2-3

1. Be more energy efficient Look for energy-efficient heating systems, lighting and appliances; turn off the lights when you leave a room and electrical equipment when you leave the house; and lower your thermostat at night and when no one is home
2. Purchase green power. Green electricity pollutes less than traditional power production and some types, like wind and solar, produce no emissions. Green power is produced from the wind, sun, water and earth (geothermal).
3. Produce your own electricity. Installing solar panels or small wind turbines can generate enough electricity to power your home, and in some cases, you can even sell some electricity back to the power company!

Before you pay your next electricity bill, choose green. Learn More [illegible]

Compost Recipe

Quick Compost

Ingredients: grass clippings, weeds, leaves, small brush and twigs
Directions: Mix one part "greens" (grass clippings and weeds) with two parts "browns" (leaves, small brush and twigs) to form a pile. For fast composting, chop it first with a hoe or lawn mower. Mix in one inch of soil. Keep pile as moist as a wrung-out sponge. Turn pile once a week to aerate. Finished compost will take between four weeks and one year, depending on how often the pile is turned and moistened.

Real People Help Farmers: Jose Taracido

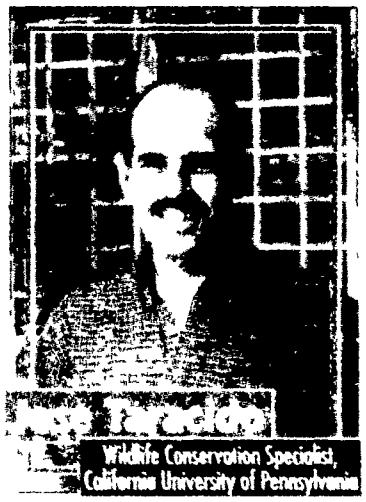
When pigs fly! That's when Jose Taracido will stop working with Pennsylvania farmers to implement environmental best management practices. A dedicated conservationist, Jose works tirelessly to construct streambank fencing and restore wildlife habitats and wetlands on farms across western Pennsylvania.



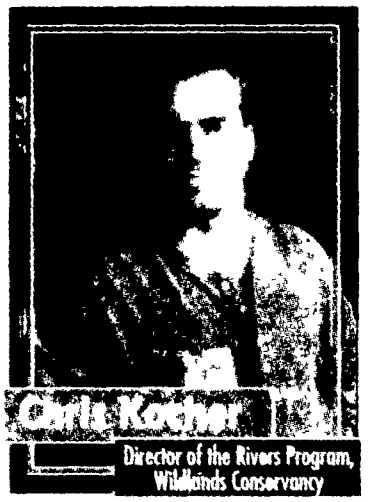
Under Jose's direction, the Partners for Fish and Wildlife, part of the Foundation for California University of Pennsylvania, have secured several state and federal grants for partnering with farmers. contributed to the cause with four grants totaling more than $1 million. Reaping the benefits of Jose's dedication, farmers have cleaner drinking water for their animals, drought-tolerant grasses for their feed and increased erosion control.

Jose's efforts also have extended to building partnerships, enabling him to have far-reaching effects on our watersheds. With his partners, Jose has been recognized at national, state and local levels for his work on Pike Run in Washington County.

Jose has built a foundation of trust with Pennsylvania farmers that has proved to be the cornerstone of his success in protecting not only our natural resources, but also our agricultural heritage. Learn More

Real People Respect Our Rivers: Chris Kocher

As director of the Rivers Program at the Wildlands Conservancy, Chris Kocher has made it his mission to protect, preserve and restore the physical and biological health of our rivers and streams.



Tackling the entire Lehigh River watershed, Chris is leading the way through a Rivers Conservation Plan — his most recent in a chain of plans that are helping identify the physical, biological and cultural features in a watershed.

Chris also spearheaded a mine drainage assessment of the Lehigh River watershed, which has since lead to a restoration project on the largest mine drainage discharge in the watershed. This will no doubt have an incredible influence on the health of the watershed.

With Chris' help, Wildlands Conservancy has successfully completed a number of other stream restoration and improvement projects in northeastern Pennsylvania, securing numerous grants from several state and federal programs, including

Developing successful partnerships to preserve our watersheds, Chris knows what it means to be a watershed steward, and he knows how to make it look easy. "Mission impossible" is not a phrase in Chris Kocher's vocabulary. Learn More

Real People Build Partnerships:

What do the environment and being a banker have in common? You may be thinking "not much," but for those who know Bill Worobec, the list is endless. In real life, Bill is a banker, and, in his free time, he spearheads an incredible partnership that has resulted in the restoration — some would say "rebuilding" — of Big Bear Creek using natural stream design principles.

"This project demonstrates viable solutions to a host of problems representative of those experienced by almost every stream in Pennsylvania," Bill said. Using the stream channel as a road to haul heavy equipment and rocks in and out of the work area, Bill and a host of partners scraped off several feet of streambed to restore the gradient and reconstruct banks and channels. All this in just one week's time!

Being a banker came in handy, as Bill managed to raise more than $400,000 in matching money and secured a $376,741 grant from the Lycoming County Conservation District. Bill has proved that partnerships and perseverance are powerful tools in restoring and protecting our watersheds. His innovative approach to watershed restoration has paid off, especially now that Big Bear Creek is seeing new signs of life as mayflies and wild trout return to the area. Learn More

Real People Share Love of Nature:

When Carole Williams-Green was a child, her mother shared her contagious love of nature with Carole and her friends, taking neighborhood children on five-mile walks to look at the fields and trees. Today, Carole shares her love of nature with the children, parents and teachers of Southwest Philadelphia.

Over the next 21 months, Carole and her 10 year-old nonprofit organization, the Cobbs Creek Community Environmental Education Center, will be able to reach 1,240 students with the help of a grant from DEP. A major goal of the Cobbs Creek Community Environmental Education Center is to engage children and adults as community stewards. Together, they will tackle the restoration of the Cobbs Creek watershed, removing debris and invasive vegetation, controlling erosion, planting native trees and wildflowers and repairing trails.

Carole is a successful visionary. Just last October, Carole succeeded in opening the doors to what is believed to be the first African American-founded urban environmental education center with a creek and riparian forest at its doorstep. As with her vision for retrofitting the historic stables at 63rd and Catharine Streets to serve as the new headquarters for the center, Carole sees the Cobbs Creek watershed growing greener through community involvement. Learn More

Real People Volunteer: Dave Lamperski

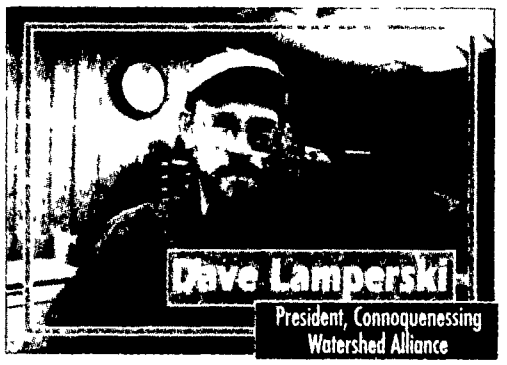
The volunteer stream monitoring program of the Connoquenessing Watershed Alliance is providing invaluable knowledge about the health and sources of problems within the Connoquenessing watershed. Rallying the troops to collect this information is Dave Lamperski.

"Water monitoring is not a glamorous job, but it is irreplaceable in helping to expand our understanding of all the forces at work within the watershed," Dave explained. "I cannot offer enough praise to the people who have faithfully taken monthly samples in all kinds of weather to help gather data for this scientific report."

Dave is the president and one of the founders of the Connoquenessing Watershed Alliance. In the program's second year, the group received a Growing Greener grant for $86,740 to assess a 430 square mile portion of the Connoquenessing watershed. With guidance from consultants at Killam Associates, volunteers are collecting and testing water sampled from 18 sites along Connoquenessing Creek and its tributaries.



Portions of the study conducted so far reveal a generally healthy watershed, and problem areas are being documented for consideration as future restoration projects. Dave's success demonstrates that committed volunteers can make all the difference in identifying and eliminating sources of pollution in Pennsylvania's watersheds. Learn More

Real People Make House-Calls:

Wilma runs a "mobile monitoring" program in Washington County. Simply put, Wilma drives through her community with scientific equipment in the back of her minivan, conducting tests on the health of various waterways.

When first on the move, Wilma took samples from just three sites. Now, through a recently received grant and other help from DEP, she keeps tabs on as many as 20 sites. Her mobile monitoring is making a difference, not only by identifying areas that need help, but also documenting the positive impact of all the cleanup efforts in Washington County.

Being on the road can be grueling, but Wilma knows that the health of our rivers and streams is important — both for wildlife and for our own drinking water. With this in mind, Wilma is determined in her desire to create a healthier environment. Learn More

Real People Give Back: Bill Shaffer

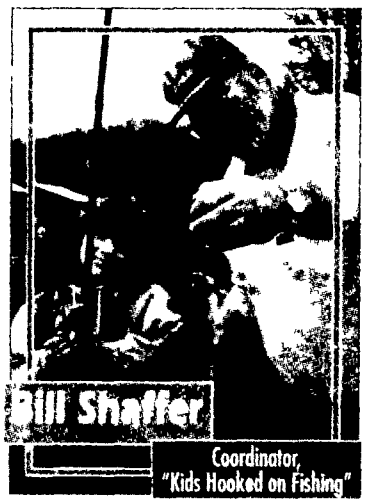
Kids that grow up in the city don't often have the opportunity to enjoy the great outdoors, but for some young people in York, Bill Shaffer is about to change that.



Described as a "super guy" by his colleagues, Bill Shaffer, coordinator of "Kids Hooked on Fishing," is giving city and suburban kids an opportunity to get outside and experience nature.

An avid angler himself, Bill decided that kids in York were missing out on a great way to appreciate the environment and have fun at the same time. After researching and securing funds to purchase fishing equipment for York area middle schools, Bill has volunteered his time to visit schools to teach students the finer points of fishing, angling and enjoying all that Penn's Woods have to offer.

By instilling the next generation with a sense of awe and respect for the world around them, Bill is molding lifelong stewards of the environment. Learn More

Real People Tackle Acid Mine Drainage:

For residents of Elk County, fishing in the Little Toby Creek watershed seemed like an unattainable dream. Yet, after a 30-year campaign to restore the watershed, Bill Sabatose, president of the Toby Creek Watershed Association, is making that dream a reality.

Little Toby Creek is once again showing signs of life after decades of acid mine drainage polluting its waters. The turning point came with a $1.2 million grant awarded to Headwaters Charitable Trust, which in turn sponsored a grant to the Toby Creek Watershed Association. The restoration project will finally eliminate the acid mine drainage into Little Toby Creek.

"This used to be a dead watershed," Bill recalled. "Little by little, as DEP funded acid mine drainage projects, the Little Toby began to recover."

Bill and the Toby Creek Watershed Association have been instrumental in the recovery of Little Toby Creek and their relentless perseverance demonstrates that no watershed is without hope of restoration. Learn More

1. The Earth is populated by many different kinds of animals and plants, which live in a variety of different environments. What is the word used to describe this idea?

   A. multiplicity
   B. biodiversity
   C. socio-economics
   D. evolution

2. Carbon monoxide is a major contributor to air pollution in the U.S. Which of the following is the biggest source of carbon monoxide?

   A. factories and businesses
   B. people breathing
   C. motor vehicles
   D. trees

3. How is most of the electricity in the U.S. generated?

   A. oil, coal and wood
   B. nuclear power
   C. solar energy
   D. hydroelectric power plants

4. What is the most common cause of pollution of streams, rivers and oceans?

   A. dumping of garbage by cities
   B. surface water running off yards, city streets, paved lots and farm fields
   C. trash washed into the ocean from coastlines
   D. waste dumped by factories

5. Which of the following is a renewable resource?

   A. oil
   B. iron ore
   C. trees
   D. coal

6. Ozone forms a protective layer in the Earth's upper atmosphere. What does ozone protect us from?

   A. acid rain
   B. global warming
   C. sudden changes in temperature
   D. harmful, cancer-causing sunlight

7. Where does most of the garbage in the U.S. end up?

   A. oceans
   B. incinerators
   C. recycling centers
   D. landfills

8. What is the name of the primary federal agency that works to protect the environment?

   A. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)
   B. Department of Health, Environment and Safety (DHES)
   C. National Environmental Agency (NEA)
   D. Federal Pollution Control Agency (FPCA)

9. Which of the following household wastes is considered hazardous waste?

   A. plastic packaging
   B. glass
   C. batteries
   D. spoiled food

10. What is the most common reason that an animal species becomes extinct?

    A. pesticides are killing them
    B. their habitats are being destroyed by humans
    C. there is too much hunting
    D. there are climate changes that affect them

11. Scientists have not determined the best solution for disposing of nuclear waste. In the U.S. what do we do with it now?

    A. use it as nuclear fuel
    B. sell it to other countries
    C. dump it in landfills
    D. store and monitor the waste

12. What is the primary benefit of wetlands?

    A. provide good sites for landfills
    B. help clean the water before it enters lakes, streams, rivers or oceans
    C. keep the number of undesirable plants and animals low
    D. offer good locations for 4-wheel driving

Just by recycling paper, we can cut air pollution by about 75 percent!

Since 1997, Pennsylvania businesses have reduced wastewater by 5.2 billion gallons.

COMMUNITY IN FOCUS

Lens on Litter

Break out your camera and start fighting litter! The Pennsylvania Resources Council wants you to get out there and capture litter at its worst. The annual "Lens on Litter" photo contest helps heighten litter consciousness across Pennsylvania by showing how litter can have a negative impact on our environment, safety, health or wildlife. You could win $5,000 or more in cash prizes and camera equipment. The deadline to submit your photo is November 30, 2002. So what do you have to lose? Learn More: Visit www.litterbug.org and put your lens on litter.

Variety Is the Species of Life

Do you know about biodiversity? You should! Biodiversity is the variety of life on earth. It includes everything from the tiniest microbes to the tallest trees, from creatures that spend their entire lives deep in the ocean to those that soar above the Earth's surface.

Even though Pennsylvania is home to a great richness of life, our biodiversity is threatened. Natural events such as storms and fires have impacts on biodiversity, but nature is usually able to renew itself over time. However, human influences can cause extensive, irreversible effects on biodiversity and affect the overall health of our environment. Do your part to conserve Pennsylvania's biodiversity; our very existence depends on it! Learn More: Visit www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: 'Earth Day Central,' www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWords 'Biodiversity Jr.') or check #12 on your Free Stuff Card (page 7) to receive a free Biodiversity CD-ROM.

Real Kids Care: Chris Mitchell

A Falcon Data Recorder – sounds like a pretty important job, huh? Well, 15-year-old Chris Mitchell, a student at Central Dauphin East High School in Harrisburg, was challenged to the task and passed with flying colors!

For the last couple of years, peregrine falcons have been nesting on the 15th floor of the Rachel Carson State Office Building in Harrisburg. Last summer, Chris had the honor of being DEP's official falcon data recorder. He was responsible for writing down each bird's gender, weight, color, band number and any health issues observed by the wildlife biologists.

"Just being close to the falcons was exciting," Chris said. "You see them on the Internet and they look so small, but up close these birds are huge!"

As a member of the Falcon Watch and Rescue Team, Chris helps monitor the birds through binoculars to make sure the fledglings don't fall or land in the street as they begin to fly. And, last fall, Chris got the chance to spread his wings even more, so to speak, as he volunteered to band owls at the Ned Smith Center for Nature & Art in Millersburg. Learn More about environmental activities for kids at www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWords 'Planet PA').

Return of the Raptor

Peregrine falcons nest on a ledge of the 15th floor of the Rachel Carson State Office Building in Harrisburg. This nest is one of 10 active nesting sites in Pennsylvania. The reintroduction and recovery of the peregrine falcon as well as other native species, helps reclaim biodiversity that is our heritage. Learn More: Catch a glimpse on the webcam or check out the photo gallery at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: 'Falcon' or www.GreenWorks.tv (GreenWords 'Falcon').

What Are Endangered Species?

Plants and animals in imminent danger of extinction are known as "endangered species." Loss of wetland habitats, particularly large connected pieces of land, is the foremost factor currently affecting at-risk, threatened and endangered species in Pennsylvania.

The Masked Turtle

The bog turtle is an endangered species known for its large red-orange or yellow blotch behind each eye, against an otherwise brown body lightly marked with orange or yellow. The primary reason for the bog turtle's troubles is the draining and destruction of its habitat. It is important to be aware that everywhere in nature is home to something. We must think twice before we carelessly disturb or destroy our state's wild places. Learn More: For an Earth Day poster highlighting some native species of Pennsylvania, check #13 on your Free Stuff Card (page 7).

Activity: Fun Is for the Birds

Birds are important to a healthy environment. They control insect populations, pollinate flowers, disperse seeds and even serve as food themselves for larger predators like the peregrine falcon. Feeding birds is a simple thing to do that can have a big impact on the health of our environment. Here's how fun can be "for the birds": Spread peanut butter on a pine cone and then roll it in birdseed. Tie a string to the cone and hang it from a tree or a hook near your window. Make a couple to attract even more birds. They will appreciate the meal, and the environment will appreciate your stewardship

Ahh, The Power Of Grilled Cheese!

In a search to find the tastiest grilled cheese recipes from coast to coast, the American Dairy Association and Mr. Food teamed up to ask cheese lovers to show local pride by submitting their favorite sandwich recipe featuring hometown flavors.

Here are the winning entries from around the country. No matter where you live, you are sure to enjoy these unique twists of the traditional grilled cheese sandwich.

SPICY CAJUN BAYOU GRILLED CHEESE

8 slices crusty, Italian bread
6 tablespoons pepper jelly
8 slices Pepper Jack cheese
2 links smoked sausage, grilled, each link cut into quarters and split lengthwise
8 slices muenster cheese

Spread butter on one side of each slice of bread. Spread pepper jelly on the unbuttered sides of four slices bread. On slices of bread with pepper jelly, place two slices grilled sausage over jelly. Cover sausage with two slices muenster cheese and top with remaining slices of bread, buttered side out.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over medium heat. Cook sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2 to 3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheeses are melted. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Southern Grand Prize Winner

NEW YORK STRIP STEAK GRILLED CHEESE

4 ounces cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons horseradish mustard
1 cup baby spinach leaves, stems removed and coarsely chopped
2 New York strip steaks (about 8 ounces each), grilled to desired doneness
4 tablespoons butter, softened
8 slices hearty, white bread
⅔ cup canned, drained, or previously sauteed fresh mushrooms
4 slices Havarti cheese

In a small bowl, combine cream cheese and horseradish mustard. Stir until smooth. Fold chopped spinach gently into the mixture. Trim steak or any visible fat and thinly slice on the diagonal.

Spread butter evenly on one side of each slice of bread. On the unbuttered sides of each slice of bread, spread equal amounts of the cream cheese mixture. Layer four slices of bread each with approximately ¼ of the steak slices, and ¼ of the sauteed mushrooms. Top each sandwich with a slice of Havarti cheese, and remaining slices of bread, buttered side out.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over medium heat. Cook sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2-3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheeses are melted. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Northeastern Winner

HOOSIER APPLE/ SURPRISE SAMMIES

4 tablespoons butter, softened
8 slices cinnamon raisin bread
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
4 slices mozzarella cheese
1 Golden Delicious apple, thinly sliced

Hoosier Apple Surprise Sammies

8 slices cheddar cheese

Spread butter evenly on one side of each slice of bread. On the unbuttered sides of four slices of bread, spread equal amounts of peanut butter and top with one slice of mozzarella cheese. Place apple slices over the cheese, and top each sandwich with two slices cheddar cheese. Top with remaining slices of bread, buttered side out.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over medium heat. Cook sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2-3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheeses are melted. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Mideastern Winner

MR. FOOD'S PACIFICA PEAR GRILLED CHEESE

2 tablespoons butter, softened
8 slices (½-inch thick) crusty French bread, cut from a round loaf
4 slices muenster cheese
1 pear, cored, cut into thin slices
4 teaspoons raspberry preserves

Pacifica Pear Grilled Cheese

Heartland Pepper Harvest Cracked Wheat Grilled Cheese

8 ounces brie cheese, cut into 12 thin slices, rind removed

Spread butter evenly on one side of each slice of bread. On the unbuttered sides of four slices bread, layer one slice of muenster cheese folded in half, and four pear slices; spread with equal amounts of raspberry preserves.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over low heat. Cover and cook sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2-3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheese are melted. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Mr. Food

HEARTLAND PEPPER HARVEST CRACKED WHEAT GRILLED CHEESE

4 tablespoons buttered, softened
8 slices cracked wheat bread
4 slices Monterey Jack cheese
4 slices provolone cheese
8-ounces thinly sliced peppered roast beef or pastrami
12 slices cooked bacon, sprinkled with coarse ground pepper

Spread butter evenly on one side of each slice of bread. On the unbuttered sides of four slices of bread, layer one slice of Monterey Jack and one slice of provolone cheese. Place roast beef and bacon over cheeses, and top with remaining slices of bread, buttered side out.

Preheat a large skillet or griddle over medium heat. Cook sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2-3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheeses are melted. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Midwestern Winner

FISHERMAN'S WHARF GRILLED CHEESE

¼ cup mayonnaise
8 slices sourdough bread, cut from a round loaf
½ cup crumbled blue cheese
½ teaspoon ground pepper
2 tablespoons red onion, diced
8 ounces fresh crab or imitation crab meat, flaked
1 small green bell pepper, cut into thin strips
4 slices Havarti cheese
4 tablespoons butter, softened

Spread mayonnaise evenly on one side of four slices of bread. Layer each with two tablespoons crumbled blue cheese, ground pepper, onion, crab, bell peppers, and one slice of Havarti cheese. Top with remaining slices of bread.

In a large skillet or griddle, melt butter over low heat. Cook the sandwiches, in batches, if necessary, for 2-3 minutes per side, or until golden and the cheeses are melted. Serve immediately.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

It's all about the birds and the bees.

Spring's early insistence on rushing into summer picked up the pace recently for critters that snooze away the chilly months.

Nowhere is that more evident than at calf feeding time, when last week's imitation of July stirred the dive-bombing-bunch out of hibernation. Weeks earlier than usual, feeding calves began requiring a sort of weave-dodge maneuver to deliver bottles around an aerial threat that usually turns up only by early summer.

After being continuously buzzed by this slow-flying formation last year, it took some studying to pinpoint their source. The fat, slow-buzzing bumblebees would cruise around my head and ears as I fed calves, then suddenly disappear, as if into thin air. Finally, I spotted a couple of tiny, perfectly-round holes in the two-by-fours overhead which support the calf condo's metal roofing, and watched the pudgy bees neatly vanish into them.

Those bumblebees had tunneled holes right through the wooden beams to locate their homes snug against the shelter of the roofing. It would be hard to find a more ideal hibernation site than that, where the winter sun warms the metal roof, a secure and handy hideaway for a buggy bunch.

With increased hours of sunshine, enhanced by the early burst of heat, the bees were stirred into action earlier than usual. Naturally, their emergence for breakfast, and later reentry for the evening, coincide right on schedule with calf feeding.

We can coexist with bumblebees. Their foul-tempered cousins, the wasps, which also burst from winter sleep, are another story. Wasps are just plain-down hateful, and too often choose to build their papery nests in busy people-right-of-way places. Inevitably, a couple of tall cans of "wasp wipeout" arrive on the scene and in the coolness of evening, when these nasty bugs settle in for the night, we mount an attack.

Well, maybe it isn't a fair fight, this version of a stinging rebuke. But it works.

Equally persistent on moving into our turf, but more fun, are the birds, driven by spring frenzy to homestead anywhere they can find three square inches of nesting space. Which becomes a problem only when their space and ours cash.

Robins — those rusty-breasted, cheerful-songed, harbingers of spring — are notorious for their nest-siting. Each year, The Farmer relates new tales of robin nests in equipment: poked into tractor motors, packed into mufflers or balanced on truck frames. This year they chose the spray ring, with two pairs sharing the same piece of equipment. The pairs balanced their nesting effort, one out on each of the opposite folding spray booms. Maybe one of them was the robin he earlier evicted from a tractor cab.

Who knows? Maybe they planned to snatch worms on the move and save the effort of flying.

The robins he finds entertaining. Not so the busybody blackbirds that — literally — stripped away the outer layers of protective paper from a bag of seed corn left uncovered in the machine shed, shredding and carrying off bits of the paper to feather, or maybe wallpaper, their nests.

After the birds and bees came the beasts — at least a beast — getting into the act.

On a very warm afternoon last week, I paused at our little greenhouse to run a bucket of water for some potted pansies beginning to droop in the heat. When a rustling started back in the far corner, stuffed with a Norfolk Island pine and several large sprawling plants, I glanced back to see which cat was lounging around in there this time.

The head that popped out from around a large potted calla lily was not of a cat. It belonged to a groundhog. A groundhog? And a big one! Without thinking, I turned the hose toward the spot from which the startled chuck had already disappeared.

In a split second, though, one of those quick "management decisions" was made, based on the realization that I was standing, barefooted, at the only exit. I departed as quickly as the groundhog had.

No sign of a groundhog in the greenhouse has turned up since. My level of comfort, frankly, would be a lot greater if I'd seen the tail end of that "hog" fleeing across the yard toward the field.

Pennsylvania Has Its Share Of Tasty Wild Mushrooms

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Musky, dusky and risky for the uninitiated, wild mushrooms are gaining in popularity as American palates look for new taste treats. Although the Pacific Northwest is known as Mushroom Mecca, a mycologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences says Pennsylvania should not be faulted in the fungus department.

"I don't think people from the Northeast should look to the Pacific coast as the North American haven of exotic wild mushrooms," says Elwin Stewart, professor of plant pathology. "Pennsylvania is blessed with a diverse fungal flora that includes many of the most revered of edible species."

Indeed, Pennsylvania fields and forests are home to at least seven species of popular wild mushrooms. Bearing such exotic names as king bolete, morels, chicken of the woods, shaggy mane, horn of plenty and oyster mushrooms, you can find these fungi growing abundantly throughout the state — if you know where to look. "Most of the edible wild mushrooms grow in forested areas, although there are several that thrive in open fields," Stewart says.

Despite Pennsylvania's rich bounty of wild species, Stewart sharply warns against picking any kind of mushroom unless accompanied by an expert. "You should either learn from a mycologist or join an amateurs club," Stewart says. Mushroom pickers should buy a good field guide as well.

Stewart recommends first learning what mushrooms not to pick. Most, but not all, deadly mushrooms in Pennsylvania are Amanita species. These mushrooms vary widely in appearance, but some common characteristics are white spores, a veil hanging from where the cap meets the stalk, and a cup-like or bulbous base.

"Poisonous mushrooms are very toxic and in most cases lethal," Stewart warns. "Although there are few deaths annually from mushroom poisoning, in this case, one mistake could be your last."

Once toxic mushroom recognition has been mastered, Stewart suggests tackling edible wild mushrooms one species at a time. "Learn its developmental stages and habitat, then branch off into other species. Learn three or four edible species in your area that have a fruiting season spanning from spring to mid- or late fall," he says.

Boletus edulis. Called "king bolete," these have a thick stalk and a nut-like cap. They are found near the roots of trees.

Laetiporus sulphureus. Called "chicken of the woods," this fungus grows as a parasite on dead wood. The creamy yellow/orange mushroom forms a cascading series of shelves resembling a lava flow, and yes, it tastes like chicken.

Coprinus comatus. Known as "shaggy mane," these are abundant in the fall. They have a large cap that looks somewhat like an artillery shell. These should be eaten shortly after picking or the cap will deteriorate into a gooey mass. This mushroom is found in grassy fields.

Langermannia gigantea. Known to kids far and wide as a "giant puffball," this fungus must be eaten fresh, when its flesh is white. They are found in fields.

Craterellus cornucopiodes. The "horn of plenty" is black and looks rather unappetizing, but its trumpet-like shape is recognizable, and the mushroom is quite tasty.

Pleurotus ostreatus. Called "oyster mushrooms," these fungi look fragile and flare from the stem. They have a slightly meaty taste.

Morechella esculenta. The morel, which resembles a pine cone or Christmas tree-shaped sponge on a stalk, is commonly found in the spring in wooded areas.

Stewart credits the wild mushroom renaissance in part to Americans' fascination with outdoor activities and environmental causes. "There is also increasing cultural diversity as Asians and Europeans immigrating to this country bring their love of mushrooms," Stewart says. "I've been collecting these things for 22 years, and they seem to get more popular every year."

Stewart cautions that most wild mushrooms should be eaten as soon after harvest as possible. He adds that almost all wild mushrooms can be frozen or dried without losing much flavor. If stored in a refrigerator, the mushrooms should be in a paper sack. "If you put them in a plastic bag, humidity builds up, and the small amounts of bacteria and yeasts that are present when the mushroom is picked will multiply rapidly. Then, there is a good chance you will get sick from the bacteria, not the fungus," he says.

Although wild mushrooms can be delicious, freshness can be a problem. For instance, the giant puffball emits a terrible odor once it has gone bad. Stewart says the best way to judge freshness is by appearance. "If it looks bad, it probably is bad," he says.

Stewart says wild mushrooms can be found in almost any location. Indeed, he has found several species in areas only a short distance from Penn State's University Park campus.

Flavorful And Distinctive: Mushrooms

Grilled Portabello Potato Topping

- 4 baking potatoes (8 to 12 ounces each)
- 1 large fresh portabello mushroom (6 to 8 ounces)
- 5 teaspoons olive oil, divided
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 cup thinly sliced onion
- 1 cup thinly sliced green pepper
- 1 cup diced tomatoes
- ½ teaspoon dried oregano, crushed

Wash potatoes thoroughly so skin may be eaten. Pierce several times with a fork and bake at 425°F 50 to 60 minutes until tender. Remove stem from mushroom; chop and reserve. Combine 1 tablespoon olive oil, vinegar, salt and pepper to taste; brush mushroom cap with mixture. Broil rounded side up four inches from heat source, about two minutes. Turn mushroom cap, brush with oil and vinegar mixture, and broil one to two minutes until mushroom is thoroughly heated; set aside. Saute mushroom stem, onion, and green pepper in remaining oil and vinegar mixture, oregano, salt and pepper to taste. Add tomato and heat thoroughly. Cut or pierce tops of potatoes lengthwise; squeeze ends and push toward center to open. Slice broiled mushrooms and arrange on each potato then spoon ¼ of vegetable mixture on top of the mushroom slices. Makes four servings.

As an appetizer, fresh mushrooms are easy to prepare:

- 1 pound fresh medium mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon of butter
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 1 teaspoon dill weed
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice
- 1 cup sour cream

Wash and dry mushrooms. In a large skillet, melt butter or margarine and add the garlic. Add the mushrooms, dill weed, pepper, lemon or lime juice. Cook for 10 minutes or until mushrooms are tender. Pour a small amount of liquid into sour cream and blend. Spoon sour cream over mushrooms and mix to thoroughly coat the mushrooms. Refrigerate eight hours or overnight to marinate. When ready to serve, place in chafing dish or 325°F oven for a few minutes to gently heat the mushrooms.

Insert toothpick into each mushroom for individual appetizer serving. Makes two dozen.

Mushroom Salad Parisienne

- ¼ cup red wine vinegar
- ¼ cup Dijon-style mustard
- ¼ teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- ¼ teaspoon tarragon
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh chives
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ¾ cup vegetable oil
- 1 pound fresh mushroom, thinly sliced

Place vinegar, mustard, oregano, tarragon, chives, parsley, salt and pepper in a medium mixing bowl or blender. Slowly add the oil in a thin stream while beating vigorously or while the blender continues running. Refrigerate dressing in a glass jar. Just before serving, toss dressing with the sliced mushrooms and serve. Makes six servings.

Mushroom Crust Quiche

- ½ pound fresh mushrooms, coarsely chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- ½ cup chopped green onions
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 9-inch prepared crust

Saute mushrooms until golden, about 10 minutes; stir in bread crumbs. Pat mixture into the prepared nine-inch crust which has been placed in a nine-inch pie pan. Combine cheeses and remaining ingredients; spoon into the prepared crust. Bake at 350°F for 35 to 45 minutes until puffy and golden. Cool about eight to 10 minutes before serving. Makes one nine-inch pie. Makes four servings.

Open House, Plant Sale

ANSELMA (Chester Co.) — Come explore the Anselma Mill. On Saturday, May 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. the second annual Mother's Day Open House and Plant Sale will be conducted at the Anselma Mill, located on Rt. 401, one-half mile west of Rt. 113.

Enjoy a free tour of the historic grist mill and grounds. Mother's Day flowers, spring annuals, perennial and native trees will be for sale at competitive prices, as well as gifts and souvenirs. There will be a raffle for prizes from local businesses. The raffle drawing will be at 3 p.m. Hamburgers, hot dogs, snacks and beverages will be available, along with face painting for the kids.

The Anselma Mill, originally constructed in 1747, was a bustling place where local residents brought their wheat to be ground into flour, where news was shared, and business conducted. Today, efforts are under way to restore the Anselma Mill. When completed, the historic grist mill will operate once again for the enjoyment of school children, visitors and local residents.

For more information, contact the Mill at Anselma Preservation and Educational Trust at (610) 917-0447 or at hparmenter@juno.com.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We've had a few small showers recently and everything is getting green. That includes our strawberry patch that was quite weedy until I pulled the weeds and then hoed it. It has been at the same spot for 10 years and I think that it should be replanted. But, I'm sure the two 50-foot rows will be plenty for me to pick in June.

My husband, who hobbles around with a cane, ordered 10 rose bushes. So, we managed to dig deep holes and plant them in an extended bed. I thought our present plants were dead but he found tiny sprouts at the base of the bushes. If they grow, we should have lots of roses.

Last week it was my turn to teach our Bible Study group. I think that the leader gets to know more about the lesson than many others as she has to read and reread the lesson and hunt up references. Our group does a lot of discussion and that helps to fill the time.

Our grandchildren range in age from one to 21. The oldest will graduate from Duke University in May while another grandchild attends a college in Richmond. The youngest lives in Maine and so we see more pictures of him then we see him in person.

The other Saturday night we took three grandchildren to see a ventriloquist perform. The children were not sure what to expect, but I think they enjoyed the program. Especially as it ended with a "make your own sundae."

Children grow up so quickly and one of the three, that live on the farm, will be in middle school next year.

Lancaster County's Number One Industry Seeks New Representatives

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Years ago, one of the top daytime game shows was called, "Queen for a Day." Housewives from all over America would vie for the honor and prizes awarded to the lucky woman who would receive that title.

Lancaster County, as well as 30 plus other counties, the dairy industry annually offers the opportunity for young women to become 'Princess for a Year." The fortunate young women who participate in the program have the honor of promoting milk, other dairy products, dairy farmers, and the dairy industry for an entire year, beginning with their coronation, and ending on June 30 of the following year. It would be hard to find better products or a better group of people to represent. Although dairy industry does not offer the magnitude of prizes that 'Queen for a Day' contestants received, the contestants do not go away empty handed, either.

In Lancaster County, the princess receives a sash and crown, a speech course, a wardrobe, luggage, a dozen roses, an engraved pitcher, and a scrapbook to record all the priceless memories and experiences she will have when she is "Princess for a Year."

By being dairy princess, a young woman will develop her public speaking and public relations skills. The contacts she makes at her many appearances may serve to further her personal career ambitions. Her numerous attendants all receive the same priceless memories, share in her experiences, and are given a gift at the end of the year.'

The Lancaster County Dairy Promotion Committee wants candidates for dairy princesses, ambassadors, dairy misses, and dairy darlings to serve for one year, beginning after the pageant on June 22, and ending on June 30, 2003. Princess candidates can be any single woman, never married, whose parents or guardians are engaged in dairy farming, or are employed in a dairy related industry. A candidate may also qualify by owning 4-H or FFA project animals, working on a dairy farm herself, or by serving for a full year as a dairy ambassador. She must be at least 16 years old by July 1 of the year of her reign.

Dairy ambassador candidates must be at least 13 years old by July 1, be a user of dairy products, and have a sincere desire to promote the dairy industry. Daughters, granddaughters, nieces, or sisters of a dairy farmer, dairy farm manager, or someone employed fulltime in a dairy related industry such as hoof trimmer, dairy-grain supplier, raiser of replacement heifers, etc, as long as there is some dairy industry connection, are eligible to serve as dairy ambassadors.

Dairy Misses have the same qualifications, but range in age from 10 through 12 years old by July 1. The youngest promoters are Dairy Darlings, who are young ladies 8 or 9 years old by July 1.

The committee is appreciative of members who have a genuine interest in promoting milk. Even if involvement is limited to helping with the milk wagon at fundraising events, assisting only with the pageant, or just helping supervise promotions, input is needed and appreciated.

A Dairy Princess Social is scheduled for Friday, May 3, 7:30 p.m. to further explain the program to all interested princess candidates and prospective ambassadors.

Call Dale Smith at (717) 336-0553 for more information about the social, or to apply for any dairy royalty position.

Plan to attend the Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pageant at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on Saturday, June 22, beginning with a social at 7 p.m.

Learn Beekeeping

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — The Capital Area Beekeepers Association offers a short course in basic beekeeping, Saturday, May 11, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Nature Center, in Dauphin. The second day will be Saturday, May 18, from noon to 5 p.m., at the Milton Hershey Farm Conference Center and Apiary, Hershey.

This course is sponsored by the association in cooperation with the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Hiving a package of bees and the opportunity to get hands-on experience in an operating apiary will be two of the highlights of the course. Topics will include bee-ology, diseases, parasites and pests, equipment, hive management, harvesting and marketing, byproducts of the hive, apiary location and setup, colony inspection, and colony manipulation. Table displays of beekeeping equipment, books and periodicals, and other beekeeping topics will be offered.

A random drawing will award a hived package of bees and other door prizes to beginning beekeepers. Refreshment breaks will feature homemade foods made with honey.

Many experienced beekeepers will be in attendance to assist in responding to questions and concerns.

A certificate of completion will be awarded to each new beekeeper completing the course.

Preregistration is requested before Monday, May 6. Course fee is $25 per person. Participants are encouraged to bring a bee veil and protective suit, if possible. A brown bag lunch is suggested, although, fast-food restaurants are located nearby. For a registration form, location map, and lodging information contact Sam Albright, 605 South Mountain Road, Dillsburg, PA 17019, or call (717) 432-2628.

At Summertime Auctions, Ice Cream A Hot Ticket

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — If you find yourself at a benefit auction on a warm day, follow the sound of steady chugging and the sight of the smokey furl from an antique engine.

Amidst the crowd gathered around the machine will be a silver canister brimming with ice cream manufactured by the agitating action from the engine.

Also at the engine will be Sam and Grace Gish, serving dips of the gallons of ice cream they will scoop out during the event. They are joined by Sam's brother Eugene and Eugene's friend Anna Swartz in most of their ice cream making efforts.

During the day, they will make many gallons of their famous concoction (Grace altered the recipe originally from Ohio) that is crowned with Grace's homemade strawberry and black raspberry toppings.

Milk The Main Ingredient

One batch includes a gallon and a half of milk, besides pudding, white and brown sugar, cream, and eggs. For the black raspberry variety, black raspberry syrup is added in place of milk. The couple creates chocolate ice cream with chocolate milk and chocolate pudding.

Besides these standard flavors, however, they have sold an alternative variety, according to Grace. During one event, Grace's cousin Clair Burkhart took what he thought to be black raspberry syrup from the refrigerator and used red beet juice in an entire batch of ice cream.

"People ate the whole thing," said Grace. "They just laughed and thought it was funny. It doesn't seem to matter how you make it. People will just eat homemade ice cream."

Even while she was fine tuning the recipe, said Grace, and came up with a few less-than-perfect batches, she always seemed to someone who would eat it.

All of the ingredients go into the canister, which is surrounded by 45 pounds of ice and 10 pounds of salt "and enough water to get it started," said Sam. The ice and salt bring the ingredients' temperature down to the frosty level needed for ice cream.

The engine churns the canister for 15-25 minutes. "When the engine stalls or the belt slips off," said Sam, the ice cream is done. "Anyone that makes homemade ice cream will know when it's finished because you can hardly turn it," he said. Timing is important, said Grace, since once the top is open it is difficult to reclose, so the ice cream must be ready for consumption when the top comes off.

"Sam just knows when it is done," said Grace. The secret, he said, is waiting until the ice cream is stiff enough, and to make sure the mixture is sufficiently surrounded by salt.

Sam and Grace Gish are joined by grandchildren Tom, 13; Nathan, 12; Aaron, 10; Zach, 8; Maddie, 6; and Caleb, 7, in front of an antique engine the couple uses to make homemade ice cream.

> "It doesn't seem to matter how you make it. People will just eat homemade ice cream."
> Grace Gish

In the garden Grace raises the black raspberries and strawberries that make the toppings. "I always run out of that," she said.

Ohio Relief Sale

Their participation began when Sam noticed an Amishman making homemade ice cream at the relief sale in Ohio.

The man came in to teach them the art of making ice cream with antique engines at the Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) relief sale in Pennsylvania. After he came for two years, the Gishes purchased their own rig and began making ice cream for other events, as well.

One aspect that attracted the couple to the process was the engines. "The interest first was in these old engines," Grace said. "My husbands collected old engines and didn't have anything to do with them" until he and Eugene were at the Ohio sale and saw that they were making ice cream with the engines, she said. "It really started with the engines — the engines were the hobby."

The couple, former dairy farmers, were also attracted to the possibility of promoting milk products, since "we were pretty much involved in dairy farming and dairy farmers like to promote milk," said Sam. They milked 70 cows on 130 acres before they went into trucking. Their son now lives on the nearby home farm.

Maddie Gish approves of her grandmother's homemade strawberry topping.

Although Sam still enjoys collecting engines, he has sold the ice cream rig to Eugene. Sam functions as the "mechanic that keeps it going," said Grace, and the couples work together to make ice cream for several functions.

Kraybill Mennonite Sale

Organizers of the sale at Kraybill Mennonite School were eager to incorporate the novelty ice cream making process into their sale day, so the Gishes began making ice cream for that event 17 years ago.

During the day they will make 20 batches — at five gallons of ice cream per batch. Each batch serves 60-70 people, estimates Sam.

Of their five children, four graduated from the school. They also have six grandchildren enrolled at the school, four grandchildren who have graduated, and four who will attend the school.

In addition to the Kraybill sale, they also make ice cream for Lancaster's Make-A-Wish Foundation on Mother's Day, besides Pennsylvania's MCC Relief Sale. At the MCC sale in two days they make 40-45 batches.

The Elizabethtown Fair, conducted in August, is warm enough for Eugene to average nine batches of ice cream a day for six days, according to Sam.

Eugene also makes ice cream for other numerous nonprofit events during the summer.

The Gishes make ice cream for the senior citizen's group at their church each summer, besides the church's Bible school and family get-togethers. When they sell the ice cream at commercial events such as Falmouth goat races, proceeds go to the church.

The couple enjoys meeting people at the events, said Sam. "Everyone is friendly — it's everyone's social hour."

Several sizes of ice cream freezers, from two- to ten-quart sizes, sit around the Gish home, which they use for smaller-sized batches of ice cream for their own use.

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Kraybill Mennonite School's 25th Annual Benefit Auction will be conducted May 10 and 11 at the school, Kraybill Church and Gibble Road, Mount Joy. The festivities begin on Friday with a craft show, lawn and garden show, and southern style pig roast, along with an antique and collectibles auction. On Saturday the craft show reopens and the auction, which includes quilts, goods and services by local and national businesses, and outdoor items such as mulch, plants, garden tools. For more information call (717) 653-5236 or click on check kraybillmennonite.org/auction.

Seminar To Examine Bioterrorism, U.S. Food Supply

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Anticipating potential terrorist threats to the nation's food supply, a one-day conference on "Risk Management and the Threat of Bioterrorism in the Food System" is planned for May 2 at the Executive Education Center on Penn State's University Park campus.

The seminar, a joint venture of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and Penn State Executive Programs, will prepare senior managers to face changes posed by global events. Barry Zoumas, the Alan R. Warehime Professor of Agribusiness and Food, says the conference features experts on crisis management, public affairs, bioterrorism and legislative policy.

Executives and senior management engaged in quality-assurance issues, recalls, security and safety in the food and agribusiness industry will benefit from attending this seminar. Zoumas says the conference will address crisis management concerns faced by food producers, food-processing and distribution industries, biotechnology companies and insurance and industrial security firms.

Ernest Del Bueno Jr., vice president of Rowan and Blewitt Inc., will be a keynote speaker. With more than 20 years as a crisis and public affairs expert, Del Bueno served as public affairs officer for the U.S. Coast Guard during the Exxon Valdez oil spill clean-up. He is the author of an antiterrorist contingency plan for the Port of New York.

Caren Wilcox, co-keynote speaker for the seminar, is former deputy undersecretary for food safety for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. She developed strategic response mechanisms before and during critical food-safety emergencies and advised the U.S. secretary of agriculture on many food-safety issues and significant national recalls. She also served as adviser to the president and White House senior staff in 1992.

Other speakers will include Samuel Hayes, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture; Kelly Johnston, executive vice president for government affairs and communications for the National Food Processors Association; Bobby Richey, director of Food Safety and Technical Services in the Food and Agricultural Services division of the USDA; and Thomas Welgoss, director of risk management for the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority.

The conference is the first in a series of "Hot Topic" seminars that provide valuable insight into global events, technological advancements and breakthrough research likely to be posing challenges for senior managers and agribusiness executives now or in the future.

To request registration materials and a detailed schedule, call (814) 865-8301, or visit the Office of Conferences and Short Courses World Wide Web site at http:/conferences.cas.psu.edu/. For more information on seminar content, call Zoumas at (814) 863-2847.

A registration fee of $395 includes instructional materials, break refreshments and lunch. A block of rooms has been reserved at Penn State's Nittany Lion Inn at a special rate of $85 per day (single or double). Reservations can be made by calling (800) 233-7505 or (814) 863-5050.

Take Boating Safety Course

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will be offering an eight-hour Pennsylvania Fish Commission Basic Boating Class on three consecutive Thursday evenings, May 9, 16, and 23, from 7-9:30 p.m. at the Montgomery County 4-H Center.

Taught by George Greeby and Marilyn and Jim Lafferty, 4-H volunteers and certified instructors, this course is required for all personal watercraft users (including jet skis and wave runners) as well as all motorboat operators ages 12-15. It is highly recommended for any motorboat operator, regardless of age or experience. This course is somewhat more in-depth than the basic one-hour PWC course previously offered by the Fish Commission and will cover safe boating procedures, legal requirements and safety equipment.

Although there is no minimum age requirement to take a boating course, most courses are designed for students 12 years and older. Certification will only be awarded to those 12 and older who pass the test. The certificate will be honored in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Registration is required and attendance will be limited to maximize instruction. The cost is $5 per person, payable at the door or in advance, which includes all materials.

Drought-Resistant Landscape Helps Conserve Water

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many plants need ample moisture throughout the growing season. Even if the current drought lets up this summer, creating a landscape that is more resilient in dry weather can cut back on maintenance time and help conserve water.

"To develop a drought-resistant landscape, start by conditioning the soil," says Robert Nuss, professor emeritus of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Soil with organic matter holds water like a sponge.

"Before planting, incorporate about five bushels of compost, peat, rotted sawdust or similar material into the top 10 inches of soil for every 100-square-foot area. In addition to retaining water, this organic matter will provide nutrients and create air pockets important for healthy roots."

When you're ready to plant, select annuals, perennials, shrubs and trees that tolerate dry soil, and ask the supplier if they have been "hardened off." "Hardened-off plants receive less and less water prior to sale, so they are used to drier conditions," says Nuss. "If you grow your own seedlings, gradually cut back on water before planting them outside."

Buy only dark green, sturdy plants. "Tall, spindly plants with pale leaves won't tolerate dry conditions even if you provide adequate organic matter and mulch," says Nuss.

Drought-resistant annuals include amaranth, pimpernel, nicotiana, geranium, marigold, petunia, spider flower, annual phlox, cosmos, rose moss, annual pink, gloriosa daisy, dusty miller, annual baby's breath, strawflower, verbena, lantana and zinnia.

Perennials that do well in dry conditions are yarrow, butterflyweed, indigo, coreopsis, gaillardia, daylily, ageratum, liatris, flax, lupine, poppy, ground phlox, rudbeckia, soapwort, sedum, prickly pear cactus and many kinds of ornamental grasses.

Drought-tolerant trees and shrubs include box elder, silk tree, gray birch, hackberry, osage orange, Japanese black pine, bur oak, black locust, sassafrass, Siberian elm, Japanese barberry, flowering quince, sweetfern, gray dogwood, witch hazel, juniper, privet, bayberry, bush cinquefoil and staghorn sumac.

After you have installed your plants, one of the most effective methods of water conservation is weed control. "Weeds can consume more water than all of your ornamentals put together," says Nuss. "An effective, long-term method of controlling weeds is to put a three- to four-inch layer of mulch around your plants. This limits the need for hand weeding and using herbicides."

Determining the direction of prevailing winds and planting or erecting windscreens can drastically decrease your landscape's water consumption. "Wind draws a lot of moisture from soil and plant tissue," says Nuss. "Reducing air movement over your plants will reduce moisture loss."

Shrubs that make good windscreens include flowering quince (six feet), mentor barberry (seven feet), pea tree (15 feet), bayberry (10-12 feet), gray dogwood (12 feet) and privet (15-20 feet). Make sure to plant these shrubs at least five feet from your other plants so that they will not draw water from them.

Under extremely dry conditions, you can prevent moisture loss by spraying your plants with an antidessicant. Antidessicants are available at garden centers and are made of a latex-like material. The spray forms an invisible, watertight film over the leaves' surface. This film does not harm plants and wears off after a few weeks.

When watering your landscape, you may find that the moisture beads and runs off before the soil can absorb it. "Some kinds of soil absorb water with difficulty," says Nuss. "If you can't water your soil uniformly because of high clay or peat content, you can apply a wetting agent to reduce the surface tension of water and allow it to spread over the soil."

Soil wetting agents are available at garden centers. Some are meant for specific crops, so make sure you get the right one for your landscape. They usually are effective for about two months and then must be reapplied.

"It may not be possible to follow all these steps in one season," says Nuss. "But even following one or two can cut water consumption and make your landscape more resilient in dry weather."

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Notice: Several readers write that they have problems accessing this address. The common mistake is that readers are substituting an "i" for the lowercase "l (L)" needed in two places. If you are having problems reaching this address, please check to make sure you are typing a lowercase "l (L)" in both places and not a lower or uppercase "i" or "I."

QUESTION — Have a favorite recipe that your mother or grandmother is or was known for making? Send it in for the special feature on Mother's Day. Include a few paragraphs about your mother or grandmother — be sure to include their name. Photos are also encouraged. This is a great way to honor your mother or grandmother on Mother's Day. Will appear in the May 11th edition.

QUESTION — Audrey Brown, Connellsville, writes that her doctor put her on a fructose/sucrose-free diet. She is not allowed to eat anything with sugar, barley flour, brown rice, wheat germ, coldcuts, fruits, etc. She cannot find recipes for food that tastes good and makes a one-to-two person serving. Anyone able to help her?

QUESTION — An anonymous person e-mailed the following: "Many years ago, I spent my summers on my great aunt's farm, the Bowden & Northrup Peach farm on the main road between Danville and Bloomsburg. My great aunt, my grandmother (her sister), my mother, and my aunt Sara, for whom I am named, made the most delicious peach butter (not apple butter). No one in the family has the recipe. Since I have used (successfully) some of the recipes found in your wonderful newspaper, I thought readers might be able to help me track down the recipe."

QUESTION — Rosalie Nolt wants a recipe for New England clam chowder, similar to Friendly's or Campbell's soup.

QUESTION — Peggy Hess, Lititz, wants a recipe to make barrel dill pickles.

QUESTION — A Pine Grove reader wants recipes for different kinds of soft pretzels and different coatings for chicken and vegetables for deep frying.

QUESTION — Josephy Steffey wants a recipe for deer bag bologna that tastes like Lebanon bologna.

QUESTION — L. Wolf, Elkridge, Maryland, requests any good soup recipes.

QUESTION Beth, Hampstead, Md., requests a recipe for oriental chicken salad that tastes like that served at Appleby's.

QUESTION — Nutritionists keep telling us to eat more vegetables. A reader needs recipes to entice her family to eat them.

QUESTION — Barbie Beiler would like to have a recipe for cinnamon French bread sticks that taste like those served at restaurant breakfast buffets.

QUESTION — A reader wants some diabetic bread recipes that can be made in a bread machine.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted a soup recipe, here is one from Audrey Brown, Connellsville.

Mother's Potato Soup

6 potatoes, peeled, diced
3 carrots, diced into tiny pieces
6 celery stalks and leaves, diced
2 quarts water
1 onion, diced
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 can chicken broth
2 bay leaves
½ teaspoon black pepper
1½ cups milk

In large kettle, cook potatoes, carrots, celery, and bay leaf in water until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain and save liquid. Set vegetables aside. In the same pot, saute onion in butter until soft. Stir in flour, salt and pepper; gradually add broth and milk stirring until thickened. Gently stir in vegetables. Add one cup or more of reserved cooking liquid until soup is desired consistency. Yield: 8-10 servings (2½ quarts).

ANSWER — Beth, Hampstead, Md., requested a recipe for a non-dairy whipped frosting like the frosting Wal-Mart uses on their cakes. Beth wrote that she has never tasted better icing but cannot seem to duplicate it at home. Thanks to Gloria Sweigart, Manheim, for sending this recipe. She isn't sure if it is like Wal-Marts, but it is non-dairy and keeps at least four weeks in the refrigerator in a tightly sealed container. This icing is not real sweet and is fluffy. The top dries so that it isn't real sticky.

Basic Non-Dairy Icing

2 pounds confectioners' sugar
¾ stick margarine, room temperature
1 cup Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ cup cold water (approximately)

Put all ingredients in large mixing bowl and beat at least 20 minutes.

Cocoa or peanut butter can be added. Gloria often adds both to achieve peanut butter fudge taste. Extra water may be needed. Adjust to your taste.

ANSWER — Elisabeth Keener, Chambersburg, send in these recipes for the Adam's County reader who had requested recipes for borscht and canned black peas. Elizabeth writes: "The borscht is a very full-bodied and hearty soup, one I enjoy very much, especially during autumn and winter. Actually, I rarely use beef, since we are shepherds. I have used mutton or lamb with great success. Beef, veal or venison are fine too. Any piece of bony stew meat is suitable for this recipe. My son-in-law, who has no love for beets, begs me to make borscht for him. Don't try this without the spices because the soup will be very bland. The spices are far from being overwhelming in the flavor."

Borscht

Put into a 4-quart kettle and cover with water:
2 pounds beef fore shank
Tie into a piece of cheesecloth, add to beef, and simmer three hours:
1 bay leaf
15 whole allspice berries
6 peppercorns
Remove meat from bones and cut into bite-sized pieces. Return meat to broth. Chill broth and meat. Skim any solid fat from broth and discard.
Combine and let stand while making soup:
1 quart cubed, cooked red beets
¼ cup lemon juice
Add to broth and meat, cooking until cabbage and potatoes are tender, about 20 minutes.
3 medium red onions, sliced
3 cups diced potatoes
4 cups chopped red cabbage
2 cups tomatoes
½ cup chopped red bell pepper
2-3 teaspoons salt
Add red beets and lemon juice. Cook an additional 5 minutes. Remove spice bag. May be served with a dollop of sour cream seasoned with dill weed.

Black-Eyed Pea Salad

2 (15½-ounce) cans black-eyed peas, drained, rinsed
1 cup chopped celery
1 green bell pepper, chopped
1 large tomato, chopped
2 cloves garlic, pressed
5 green onions, sliced
4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
4-ounce jar pimentos, drained
Dressing:
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon celery seed
Stir together the dressing ingredients and add:
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup oil or water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Pour dressing over vegetables. Marinate overnight before serving.

Win one of these "cow prizes" offered to readers who participate in Lancaster Farming's June Dairy Month Drawing. Lou Ann Good, food and family features editor, displays some of the prizes totaling $500.

Enter Dairy Recipe Drawing To Win One Of These Prizes

June Dairy Month is "mooving" into the calendar of events. That means it's time to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

June Dairy Month salutes dairy farmers everywhere for their hard work in providing milk, which we so often take for granted. Lancaster Farming's annual drawing reminds us of all the wonderful dairy products available to produce culinary delights.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and of your family is preferred. We and our readers love to "see" the people who send in the recipes.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the picture.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are at least 18-years-old. We require this because children who send in recipes often inadvertently miss measurements, ingredients or a part of the instructions.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address. If we do not have your complete mailing address, we cannot send your prize if you win.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 3 to be eligible for the drawing. The state dairy princess and alternates will select the winners. Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winners will be printed in the June 29 issue.

Send entries to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522 or e-mail to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com.

Fruit Trees Are Best Planted In Early Spring

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Many landscapers say trees can be planted any time in the spring or fall, but a fruit specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences says fruit trees are best planted in early spring to be productive.

"Dormant fruit trees can be planted in the spring as soon as the ground is soft," says Robert Crassweller, professor of tree fruit. "Fruit trees can be planted any time in the spring, but the longer you wait, the longer it will take for them to grow."

Crassweller says planting fruit trees is relatively simple, if homeowners follow a few easy steps.

Tree handling. When plants arrive, check them thoroughly for damage. Report any damage or signs of poor handling to the nursery. If the tree is not to be planted immediately, store the tree in a cold area with roots covered in moist soil, sawdust or sand. "Never allow fruit tree roots to dry out," Crassweller says.

Allow trees to soak. Crassweller recommends placing fruit trees in water on the day before planting. "Allow the trees to absorb water for a minimum of four hours," Crassweller says.

Dig an adequate hole. The hole should be wide enough to take in the tree's root system without bending or bunching the roots. Dig the hole deep enough to keep the bud union two to three inches above the ground when the soil settles. "Grafted or budded trees always should be planted so the union is above the soil line," Crassweller adds.

Check the roots. "Check which side of the root mass has the most roots," explains Crassweller. "Set the tree so that the part of the root system with the most roots is pointed into the direction where prevailing winds originate to ensure stability."

Filling the hole. "Add four to six inches of soil while jiggling the tree up and down," Crassweller says. "The jiggling eliminates air pockets and surrounds all the roots with soil."

Next, fill the hole to within three or four inches of the ground line. Tamp the soil firmly and add remaining fill soil up to the ground line.

Water. Apply five gallons of water to each tree planted. "All roots and soil must be wetted," Crassweller says.

Fertilize. If you have not tested your soil, apply ½ (one-half) pound of 10-10-10 fertilizer per tree. This formula suits all fruit trees except pear trees. Crassweller explains that all pear trees should be fertilized with ¼ (one-quarter) pound of 10-10-10 fertilizer. "Sprinkle the fertilizer in a 12-inch-wide band," Crassweller says. "Keep the fertilizer at least six inches away from the trunk."

Add a tree guard. Crassweller recommends using a 15-inch by 18-inch length of ⅛-inch hardware cloth. Using the 18-inch dimension as the circumference of the guard, bury the bottom one to two inches into soil or finely crushed stone to reduce weeds and prevent rodent damage.

Bare root trees. If there is no soil on the roots, consumers must remember that about one-quarter of the system was removed when the tree was dug out. "To compensate for missing roots, trim about one-quarter of the plant top," Crassweller explains. "Balled and burlapped trees do not need as much pruning; just remove any broken or low branches."

Watering. Homeowners should begin watering in late June, depending on rainfall. If less than five inches of rain has fallen since planting, apply five gallons of water around the base of each tree. "You may want to hoe a slight ridge of soil around each tree to prevent water runoff," Crassweller says.

Streams and Lakes — Get Ready for Spring Fishing

LOST STREAM MAP

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible .a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true Computers made it possible to reprint the map Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day"

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Kids Korner

A game of soccer with dad and the kids releases pent-up energy, develops physical skills, and the give-and-take required in game playing. A workshop on "The Ups and Downs of Outdoor Play" will be examined at a workshop at the Farm and Home Center, April 29, from 7 p.m.-9 p.m. Cost is $5. The workshop will explore the many aspects of outdoor play, including great ideas for low-cost play activities and ways to keep children safe when playing outdoors. Call your local county Penn State Extension office to find out where the satellite workshop will be offered in other counties.

Deb and Tim Naumann with children Victoria, 7, and Ben, 5, believe in the importance of family play.

Better Kid Care Ideas From The Expert — Mom, Extension Teacher

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Victoria, 7, and her brother Ben, 5, always have plenty of ideas for fun in their home. That's because their mom, Debra Naumann, is in charge of the program Better Kid Care at the Lancaster Penn State Extension office.

Their mom teaches workshops on parenting and activities for children. She is always on the lookout for new ideas to entertain and teach parents and children. It's only natural, that their mom tries out ideas at home.

Recently, their mom taught a workshop on Music for the Non-Musical, a program that taught how non-singers can enjoy songs and music with children. They learned to make their own instruments and musical activities that add fun and laughter to children's lives.

"Parents are often so stressed for time," Deb said. "It's important to make quality time for family."

She believes parents must learn to say "no" to activities that clutter their time but offer little value to them personally.

She has ideas on how to involve kids in everyday activities such as preparing meals.

In addition to play articles, Deb also teaches workshops on the following:

- How do I get children to eat?
- Why won't children share?
- How do I stop a child from biting other children?
- How to become a registered child care provider and training for becoming a provider./

Some of ideas from the Better Kid Care program will be featured in upcoming articles on this page.

Many wonderful resources are available to parents and child care providers through the Better Kid Care program of Penn State Extension. Deb Naumann, in charge of the program at the Lancaster County Extension, said workshops, literature, books, videos, and theme sets including puzzles are available free or low cost to parents and childcare providers by contacting county extension offices or call 1-800-452-9108.

A basket filled with rhythm instruments is always available for Ben, 5, and Vicki, 7. Drums, bells, cymbals, tambourines, triangles, rhythm sticks, and maracas help children explore rhythm, volume, and pitch.

Kitchen Instruments

Why not make an instrument for each family member to form a family band? Take your band on a parade around the house, yard, or neighborhood. Here's how to make your own instruments from things you can find around the house:

- Drum — Use an empty oatmeal box or coffee can with a plastic lid. Children can color and paste paper decorations on the sides of the box or can. Use two wooden spoons or two smooth sticks for drumsticks.
- Jinglers — Metal measuring spoons on a ring make a terrific jingling sound.
- Ringers — Sew the ends of a six-inch piece of elastic to make a small circle. Attach several bells securely to the outside of the band.
- Tube Kazoos — Collect cardboard toilet paper or paper towel tubes; cut paper towel tubes in half to make two. Cover one end of the tube with wax paper. The kazoo is "played" by humming into the open end of the tube.
- Cymbals — Make cymbals by using two lids from pots and pans.
- Guitars — Stretch a variety of rubber bands around an empty shoebox.

Growing Together With Music

Music is much more than fun and games for children. It helps them to develop both physically and mentally. You don't need a wonderful voice to sing with children. They don't mind if you sing off-key. What they will remember is the fun and warmth of singing together as a family.

There are many ways to enjoy music with your children. Try these ideas for starters:

- Sing together without records.
- Listen to your child's made-up songs.
- Make up songs together.
- Sing along with records.
- Listen to quality recorded music.
- Dance to music.
- Put on a show.
- Have a family and neighbor sing-along.

Collecting Songs

Collect songs to sing with your children. Begin your collection by remembering the songs you learned as a child. These old songs still delight children today. If you can't remember any songs, ask other family members. When you try them out, you'll see which ones will become family favorites. Use these special songs again and again. Your family will come to treasure this collection more and more.

Lullabies

Children love to hear their name in a song. Make up a lullaby with your child's name in it. This is easier than it sounds when you use a familiar lullaby and change the words. You might want to add the names of others who love your child, such as grandma, grandpa, mama, papa, caregiver, and anyone else who is important to your child. Sing it often to comfort your child.

Nursery Rhymes

Just like songs, nursery rhymes and chants teach children a love of words. Try favorite nursery rhymes, and make some up yourself. Children love repetition, so say them over and over again.

Songs Help Children Learn

Songs help children learn throughout the day and are a great way to remind children of the things you want them to do. Sing about things in your child's life:

- Daily routines — diapering, brushing teeth, combing hair, and cleaning up.
- Safety reminders — rules about crossing the street, and the importance of buckling your seatbelt.
- Daily events — sing about what you did today and plan to do tomorrow.

Singing is also a good way to let children know about special events. You can sing about a special visit, holiday event, or any change in your routine.

Help children cope with being away from you. Remind children that you'll be back and sing about what they will do when you are gone.

You Ask You Answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

QUESTION — Kitty Legge, Ulster, wants to know if anyone has information on how to get a penpal from Scotland. Any age is fine. She also wants to know how to find information on her Cherokee Indian heritage. She does not have a computer.

QUESTION — Simon Renno, Mifflintown, purchased a grain cradle at a sale. The piece is in good condition, on the side is printed: H.S. Walck Greencastle, PA. Renno wants to know who is H.S. Walck, what year the cradles were made by that company, and what year they stop using them.

QUESTION — Linda Tyrpin, Jonestown, wants to know how to get rid of unwanted peonies without digging them out.

QUESTION — Lisa Ann Deardorff writes that a hand pump has been on their farm for at least 60 years. It still pumps water; however, the handle needs to be pumped at least 10-15 times before the water comes, and the handle will not stay down. When pushed down, it pops back up. Anyone able to tell her what is wrong or how she can fix it?

QUESTION — S.E. Brown, Richland, read somewhere that someone makes baskets from old phone books. She would like to know the name and address for the person or organization that does this.

QUESTION — Sara Stoltzfus, Cochranville, is looking for someone to fix the motors in her Niagara massage recliner. Does anyone know of anyone who is able to repair them?

QUESTION — Paul Cherniski, Unionville, wants to purchase an aluminum carport from a manufacturer and assemble it himself. The carports he sees for sale cost about $1,000, but the salespeople do not manufacture them. They order them, sell them, and install them to make a profit. He wants the name and phone number of the manufacturer.

QUESTION — E.G. Rebuck, Klingerstown, wants to know where to purchase rubber fingers for a chicken plugger.

QUESTION — Krista Schaible writes that a Bucks County friend needs information on how to get rid of colonies of bats. Their barn is literally infested with thousands of bats.

QUESTION — Shirley Orfanella, 1125 Slate Hill Rd., Quarryville, is looking for an old wooden "spool" like PP&L used for wire. She would like to use it to make a table.

QUESTION — L.Martin, Bethel, wants a Tri-Star vacuum sweeper or something similar in good working condition. If you have one to sell at a reasonable price, call her at (717) 933-8962.

QUESTION — Beth, no last name or address given, wants to know how to sterilize potting soil in the oven before planting vegetable seeds indoors.

QUESTION — Ella Ebersol, 311 Newport Rd., Leola, PA 17540, will pay for the following used books in good condition: "Easy Growth in Reading, Looking Forward," 5th reader, Winstone by Gertrude Hildreth (can't determine where the book was printed), and "Around the Corner," a Ginn Basic Reader by Ginn and Company, copyrighted 1948-1953-1957-1961, Phillippines copyright 1949.

QUESTION — Leon Spory, 730 Roaring Run Rd., Boswell, PA 15531-1946, wants seeds for a pole bean called Lazywife. He believes it is one of the best stringless bean he ever tried and is a good producer. He likes to plant a few seeds with the field corn, which eliminates the need for poles.

QUESTION — Margaret Marshall, Rochester Mills, wants the words to the poem, "Gossip the Barber," which she remembers was in a prose and poetry high school book in the 1940s.

QUESTION — Curtis Weaver, 1396 Creek Rd., Carlisle, PA 17013, has an Enterprize 2092 sausage stuffer and would like to buy a lard strainer basket and plate to fit inside. Anyone have a used one to sell or know where he can buy it new?

QUESTION — C. Faus, Hegins, has some questions about rhubarb stalks. She writes that in the fall, before frost kills the leaves, she harvests rhubarb stalks. The leaves will not feed the roots after they are killed by frost anyway. Some people say the stalks and leaves have poison in them at the that time of the year. Is this true? If so, why don't they have poison in them when harvested before June 21?

QUESTION — M. Nolt, East Earl, wants to know where she can purchase a cast iron 12- or 14-inch pizza pan similar to a Pizza Hut pan.

QUESTION — Nine-year-old Alvin Stoltzfus collects business cards. He would like if people would send a few from their businesses or a collection of one if they no longer want it. Send to Alvin Stoltzfus, 1195 Mondale Rd., Bird-in-Hand, PA 17505.

QUESTION — Mary Davis is looking for simple goat milk soap recipe that uses ice cubes.

QUESTION — Ronald Strawbridge, Brogue, wants to know where to purchase cast aluminum name plates, cast on one side only.

ANSWER — Mabel Harnish, Willow St., wanted to know how to keep deer out of her garden in the summer without putting up a fence. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for suggesting she buy a can of deer repellant spray available at an animal supply store such as Agway or Key Aid.

Also thanks to Phyllis Stitzel, Kutztown, who writes that she had the same problem in her strawberry patch. She heard to put Lifebuoy soap on a stick at the garden to keep deer away. She did and has not been bothered with deer since then. You must put a hole in the soap and tie it to the stick.

Cookie Tour Raises 'Dough' For Hospice, Peek Into Bed And Breakfast Inns

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MAYTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — An opportunity to tour 13 Lancaster County Bed and Breakfasts, nibble on a different cookie specialty at each stop, and raise money for Hospice will cost only $5 on Sunday, May 5, from 1 p.m.-5 p.m.

If you're fortunate, you can win a free night's stay at one of the participating inns of your choice.

Jeff Clouser, marketing coordinator for the Authentic Bed and Breakfasts of Lancaster County, said the event benefits Hospice and allows people to see the wide variety of services county inns offer. It's also an opportunity for participants to learn to know the innkeepers and their stories.

Clouser and his wife Julie operate Maytown Manor, an 1880 federal-style home referred to locally as the Hiestand House. Both Clousers have a degree in education, but have always been active in food service-related jobs.

Friends and family members have often commented on the Clousers' flair for turning ordinary dinners into memorable experiences. Extending their natural affinity for hospitality to operating a bed and breakfast seemed a natural progression for this young couple.

When the couple purchased the property in June 2000, they viewed it as a potential site for a bed and breakfast in upcoming years, but the dream became a burning desire, and the Clousers decided to go for their dream immediately.

"We're good at ripping things apart," Clouser said of their efforts to redo the home into a guest rooms with private baths, rewiring, and repainting. With the help of an interior decorator friend, the couple achieved an appealing inn.

They named each of the three guest rooms after a historical person who had lived in Maytown. The Whitaker room is named after the operator of the Whitaker Ferry, the Taylor Room is named after a U.S. Ambassador to Germany, and the Cameron Room is in honor of Simon Carmeron, a U.S. Senator during Abe Lincoln's presidency.

Upstart expenses for inns are costly. And three guest rooms do not provide enough income for both Clousers to make a full-time career of their dream. Julie is a supervisor for Tyco, and Clouser works part time at the Dutch Apple.

"The dream for a bed and breakfast was perhaps stronger for me than my wife," Clouser said. For that reason, he does more of the general upkeep around the place. The Clousers have no additional staff, so all cleaning, laundry, cooking a big breakfast, and maintaining a spacious lawn keep the Clousers very busy.

"We need our own space," Clouser said of retaining a private apartment within the house. "It also enables guests to feel more relaxed because they don't feel like they are invading our space."

Guests have access to a library/entertainment room. The walls and built-in bookshelves are made from knotty pine. An oriental room and antique chairs offer an inviting spot to curl up with a book or watch television.

Breakfast is served in the formal dining room complete with heirloom china passed down through Julie's grandmother.

Tickets for the Bed and Breakfast Cookie Tour are available for $5 a person at all participating inns, and can be purchased the day of the tour. Proceeds from the event will benefit Hospice of Lancaster County.

The mission of Hospice is to provide the highest quality supportive services to all persons in need of end-of-life care and their caregivers. Hospice care is for people with any illness including heart, lung, cancer, AIDS, and Alzheimer's diseases. Hospice advocates effectively for patient comfort, dignity, and choice, and serves a leading resource in clinical, ethical, and spiritual issues of end-of-life care.

A list of participating inns follows. Your ticket offers you admission and a cookie at as many of the 13 places you wish to tour. You need to stop by at least three of the inns to be eligible for the drawing for the free night's stay at the inn of your choice.

For more information about the Bed and Breakfast Cookie Tour, visit the Website www.authenticbandb.com or call (800) 552-2632.

Here is the recipe for Spice Tongue cookies to be served by the Amanda Gish House. Recipes for cookies served at the other inns will be available during the tour.

SPICE TONGUES
(6 dozen)

1 cup brown sugar
1 Tablespoon cinnamon
1 cup lard
1 Tablespoon baking soda
2 cups mild-flavored baking molasses
½ cup warm water
5½ cups flour granulated sugar
1 teaspoon ginger

Cream together sugar and lard. Blend in the molasses. Measure the flour before sifting, then sift together with the spices and soda. Add alternately with water to the first mixture. Chill overnight.

To shape next day: make balls of dough 1-inch in diameter. In the palm of your hand, flatten into the shape of a tongue. Place on cookie sheet 2 inches apart. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake for 12 minutes at 350.

Maytown Manor, a federal-style home built in 1880, is known locally as the Hiestand Estate.

Raspberry Chocolate Chip Cookies
The Artist's Inn

2¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter, softened
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
2 cups raspberry chocolate chips
1 cup toasted almonds, chopped

Preheat oven to 350. Combine dry ingredients in one bowl. Set aside. In large mixing bowl, combine butter, sugar, brown sugar, vanilla. Beat until creamy. Then add eggs. Gradually add flour mixture and mix well. Stir in chocolate chips and nuts. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto ungreased cookie sheets or cover sheets with silpat. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. 50 good-sized cookies, 100 small.

This recipe borrows the main ingredients from the original Toll House recipe — but substitutes toasted almonds for the nuts and raspberry chocolate chips for the regular chocolate chips. Enjoy!

Sour Cream Cookies
Kimmell House
Bed And Breakfast

Cream:
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup shortening
Add:
3 eggs — beat well
Add:
1 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons vanilla
Sift and add:
4½ cups flour (all purpose)
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt

Chill dough thoroughly; roll ¼ inch thick. Cut and bake on greased cookie sheet in 400 degree oven for 12 minutes.

Cloister FFA Members Recognized For Achievements

CAROL STARK
Special to Lancaster Farming

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — At the Cloister FFA awards banquet at Ephrata High School, many chapter members were recognized for their achievements at the local, county, regional, and state levels. In all the levels of competition, Cloister FFA students brought home many of the awards.

Matt Gerhart, Michelle Sweigart, and Jen Zimmerman have graduated but they are still part of their high school FFA. They won the American degree, a national award that shows great accomplishments among FFA members. Minimum requirements: they are an active FFA member for at least three years, have completed three years of an agricultural course, and that they have earned and productively invested at least $7,500 or worked at least 2,250 hours outside of class time in an SAE (Supervised Agricultural Experience) program.

The Keystone Degree was awarded to Kevin Felpel, Craig Felpel, Nate Moyer, Chris Rojahn, Nevin Copenhaver, David Fry, Kevin Martin, Justin Showalter, and Jim Zimmerman. These students received their degrees at Mid-Winter Convention at the Farm Show in January.

Brandon Shelly, Jaeson Orebaugh, Katie Sollenberger, Ashley Bollinger, Kelly Kurtz, and Holly Hoover received the Red Rose Degree.

The Red Rose degree is given to students who have two years in an agriculture education. To receive this award the candidate has invested his/her supervised agriculture experience program the sum of at least $300 a year or work experience program minimum of 400 work hours a year. The county presents this award to only eight percent of its members.

The star awards are presented to two students of outstanding achievements in SAE and FFA activities. One star is presented in the area of agribusiness to a student who is employed for their SAE program. The Red Rose Star in agribusiness was presented to Kate Sollenberger. The other star award was presented to Holly Hoover. She was presented this ag production award for conducting an SAE program in which she was the owner.

Chapter Degree awards were presented to Josh Adams, Alaine Gutierrez, Allen Fredrick, Kelly Good, Wesley Hoover, Kevin Logan, Brent, Eric, and Kari Martin, Jason McGallicher, Dustin Miller, G. Kaci Myers, Jessica Newsom, Kelly Rolinski, Robert Sauder, Zachary Shober, Jaren Showalter, Ryan Smith, Gregg Stauffer, Philip Weaver, and Jarvis Wenger.

The 2002 Cloister Chapter Star in agribusiness award was presented to Kari Martin. The second Star award was presented in the area of ag production to Alaine Gutierrez for conducting an SAE program in which they own and produce plants and animals.

The agriculture mechanical technology system award was given to Nate Moyer for his design, construction, repair and maintaining of electrical motors, agricultural equipment and structures. His program included the use of electricity and energy management systems and the wiring of agriculture structures.

The agriculture sales and/or service award was given to Ashley Bollinger and Jason McGallicher. These students were involved in working in sales of feed, seed, fertilizer and agricultural chemicals. These students worked in equipment operations and maintained agriculture management and finance services, small animal services, and animal breeding services.

The environmental science award was given to Brandon Shelly for his practical experience and concern with the principles and practices of managing and improving the environment.

David Fry received the vegetable production award. This award was given to a student who uses the best management practices available to efficiently produce and market crops such as sweet corn, berries, tomatoes, and fruits.

Other students winning proficiency awards were Gregg Stauffer, ag mechanic repair award; Alaine Guiterruz, specialty animal production award; Jim Zimmerman, the sheep production award; Chris Rojahn, the swin production award and Holly Hubbard and Holly Long, the home and/or community award.

During summer, for three days members across the state gather to compete in various career development events. Dairy foods has always been a big part of the Cloister FFA chapter. The 2002 dairy foods team that competed at Penn State consisted of Megan Lacava, Josh Adams, and Allen Frederick.

Another contest at Penn State was farm business management. Here students participate in a seven-part problem solving test, including net worth problems, income statements, cash flow problems, partial budget, enterprise analysis problems, marketing problems, and tax management problems. This group consisted of David Fry, Jordan Martin, and Nevin Copenhaver.

Penn State participants in the horse evaluation event were Katie Sollenberger, Nate Moyer, and Kelly Kurtz; Wes Hoover represented the Cloister chapter in the State Poultry event; nursery/landscape consisted of Justin Showalter, Ashley Bollinger, and Kevin Felpel.

On the county level representing the Cloister FFA, Kari Martin placed first and Holly Hoover placed third in the conservation public speaking contest; Kathy Zimmerman placed second; Megan Hensel, fourth; and Jen Colemen placed seventh in the creed contest; extemporaneous public speaking county winner Katie Sollenberger placed third; junior speech winner for Cloister was Clair Felpel, placing fourth, allowing her to be an alternate at regionals.

The Cloister FFA team placed first and will be competing at regionals next month for parliamentary procedures. The students that participated in this were Jaeson Orebaugh, Holly Hoover, Holly Hubbard, Holly Long, Kari Martin, Josh Hoover, Kelly Kurtz, and Katie Sollenberger.

Dairy judging is a regional event where students gather to judge dairy animals. Contestants were asked to judge several classes of dairy cows. While judging the animals, contestants are asked to look for the animal that has the best milking records, frame size, and body conformation. ## Twin Valley FFA Member Compete In Public Speaking

Members of the Twin Valley FFA competed in the recent Berks County FFA public speaking contests at Oley Valley High School. FFA members from the various Berks County chapters delivered speeches to judges to vie for the honor of representing the county in tri-county competition.

In the junior prepared speaking category students presented a three- to five-minute speech they had previously prepared followed by a five-minute question and answer period. Junior speakers must be first-year FFA members in ninth or 10th grade.

Placings of Twin Valley speakers were: Ann Troy, first; Miriah Reynolds, fourth; Kristin Biondi, fifth; and Corinne Truesdale, sixth. Ann's speech was on "You Pick Marketing." Miriah spoke on "Bird Conservation and Communication Towers." Kristin spoke on "Dolphin Therapy" and Corinne spoke on "Vaccination of Pets."

In the extemporaneous speaking category, contestants drew three topics from a hat. They then selected one topic to speak on and had 30 minutes to prepare a five- to seven-minute speech. Following their speech, judges had five minutes to ask questions. Danaan Stoltzfus, Twin Valley president, placed third in this contest with a speech on "How American Agriculture Expands Into Other Countries."

In the senior prepared category, members presented a six- to eight-minute speech they had previously prepared. After their speech students faced a five-minute question and answer speech. Senior speakers are typically 10, 11 or 12th graders. Twin Valley speakers were: Ashley Austin, fifth; Becky Peterson, eighth; and in alphabetical order Brittany Ross, Mindy Steve and Christine Trout.

In the Conservation category members presented a previously prepared six- to eight-minute speech on a conservation topic. Again a five-minute question and answer period followed the speech. Twin Valley competitors were: Justin Shupp, fifth, speaking on "Future Forests for Pennsylvania;" Allen Day, sixth, speaking on "Farmland Preservation;" Dan Halter, seventh, speaking on "Streambank Fencing;" Marlin Persheim, ninth, speaking on "The Pennsylvania Deer Problem" and Amanda Stoltzfus, 10th, speaking on "America's Wetlands.

The following Twin Valley FFA members will compete in the Tri-County contest. Ann Troy, Miriah Reynolds, Kristin Biondi, Corinne Truesdale, Danaan Stoltzfus, Ashley Austin, Becky Peterson, Justin Shupp and Allen Day. Additionally, Miriah, Dan Halter, Cody Frederick, Corinne Truesdale and Maddy Carroll will compete in creed speaking. Creed speakers will recite the FFA creed and then answer questions on the creed.

Speakers all hope to represent their chapters and the eastern region in the state contests in June at Penn State. First place state speakers in creed, senior prepared and extemporaneous speaking represent Pennsylvania in national competition in Louisville in October.

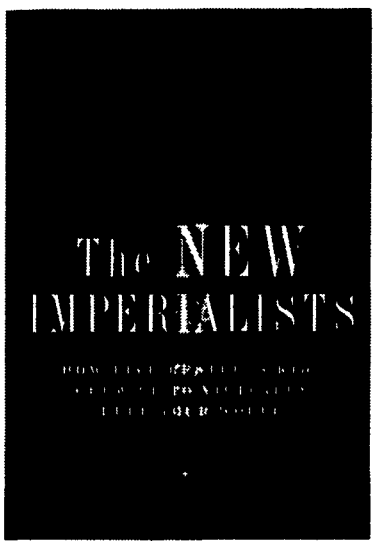
Mark Leibovich, national technology reporter for The Washington Post, looks at how "five restless kids grew up to virtually rule your world," according to the dust jacket of this semi-biography and semi-commentary, filled with enough anecdotes, presumptions, bias, hard opinion, and brilliance to make it shine on anybody's farm shelf.



The kids — Multibillionaire Bill Gates of Microsoft, Steve Case of AOL, Larry Ellison of Oracle, Jeff Bezos of Amazon, and John Chambers of Cisco — "became the contemporary faces of Capitalist ambition, or arrogance, or both," noted Leibovich in his introduction. "They were never content to do something so utterly mundane as 'build' successful companies. They needed to expand, expand, and expand through the boundlessness of cyberspace and into fresh global markets to find out exactly what they were capable of, what they could get away with, and how far they could go."

The book even has pictures — photos of all these guys, these present-day Rockefellers and Carnegies and Fords — who didn't build their global financial empires with oil and autos but with that desktop contraption that does just about everything for us. They who literally helped construct the Internet, an actual lifestyle for millions of Americans.

You have to remember some things about these guys. One, multibillionaire Gates came from money. According to Leibovich on page 144 in speaking about Gates and Steve Ballmer, Gates' closest friend and longtime deputy: "Gates is the great-grandson of the man who founded Seattle's National City Bank in 1911; Ballmer's father, a Swiss immigrant who settled his family in the Detroit suburb of Farmington Hills, was a Ford Motor Co. accountant who began trumpeting his expectation that his son would attend Harvard when the boy was 8."

William Henry Gates III "was a boy prodigy born into a wealthy Seattle family. His father, William II, was a prominent corporate lawyer; his mother, Mary, was active in local charities and was head of the local United Way Chapter."

So, the rich do get richer. And they strive to be something more than industrialists. They strive to be statesmen.

On page 218: "This is a common transformation among big-ticket technology CEOs. Once they reach a certain level of titanhood, they strive for statesmanhood. Bill Gates did, so did Intel's Andy Grove, Cisco's John Chambers, and others. They were no longer just hugely successful Capitalists, they were now Industrialists, posing with world leaders in photos posted on corporate Websites."

Interestingly, despite all this, Leibovich insists these guys are human, and gives us some of the laundry — and you'd be surprised to learn how much like us these new imperialists are. It's just that their problems are billion-dollar problems that, to some people, are no problems at all.

HOW TO RESTORE CLASSIC FARM TRACTORS, by Tharran E. Gaines. Voyageur Press, 2002, 256 pp., $29.95. ISBN 0-89658-455-0

88 Row Crop on page 39, that "before you get started, you'll need to establish your goals." Will you restore it as a work tractor or show tractor? Do you want the engine and transmission to be like new, or can you "live with something like a missing gear tooth"?

The book is a step-by-step guide to reworking the entire engine and all the parts, repairing the metal body, restoring all the individual parts (and we mean all, including parts you thought couldn't even exist on a simple tractor), and repainting and detailing.

The book ripples with color photos, lots and lots of photos, of vintage and collectible tractors from all manufacturers. It also has tractor show demonstrations from around the country. It has lots of stuff, almost too numerous to mention — it's a book created by love for tractor restoration that belongs on every farm shelf.

To order: visit your local bookshop or go online at amazon.com or b&n.com, or on the Web directly from www.voyageurpress.com. Orders can be mailed with a check or money order payable to Voyageur Press, P.O. Box 338, Stillwater, MN, 55082, with $4.95 shipping and handling per order. Or phone (800) 888-9653.

IRON MEMORIES, Vol. 1, Heartland Communications Group, Inc. 2002, 192 pp., $29.95. ISBN 0-9702411-2-7

IRON MEMORIES, according to the editors, provides "a tale of rural life seen through the eyes of our fellow farmers, ranchers, and equipment enthusiasts." The stories are arranged in a collage, and include restorations ranging from a 1959 John Deere 730 Diesel Standard to a 1962 Minneapolis Moline G704. Dan Peterman even contributes a guide to estimating restoration costs as well as a"how to" on restoring a tractor.

PENNSYLVANIA FAIR INFO AVAILABLE ON INTERNET

The Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) announces that their 2002 directory on Pennsylvania fairs, fair-related businesses, and the PSACF organization is available on the Internet.

Pennsylvania fairs are listed alphabetically by fair name, chronologically by fair dates, and by geographical area. Other information about each fair is available such as location, dates of the event, contact people, and driving directions.

Made In Lancaster County Premiers At Heritage Center Museum

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster has long been known for quality craftmaship and the preservation of many heirloom pieces. But finding numerous pieces in one setting and the history attached to each one is rare.

That's why the Heritage Center Museum of Lancaster County unveiled a new exhibition, "Made in Lancaster." The exhibit focuses on 200 years of craftsmanship by tradesmen and businesses.

Peter Seibert, executive director of the Heritage Center, said "Lancaster was the largest inland city. Many of its residents were wealthy and had money to spend on having elaborate furniture made. Colonists from England and Germany reflected the lifestyles of their countries."

The evolution of style, from the pre-Revolutionary era to the 19th century is also noticeable in a display of four chairs and four secretaries.

It's fascinating to see pieces of furniture side by side, one made by a craftsman with influence from Germany and the other from England. The German style, which is simple and sturdy contrasts with the elaborately-carved furniture by craftsmen from England.

On display is a collection of Amish furniture. An embroidered towel shows the handiwork of three generations, grandmother, daughter, and grandchild. These towels were hung as guest towels for decorative purposes.

A criterion for the display require that the maker was clearly identified. Some of the pieces were identified with a pencil scrawl signature on the bottom of a drawer, some a stamp of the company by which it was manufactures, some an identifying stencil or other mark.

Peter Seibert, executive director of the Heritage Center Museum of Lancaster County, explains the difference between wagon shafts built in the 18th and 21st centuries. The earlier ones were fashioned from wood. Today the hydraulic brakes are made from fiberglass which makes them more durable. Notice the mural painted wall that reflects a real carriage shop.

The exhibit would not be complete without a collection of Amish pieces that reflect its people's simple lifestyles for which Lancaster County is so well known.

Like today, many former businesses evolved because the work of a skilled tradesman was admired and desired by acquaintances.. Business often increased through word-of-mouth advertising,

Successful businesses looked for alternative ways to make more money. Such was the case of a skilled cabinet maker in Strasburg during the 18th century. The cabinet maker extended his services by making coffins. The need for coffins evolved into a prosperous family business that continues today as the Bachman Funeral Home.

On display are several pieces by the Bachmans such as a desk with J. Bachman's signature. The desk features a secret compartment for important papers that is hid behind document drawers. A chest of drawers by Christian Bachman is believed to have been made between 1830-1840.

Demuth Tobacco Shop was one of the longest running tobacco shops in the county. A 1775 display of old barrels, snuff mill with own brand of chewing tobacco, and trade signs and even a tabletop figure of a man holding snuff.

Rohrer's Liquors started in the late 19th century. They retailed and made wild cherry extract tonic and even published a popular songster that touted the qualities of the tonic. Rohrers was a profitable business until the Prohibition shut it down.

On display are many artifacts by Anna Weber, professional seamstress from 1830-1870s. Although there were many seamstresses from that era, Weber is unique in that she kept detailed accounts and diaries. Fifty years of recorded history have been preserved and are on display.

Seibert said that few people in previous centuries saved items because they did not realize the importance it would have in future generations. Today, people are prone to save too much, which, Seibert fears, may result in items not being as valued in upcoming generations.

Because photographs of clothing from the 18th century are often printed in black and white, people often have the tendency to believe people wore drab colors. Made in Lancaster shows many colorful outfits.

Admission to the Heritage Center Museum is free. The Made in Lancaster exhibit is on display from now through Dec. 31. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Adjoining the museum is the Museum Store filled with folk art and the work of many talented artists of today.

Snyder County Historical Society Summer Activities

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — The Snyder County Historical Society, 30 E. Market Street, Middleburg, is ready for their summer activities. Each Sunday starting on May 5 and ending Sept. 29, tour guides will be on hand at the society building from 1:30 p.m.-5 p.m. for the public to visit the society library and view exhibits in both the new and newly remodeled museums, Civil War Room and the Society's auditorium. Admission is free.

In addition, the first Sunday of each month will feature a special demonstration at 2 p.m. On May 5, the first demonstration for the season, will feature Kim Mattern of Middleburg, on the Native Americans of the Susquehanna Valley. Kim is a local archeologist who is very knowledgeable about Native American artifacts. He is affiliated with the Pennsylvania Historical Museum Commissioner as a volunteer. He has assisted the Pennsylvania Commission and PennDOT with many archeological projects such as the work on archaeological studies for the Selinsgrove 11 and 15 by-pass. He is currently working with A.D. Marble Co. on a lithic chert (flint) study in Snyder County. Hopefully the results will allow for the identification of individual chert source locations used by the Native Americans.

For more information, call (570) 837-6191 on Thursday or Friday from 10 a.m.-3:30 p.m. when the library is open for historical research.

Heritage Center Museum Classroom Opens

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Museum Classroom at the Heritage Center Museum is open on Saturdays from now through June 1, 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

The Museum Classroom is a hands-on room in which children and families can explore Lancaster County's history.

The Heritage Center Museum, 13 W. King St., is located on Penn Square next to Central Market, Lancaster.

If interested in scheduling a group visit or for more information, call Sheila Rohrer, public programs coordinator, (717) 299-6440. The Website is www.lancasterheritage.com.

Nothing Humble About Old Hooked Rugs

When 19th century pictorial hooked rugs come to auction these days, buyers will probably hang them as art. And why not when the price is several thousand dollars.

At a Skinner's February Americana auction the several rugs offered sold well over estimate. A wool hooked rug, c.1889 with a cornucopia motif fetched $4,113 over the $2,000/$3,000 estimate. A charming late 19th/early 20th century wool rug with a house and barn scene brought $2,115 over an estimate of $800/$1,200. Recognized as a form of American folk art they are getting the respect they deserve. The more interesting the subject, the higher the price.

While examples made in America in the 1820s are early examples, as "hearth rugs" they were made in Colonial days. The technique of hooking rugs can be first traced to the northeastern section of New England in Maine and Vermont. From there it spread to nearby areas of Canada. By the end of the 18th century they were also made in England, Scotland, and France.

Like quilt-making, hooking rugs was often a family or community activity for long, winter evenings. Not only women but sailors hooked rugs with a diversity of subjects, both pictorial and abstract. The usual subjects were animals, scenes, patriot symbols and surrounded by elaborate floral borders. They were so cherished that they were often made as an anniversary or wedding gift. They were also proudly displayed at county fairs.

CLUES: Collectors search for pre-Civil War examples that show the naieve style of untrained artists. After the Civil War, patterns were available, printed on burlap. When E.S. Frost offered mass-produced hooked rug patterns, it marked the beginning of the end of their charming, naieve quality.Traveling the countryside as a tin peddler he was asked by the many women making rugs for patterns. He and his wife were quick to first make patterns from their own designs. Next, he had stencils made and printed on burlap.

Shortly after that wool strips were factory made. This made rug hooking much faster.

The age of a rug can be identified by the techniques used and the subjects. The earliest were yarn sewn. The term "hooked" came from the use of a metal hook that was used to pull the yarn, into loops, through homespun linen, burlap or factory-woven cotton. As with quilting, leftover woolens or scraps were cut into strips The use of burlap sacking dates a rug to around 1850, when it became a practical foundation.

That many early rugs have survived, in good condition, is related to what used for their backing. Linen and hemp sacking outlasted burlap.

Since floral and other patterns are still available today in kits, before spending too much money examine the rug carefully for materials used and the almost primitive look of the art. Train your eye to recognize rural subjects. It doesn' matter that they were made miles from where you live. Like other antiques they travel.

Spring Antique Tractor Pull At Delta

DELTA (York Springs) — The Antique Tractor Pulls at the Mason-Dixon Fairgrounds, Delta, will have a new look this year beginning with the spring pulls on May 18.

For some additional interest, increased competition and expanded opportunities for seasoned and new competitors, the committee for the Antique Tractor Pulls of the Mason-Dixon Fair Association is adding tractors of the 1960s to the pulling mix.

All tractors produced in the 1960s and those of the same generation built no later than 1972 will be added to the competition. Examples include, IHC 404, 504, 706, 806, etc., D-series of A.C., John Deere 10 and 20 series and many more makes and models.

In addition, pull speed limits will be monitored and enforced beginning this season. Speed limits will be in the 2.5 to 3.5 mph range depending on the pulling class. The class of 2,800 pound will now go up to 3,000 pound.

Preregistration is always encouraged and it is cheaper than on the pull date. For a registration packet, contact Don Merryman at (410) 838-5842 or Patrice McInaw at (717) 456-9936. The Mason-Dixon Fairgrounds are located on Route 74 in Delta behind the Allfirst Bank. All proceeds will go toward the 2002 Mason-Dixon Fair that is scheduled from July 8 through the 13th.

area by its style. An example would be a rug made in Waldesboro, Maine, mid-century. They can be recognized by raised surfaced that create designs on different levels.

Other rarities to look for would combine many subjects and a variety of techniques. A prime example is known as the Caswell carpet, made in Castleton, Vermont , c.1835, by Zeruah Caswell. It consists of many squares, each with a different subject, embroidered in what is known as the "double Kensington stitch" on firm homespun. It much larger than the usual hooked rug and can be seen at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Fields Should Be Tested For Soybean Cyst Nematode

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Soybean growers should be testing soil samples to determine the presence of soybean cyst nematode, a small round worm that can cause severe yield losses.

Ohio State University plant pathologist Mac Riedel said testing soil samples for nematodes is the first step in a comprehensive soybean cyst nematode management and control program. "Testing soil samples for nematode eggs is a start in helping to keep yields up by managing soybean cyst nematode populations and their feeding habits," said Riedel.

Soybean cyst nematode damages soybeans by feeding on plant roots, robbing the plant of nutrients, and by providing wound sites for fungi to enter. The severity of crop damage and yield loss is dependent on crop rotation and the soybean variety planted.

"The goal is to make sure that populations don't get out of hand," said Riedel. "By calculating the number of eggs in the soil, a farmer can decide if he needs non-host crops (corn or small grains) or resistance soybeans in the rotation scheme.

Yield loss threshold begins at 200 eggs per cup of soil. "One mature female can contain between 200 and 500 eggs," said Riedel, "so it doesn't take much for a farmer to begin losing yields."

At 2,000 eggs per cup of soil (equivalent to about 10 females), most soybean varieties susceptible to soybean cyst nematode will be damaged to the point where it's uneconomical to grow them. "We recommend that farmers switch to a resistant soybean variety if they have those kinds of egg numbers in their soils."

Farmers seeing egg numbers above 5,000 per cup of soil should avoid growing soybeans altogether. "We've had some farmers with egg numbers so high that we've told them they'd have to grow corn or small grains for the next five or six years to break the nematode cycle. They just stare at us," said Riedel. "It's a hard thing to tell a farmer, especially when it's more economical right now to grow beans rather than grain crops."

In addition to calculating nematode egg numbers, Riedel said it's important to practice crop rotation between different crops and among resistant and susceptible nematode soybean varieties due to the nematodes' feeding habits.

"If a farmer only uses one source of resistance year after year, the nematode will eventually adapt and the variety will become useless," said Riedel. A good rule of thumb to follow when planting crops is that the soybean cyst nematode will increase 10-30 times on susceptible varieties in a growing season, but will only decrease by half under a non-host crop.

"For example, if you have a low population of 200 eggs going into a growing season on susceptible beans, your population will go up by 2000 eggs at the end of the season. The next year, if you grow corn that population will decrease by half and if you plant a resistant soybean variety in the third year, that population may drop, say, to 500 eggs. Then the next year you can plant a susceptible soybean variety and not run the risk of losing a lot of yield," said Riedel. "It's a good way to help control the populations while still practicing the needed crop rotation."

It may sound easy, but getting farmers to actually follow a strict management plan is difficult. "We keep telling farmers that they need to be more diligent about controlling the soybean cyst nematode," said Riedel. "Farmers can see a 5-10 percent drop in yield without even seeing any above-ground symptoms. And it's not uncommon for farmers who grow susceptible varieties with at least 2,000 eggs per cup of soil present to lose 15 bushels per acre."

In addition, farmers are reluctant to plant resistant soybean varieties as they feel that these varieties don't have as high yield potential as susceptible varieties. "Low yields may hold back some growers, but we continually show them that they are throwing away 10-12-14 bushels per acre to the worms by not using resistant varieties," said Riedel.

Eric Habegger, Akron, grows a large variety of fruit trees on his one-acre orchard in the past few years he has introduced the "Espalier" method of pruning and training trees which trains the trees flat against a wall or framework. These trees still produce abundant amounts of fruit but are easier to care for

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co) – Toronto growers gathered here during the Mid Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention in late January and were rewarded for their efforts

This annual Tomato Awards Luncheon at the convention allowed growers to talk to each other and adopt methods for their own operations, noted James Kohl vice president of Furman Foods This provides recognition to these high yielders

But Kohl noted that even as slowly producers are inching toward that goal of 50 tons per acre yields

PHILADELPHIA

Farmers wanted!

That's the rallying call of The Food Trust a farmers market association operating in the Philadelphia area

The Farmer's Market Trust – as the organization was known until recently – was started 10 years ago at Philadelphia's Reading Terminal Market according to Diane Berry founder and executive director

The goal was to create farmer's markets operating in economically distressed communities Berry said

During the 2001 growing season the nonprofit organization operated 10 markets in eight locations within Philadelphia and its suburbs

Set up in a variety of settings such as sidewalks and parks, the markets are attracting a growing number of urban people who care about the sources of their food said Berry

Twenty seven farmers in 2001 supplied a wide array of agricultural products to the markets, from baked goods, cut flowers and conventionally grown fruits and vegetables to organic produce and specialty items such as high end salad greens.

PHILADELPHIA — Mary Corbey's office in downtown Philadelphia's mail hikes regularly to the farm she manages

It was just a trash dump Corbey said of the area site before she took it over in 1998 and established the Greensgrow Philadelphia Project

Made possible through a land agreement with the local community development corporation the project is started from scratch No plumbing electrical or useful structures existed on the site – except for a metal wire fence around the perimeter of the property

Growth started slowly as Corbey took precaution for growing lettuce Garden grow has since expanded to include methods for utilizing and various clear pe ing crops specific vege tables and fruits

Screen Assures Drug Residue-Free Status Of Meat Animals

MONROVIA, Calif. — According to the U.S. Animal Health Association, Gentamicin, a popular broad-spectrum aminoglycoside antibiotic used in dairy cows, was responsible for an astonishing 37.87 percent of the total antibiotic residue violations in 1999.

The Association also predicted Gentamicin's growing widespread use in the dairy industry. Today, use of Gentamicin is more widespread than ever and continues to be a leading cause of residue violations.

To provide a simple and inexpensive answer to the problem of Gentamicin residue violations, Silver Lake Research is announcing Meatsafe® Gentamicin, the only pre-slaughter screen to identify Gentamicin residue in the urine. The test is a completely self contained, single use, disposable kit, designed to faithfully detect Gentamicin in live animals. Meatsafe® Gentamicin is part of Silver Lake Research's Meatsafe® line of products, including Meatsafe® Lactam, used nationally by veterinarians, slaughter plants and farmers, and designed to detect more than 25 brand names of penicillin, amoxicillin, ampicillin, hetacillin, and cloxacillin in the urine.

As with all of the Meatsafe® products, Meatsafe® Gentamicin has been designed with ruggedness in mind and requires no mixing, lab equipment or training. According to Tom Round, director of sales and marketing of Silver Lake Research, "The Meatsafe line of products provides a simple, accurate and inexpensive way to test for drug residue in live animals. The 10-minute strip test requires no mixing or measuring."

JOHN DEERE 1560 NO-TILL DRILL

NO-TILL? NO PROBLEM.

- Here's the drill that truly outperforms the lengendary 750 Drill.
- Apply as much as 450 pounds of down-force per opener for penetrating tough no-till; turn off down-force to give openers 2 inches of float for accurate depth control in mellow conditions.
- Plain-grain seedbox capacity is boosted 25 percent... now 3 1/2 bushels per foot; boxes fill evenly, empty completely.
- Grass-seed capacity has doubled (plain-grain only).
- Available in 10-, 15-, and 20-foot widths; 7 1/2 - or 10-inch spacing.

SE10

Pull-Type

The pull-type SE10 requires only a 45 HP (min ) tractor for economical, wide-cut mowing A hydraulic cylinder or ratchet lift screw is available for raising and lowering the mower A spring shock absorber is optional to help cushion shockloads to the mainframe when operating in rough terrain (Unit shown with optional chain guards Deflectors are standard )

TW96

Medium-Duty Cutter with Heavy-Duty Features!

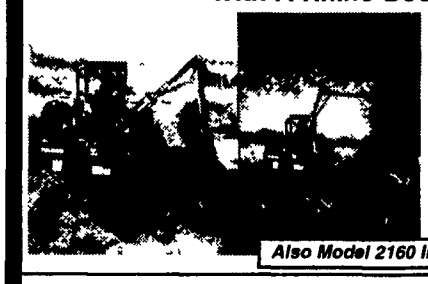
96" Cut 120 HP Center Gearbox 90 HP Outboard Gearboxes Pan Blade Carriers, Updraft Blades, Cat 4 Driveline Slip Clutch Protection Lift or Pull-Type, 540 or 1000 RPM Replaceable Skid Shoes Rated for 2" Diameter Material, Safety Deflectors Standard

Now Is a Great Time To Trim Back Those Fence Lines With A Rhino Boom Mower



Also Model 2160 In Stock!

The Servis® 1548 hydraulic boom flail cutters are designed for mowing grass and cutting brush in hard-to-reach areas including roadsides, ditchbanks, ponds, and fence rows Large model with up to 15 foot horizontal reach and up to 4" diameter brush cutting

1548 RHINO Quality

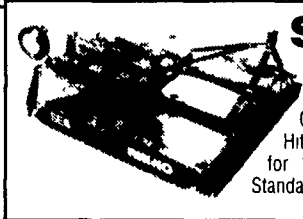
DB150. Over 30 years of hydraulic mower design experience has made the Rhino® DB150 the preferred choice of experienced operators for the mowing of pond banks, levees, drainage ditches, and hard-to-reach areas

The DB150 can extend to a maximum of 158" from the center line of the tractor allowing the 60 inch rotary head to cut areas that are difficult or impossible to reach with ordinary mowers By being hydraulically driven, maintenance is greatly reduced with the absence of belts and pulleys The DB150 outperforms many competitive units with smaller hydraulic systems The DB150 utilizes a 60 gallon hydraulic system which allows the unit to run cooler in tough mowing conditions The large reservoir also serves as a counterweight and remains stationary on the mainframe, eliminating the potential traffic hazard of a movable counter-balance weight The DB150 features a heavy-duty three-point hitch using a lower double lug hitch system to fit a wide range of tractors To help insure a clean cut, the DB150 features updraft blades and a blade tip speed of 20,028 FPM

SE's Tough and Economical Family of Cutters!



5 , 6' and 7' Models, 540 RPM, Shear Bolt or Slip Clutch Protection, Pan Blade Carriers, Updraft Blades, CAT I Three-Point Hitch CAT II Three-Point Hitch (SE7), Rated for 1 Diameter Material, Safety Deflectors Standard

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc Offers This Low Cost Harrow The Flex-i-ble Tine Harrow

Aerates and scarifies to stimulate growth, improve moisture penetration Breaks up manure to speed decomposition, reduce parasites Works in seeds after reseeding Maintains rings and tracks 4 to 42 ft widths Adjustable penetration Low maintenance

HERBICIDE INCORPORATION: Independent research using black light photography proves the Fuerst Harrow behind your disk or cultivator gives you "near perfect" incorporation in one pass – better than implements costing several times more! Shreds trash as it prepares & levels seedbeds

BROADCASTING SMALL GRAINS AND GRASSES: University of Illinois found overseeding by broadcasting followed by a Fuerst Harrow a superior combination, outperforming equipment costing more than 10 times as much Pulled behind the broadcaster, it covers seed to desired depth in one time-saving operation

SHREDS STALKS: Shreds and spreads stalks in spring ahead of no-till and ridge-till planting

4 to 42 ft widths Flexes to cover every inch at 6-8 mph No maintenance Easy to use and store Insist on the original "Spreading Action" tines

Verti-Maxx™ Mixers

Introducing Models 5042 and 5060
420 and 600 cubic feet

The new Knight Verti-Maxx is the most innovative vertical mixer ever built. Its exclusive design features a simpler drive system, a lower loading height, and delivers a more consistent, thorough mix with faster processing time, all at a competitive price. The Verti-Maxx twin augers and bull gear drive provide the best performance, dependability and value in the industry, day in and day out. Check out these features and benefits.

- The Verti-Maxx vertical mixer mixes the widest variety of feedstuffs, including large round bales, large square bales, and baleage.
- Twin augers provide faster material movement and a thorough mixing action.
- Twin auger design also provides a lower loading height for easier loading.

BETTER SEED PLACEMENT THAT'S PRECISELY THE POINT

- Great Plains PRECISION Seeding System Plants Corn, Soybeans and Small Grains
- Available in 15' and 30' Widths

The revolutionary Precision Seeding System from Great Plains gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters. The SingulatorPlus Meter™ sits directly on top of the double disc opener, and once the meter releases the seed, it has less distance to travel thus ensuring more accurate seed placement.

We're only 45 Days from Planting Second Crop Beans!

- If you overpopulate with either a planter or a drill, you increase your seed cost and decrease yields.
- Only Great Plains meets or exceeds planters on depth control and seed-to-soil contact for even emergence and maximum yield.
- Drilled beans canopy up to 3 weeks earlier than planted beans, dramatically reducing chemical cost.
- The earlier canopy of drilled beans saves precious moisture that can make or break a bean crop.

Hoober has Great Plains Precision Seeding Systems in stock. Call a Hoober salesman today for all your Great Plains needs.

PROVEN PERFORMER

Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

Cash Rebates up to $1,500

Cut Your Fields Down To Size!

ZIPHOUSE combines reasonable frost and freeze protection with the capability to open with the pull of a string for ventilation. This easy opening feature allows quick and timely temperature control to prevent crops from over heating. There is no other product on the market that can produce both of these benefits.

- Allows growers to plant 2-6 weeks early.
- Easy for the grower to install and remove.
- Provide freeze protection for commercially grown crops down to 26° F.
- Be able to open and close easily and quickly with minimal labor cost.
- Have the ability to withstand strong, gusty winds.
- Be as affordable and cost effective for the grower as possible.
- Reusable for 2-3 seasons.

Suzuki QuadRunner ATVs may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Always avoid paved surfaces. Never ride on public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs don't mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

Massey Ferguson® is a worldwide brand of AGCO Corporation

Bale sooner

If you want faster drydown, rely on a Model 1412 Disbine® disc mower-conditioner. They use an innovative flail conditioning system for faster drydown so you can bale up to a day sooner.

- Unique tapered flails remove crop's waxy layer to speed drydown
- Independent disc modules are sealed in their own oil and linked by independent drive shafts so they can be serviced or replaced easily for extra peace of mind. It's the most advanced design available

Stop in and see the New 1412 Discbine today.

Millcreek Redesigns Small Manure Spreaders

Due to the increased use of ATVs (All Terrain Vehicles) to pull the mini-spreaders, special self-lubricating bearings have been added to key moving parts to allow for the faster speeds at which ATVs pull the spreaders to and from the field.

The spreader no longer has grease fittings that require maintenance. Now, not only can the mini-spreaders be pulled at higher speeds, but routine maintenance for greasing is eliminated.

Glenn Musser, Millcreek product manager, explains the design change. "We found that over 30 percent of Millcreek owners use an ATV to pull their mini-spreader. An ATV moves at a top speed of approximately 15 mph, something that our spreaders were not originally designed to handle. The upgrade to self-lubricating bearings allows the spreaders to be pulled at these higher speeds. It's just another way that we are constantly improving our product to make stall cleaning faster and easier for the time-pressed horse lover."

Millcreek mini-spreaders are available in seven sizes, and are sold through a nationwide network of qualified dealers.

Kinze Introduces Fast-Unloading Grain Auger Wagon

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — One of the largest-capacity, fastest-unloading auger wagons for in-field grain-handling was unveiled recently by Kinze Manufacturing, Inc., Williamsburg.

The Kinze 1050 Harvest Commander™ Grain Auger Wagon holds up to 1,050 bushels and unloads in approximately two minutes (500-600 bushels per minute). Unloading heights (measured at spout tip) are 13 foot 7 inches on tire-equipped models, and 13 feet 6 inches on track-equipped models. Auger reach is up to 6 feet 9-½ inches, dependent on tire/track option and setting of the adjustable-width axle.

Giant floater-style Sof-Treds consist of 76 x 50.00-32 16-ply (1250/45 — 32) flotation tires with huge 44-inch by 32-inch one-piece rims, high-capacity ductile iron hubs, and high strength alloy 4½-inch spindles. Dual, load-equalizing row crop axles/wheels feature four 20.8 inch x 38-inch radial — 2 Star (10 ply) R-1 tires (traction type), which provide more flotation and a 15 percent higher load-rating than previous Kinze 1040 models. Sof-Traks — with 24-inch or 36-inch wide rubber tracks — are designed to provide more flotation and reduced compaction. A new, cast-iron, segmented end wheel design reduces daily inspection and maintenance and makes track alignment less critical.

The new 1050 uses no chains or sprockets and requires considerably less daily maintenance. The improved dual auger unloading system features a unique "on-demand" positive drive for natural unrestricted grain flow, greater efficiency and better horsepower utilization.

Conestoga Buildings Wins National Construction Awards

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — At the recent 2002 National Frame Building Association, Frame Building Expo in San Antonio, Texas, Conestoga Buildings of New Holland, won three national awards for their outstanding construction of pole buildings.

The first award is presented by the NFBA for "Commercial-Under 5,000 square feet" and the Conestoga Building that won is Bryan and Vicki Higgs, Short Automotive, in Church Hill, Md. This building is a brand new automotive repair shop that has four garage doors, two levels of offices, and three auto lifts.

The next two awards were presented by Fabral, metal roofing and siding systems from Lancaster. Fabral holds their own National Building of the Year contest in conjunction with the Frame Building Expo.

Conestoga Buildings won two awards for construction in the categories of "Residential-Garages" and "General Use Buildings." The winner of Residential-Garages is Ryan Clough five-car garage, in Harrington, Del. with a four-foot wainscoting, cupola, and five Allison Sales (Lancaster)/Wayne Dalton Garage doors.

IMC Website Gives Timely Nutrient Information

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — With the 2002 growing season here, growers face new challenges and the need for the latest and best in crop-specific agronomic information available. Featuring an easy-to-use format and resources on the best premium fertilizer choice for high-value crops, the kmag.com Website by IMC Global delivers valuable, timely information.

The Website dons a new, user-friendly design and includes spring 2002 fertility information with several new feature articles on forage and potato production.

Dr. Ray Hoyum, vice president of market development and communications at IMC Global, said the Crop-Specific Information section of the Website gives growers valuable and in-depth data on high-value crops and sound fertility practices that will help them achieve quality yields and higher profits.

"Now more than ever, crop producers need to achieve the highest possible yields and profits to stay competitive," he said. "Through the K-Mag Website, growers can learn how to provide their crops with an overall fertilizer mix that includes several necessary crop nutrients."

Hoyum says growers can access online the K-Mag Agri-Facts bulletins to learn more about the proper fertility practices for high-value crops. Other Website features include a Nutrient Utilization Chart, which explains the various nutrients depleted from the soil every time a crop is raised.

"Growers can also retrieve Website photos that portray crops with visible signs of stress and nutrient shortages," he says. "Nutrient deficiencies in crops reduce yields, quality and profits to the farmer."

The Efficient Fertilizer Use manual, also available as a CD-ROM from the K-Mag Website, educates farmers on how their profits can be maximized through soil sampling, understanding the role of nutrients in maintaining soil fertility and by practicing sound fertilizer application techniques.

The Back-to-Basics.net link takes users to another IMC Global Website, designed to educate growers and those who influence growers' decisions on the importance of maintaining proper soil fertility levels.

"This is a time when every dollar counts," Hoyum said. "It's through our Websites and other educational materials that growers can learn how maintaining proper soil fertility levels can help reduce the factors that can limit potential yields and profits."

New President Appointed At Kubota

TORRANCE, Calif. — Kubota Tractor Corporation (KTC), the U.S. distributor of Kubota agricultural, construction, lawn and turf equipment recently announced the appointment of Nobuyuki Toshikuni as president.

Toshikuni has served in various engineering and manufacturing capacities and was appointed in 1999 as general manager, tractor engineering. In that capacity he oversaw the development of all Kubota tractors and implements.

Toshikuni assumes responsibility for Kubota Corporation's most important commercial and consumer export market following the successful tenure of past-president Mori Hayashi, now serving as general manager, overseas operations and appointed to the Kubota board of directors in 2001.

The new president's appointment comes at a crucial time in KTC's ongoing development. The company is the acknowledged leader in the under 40-horsepower tractor segment in the U.S. and has broadened its base in compact construction equipment, larger horsepower tractor sales and the growing lawn tractor and turf equipment sectors "Clearly our overall goal is to build brand value for our dealers and to provide their customers with the best equipment. As a world-leader in diesel technologies we already have an edge on our competition with the ability to integrate engineering technologies designed by Kubota for Kubota applications," Toshikuni said.

Toshikuni's background as the developer of the current Kubota L-series tractors included an earlier assignment within the U.S. operation during which he evaluated the market potential to Kubota of the lawn and turf segments; this experience added to his considerable management and engineering skills.

A graduate of Osaka University with a degree in mechanical engineering, KTC's new president brings both practical experience and a global business perspective to the job. "Much has changed in the United States since my original posting 10 years ago. But, I am convinced that our dealers and their desire to help make Kubota the leader in all active product segments has not changed.

American Pole Building Awarded Building Of The Year

LAWRENCE, Kan. — American Pole Building Company of Ottsville, Pa., has been recognized with the prestigious Building of the Year award from the National Frame Builders Association. The awards were presented at the 2002 Frame Building Expo in San Antonio, Texas in February.

American was presented the award in the Hobbyshop category for the facility constructed for James and Arlene McBrearty of Patch-O-Green Farm. The 2,900-square-foot facility is used as a multi-purpose building that is used as a workshop, storage area and family clubhouse.

The National Frame Builders Association Building of the Year awards are the most prestigious awards presented to builders in the post-frame construction industry. Each year several hundred entries are submitted to become one of the 14 winners.

DeLaval Adds Two Milking Point Take-Offs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Milking industry equipment leader DeLaval Inc., recently added two milking point take-off units to its extensive line of automated milking equipment.

The DeLaval™ milking point MP370 and DeLaval™ milking point MP380 were designed to help expand operator efficiency within any stalling configuration. Both units offer numerous operational and delay settings, including vacuum on-time, milk letdown time and level, post milking time delay, milk sweep, and pulsation stop. These programmable features enable the operator to maintain uniform milking practices automatically for every cow and with every parlor operator.

With consistent milking from attachment to retraction and precise milk flow controlled claw removal, these milking points can increase cow comfort as well as facilitate adherence to a dairy's specific guidelines for udder health.

Both milking points incorporate the new DeLaval™ sensor HFC to handle higher flow rates and faster milkouts of high-production herds, especially on 3X herds. They also feature a durable, water-resistant control box and keypad.

Both units are engineered to enhance the productivity of any size dairy operation. The rugged, yet economical DeLaval milking point MP370 has a three-inch PVC cylinder with cord retraction. For demanding dairy environments, the DeLaval milking point MP380 is built with a two-inch stainless-steel cylinder with chain retraction.

The new milking points will be marketed through DeLaval independent dealers in the U.S. and abroad. They may be ordered individually or specified as part of any DeLaval parlor system installation.

Soybean Germplasm Lines Show Resistance To Insect Defoliation

WOOSTER, Ohio — Two recently released soybean germplasm lines appear to resist defoliation against bean leaf beetle and western corn rootworm, insects that have been known to cause severe crop damage throughout the midwest.

Recent cross-breeding at Ohio State University has yielded two advanced germplasm lines, HC95-15MB and HC95-24MB, that may offer breeders additional management tactics where leaf feeding is a concern. The results of the study were recently published in the Journal of Economic Entomology.

"These lines have not been released commercially to growers because the yields they produce are not high enough. But they have potential for breeders who are looking for lines that show good insect resistance that in the future could potentially be crossed with high-yielding lines," said Ron Hammond, an entomologist for the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC). "We wanted to look at them in the field against insect problems to see what value they might have."

Researchers found that over a two-year period, amount of defoliation from the adult bean leaf beetle and the western corn rootworm was significantly reduced in the germplasm lines compared to a commercial soybean cultivar. No commercially grown lines are considered to have any level of insect resistance.

Percent defoliation from 1999 data averaged 22.5 percent for the commercial cultivar, 14.8 percent for HC95-15MB and 10 percent for HC95-24MB. In 2000, defoliation levels were 8.5 percent for the commercial cultivar, 4.1 percent for HC95-24MB and 3.9 percent for HC95-15MB.

"We saw less leaf feeding on the resistant lines," said Hammond, adding that the reduction in feeding may be due to antixenosis, a plant defense mechanism that modifies the behavior of the insect without affecting plant or insect metabolisms.

The resistant lines, however, did not reduce bean leaf beetle or western corn rootworm populations. Hammond said the germplasm lines were originally developed specifically to target insects, such as caterpillars and the Mexican bean beetle, whose larvae develop and feed on plant leaves. Bean leaf beetle and western corn rootworm larvae develop in the soil and feed on the plant roots. It is the adult insects that are defoliators.

In addition, the resistant lines were not effective in reducing the pod injury levels associated with bean leaf beetle feeding. Hammond speculates that the plants' defenses rest solely in the leaves.

"These lines may not have the ability to reduce pod feeding and population density, but in terms of defoliation there is definitely some promise. Most insect problems that have historically been on soybeans have been those insects that defoliate the plant, and we know how defoliation can affect the economics of the crop," said Hammond. "With insects like the bean leaf beetle and soybean aphid present that can transmit viruses, continuing research into new soybean lines is very important."

Bean leaf beetles can cause headaches for soybean growers. Not only do they feed on plant leaves, they cause pod injury that can reduce yields. They also transmit bean pod mottle virus, a disease associated with greenstem syndrome where the stems remain tough and green and beans are too dry to harvest.

Western corn rootworm beetles are normally a concern on continuously grown corn. Rotating corn with soybeans has been the first line of defense. However, a new biotype of the western corn rootworm is laying its eggs in soybean fields that hatch into larvae and feed on first year corn that has been planted into those fields the following year. This prevents rotation from being used as a management practice. Though more problematic in such states as Indiana and Illinois, this new biotype of western corn rootworm has been recorded in Ohio.

The soybean germplasm lines were developed by Hammond and Dick Cooper, a USDA soybean breeder at OARDC, as part of on-going soybean breeding research.

Consider Risks In Planting Soybeans Early

DES MOINES, Iowa — Though it may be tempting to complete planting as soon as possible, ultra-early and early soybean planting may yield more risks than rewards, according to soybean production experts. Before heading to the field in March or April, growers need to weigh the odds for success.

"A certain amount of time is required for seed to emerge when soybean seed is planted in soils that are less than 50 degrees," explains Keith Whigham, extension soybean specialist at Iowa State University. "We've found that if we plant in March, it could be three to four weeks before soil temperatures reach 50 degrees. By then, seed may not have the viability to emerge."

Ideally, soybeans are planted the last week of April through the middle of May for optimum production, depending on geography. Typically, yield losses have been seen with early-planted (before April 15) soybeans as well as in soybeans planted after May 15.

Weather trends, the increasing size of farm operations and some reports of yield increases with early planting have lead growers to push the envelope on soybean planting dates.

"There has not been a lot of published research dealing with very early planting dates," says Jody Gander, agronomy researcher with Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., in Princeton, Ill. "We initiated research in 2001 to try to quantify the potential risks or benefits associated with planting soybeans early.

"There are a few risks in planting corn early, but it is generally desirable to do so. There are a lot more risks with soybeans. Cool, wet soil conditions associated with early planting are more conducive to seedling diseases such as phytophthora root rot, pythium and fusarium, which all lead to poor emergence and growth," he says.

"When it warms up in early April, and you're tempted to plant soybeans, it's important to remember the next week it could be raining and 40 degrees," Gander cautions growers.

Early planted soybeans also appear to be more susceptible to infection from sudden death syndrome (SDS), as evidenced by widespread, severe levels of the disease in Illinois during the 2000 growing season. That year, as much as 65 percent of the soybean crop had been planted by May 15 compared to the five-year average of 20 percent.

"Fusarium, the organism which causes SDS is most damaging when soil temperatures remain at 55 to 65 degrees for a long period of time," explains Jim Trybom, soybean researcher with Pioneer in LeRoy, Ill. "In 2000, soil temperatures warmed to 68 degrees on May 15, but they dropped and continued to fluctuate below 65 degrees through late May.

"In 2000, the soybean seedlings and roots were exposed to the ideal 55 to 65 degree soil temperatures much longer than normal because the crop was planted earlier than normal," Trybom adds. "The result was significant disease pressure and yield losses from SDS."

Other downsides to early planting are the potential for frost damage, which can kill soybeans that have germinated and emerged; compaction of wet soils, which impacts the crop all season long; and greater exposure to high populations of early soybean insects there are fewer acres in each area to attract the bugs, Whigham points out.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned and a new thick tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

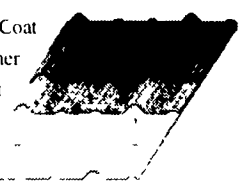
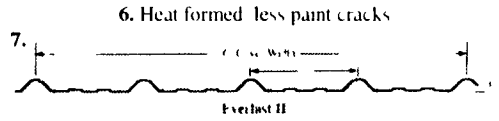
Everlast Roofing, Inc.
Metal Roofing & Siding
The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"


1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G 100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80 000 min yield)
6. Heat formed less paint cracks
7.


Everlast II
NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!
1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed· Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F
OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE
$1.48 PER LINEAL FT.

Screws and nails fit tighter on Everlast II metal roofing and siding ribs. Less risk of leaking. Laps are virtually invisible. No other manufacturer's metal seals so well with nails.

Everlast Roofing, Inc, 239 N. 5th Ave., Lebanon, PA 17046, Call toll free 1-888-339-0059 for info. & nearest dealer. (Mid-Atlantic, New England, Midwest)

Rural Economy

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?
Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

"I have managed commercial and pure-bred cattle operations in my native Indiana as well as Texas, Missouri, Eastern Shore of Maryland, and Florida. I have managed most breeds. I am convinced that the Simmental breed is exceptional for growth, docility, and lean meat quality and cutability. Purebred or cross-bred, your herd should include Simmental genetics."

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal, and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at "2" and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

Explosion proof military grade storage containers, 5'x5.5x7'. 717-627-3674

SEWAGE TREATMENT SYSTEM FOR SALE

Unused FAST (Fixed Activated Sludge Treatment) System Biologically oxidizes organic matter to produce a clear odorless effluent which is then disinfected by an ultraviolet sterilizer This system was originally designed to be used onboard ships but is also usable on land. It is sized for approximately 125 people or 7000 gallons per day. The effluent could be directed toward a stream, or used for watering. Here is how it works:

Arrangement This system includes two pumps, a Roots blower, UV Sterilizer, diverter valve, three float switches, control panel and remote alarm panel All equipment except the remote alarm panel is assembled on the unit.

The tank is approx. 16' long x 8' wide x 9 ft high. Drawings and more detailed information is available. Although the system is unused and never run, bearings and seals in the motors may have to be replaced due to long storage. The original price was approx. $55,000.

INJECTORS

Have you serviced yours?

Bad Injectors Cause:

- Excessive Fuel Consuption
- Poor Starting
- Loss Of Power
- Misfiring
- Black Smoke
- Overheating

As always, injectors are checked free of charge
